Records January Ends On Warm U.S. Trend

CHICAGO (AP) — January — one of the coldest months in the U.S. record books — ended on the record of rising temperatures Thursday.

But, before the turn for the better in the interior of the United States, additional marks went into the deep freeze of history.

Chicago, with a low of five below zero, suffered the 13th January day in which the mercury fell below zero. That was the greatest number of sub-zero days of any month in its history. The old mark was 14, set 88 years ago in the frigid February of 1875.

A low pressure centre moving inland from the Pacific coast brought with it widespread rain and snow. Blinding snow obscured mountain passes and

Transplanting AIDS Baldies

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hair transplanting can stop receding hairlines, the American Osteopathic Association's convention was told Thursday.

The process, known as "punch and plant," was explained in a prepared address by Dr. Daniel Koprince, a Royal Oak, Mich., skin doctor.

A punch is used to remove from the back of the patient's head a section of the scalp containing about 20 hairs. The hairy plug is then transplanted where a section has been removed from the patient's bald area.

A local anesthetic is used and up to 45 plugs can be transferred in one sitting. Dr. Koprince said. The newly transplanted hairs die in about a month, he said, but two months later permanent hair grows back.

Strong Language Held; Ambassador Is Recalled

By DAVE McINTOSH
OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker blasted the United States Thursday for "unwarranted intrusion in Canadian affairs" and declared that Canada would "be pushed around or accept external domination."

The other three party leaders agreed with him on this point in loudly applauded Commons comment on the statement Thursday night by the U.S. state department taking issue with the Canadian government's position on nuclear weapons.

It was the strongest language aimed at the U.S. to emanate from the Commons since the April 1957 episode in Cairo of Canadian Ambassador Herbert Norman after a U.S. Senate charge of communism against him.

The leaders of the opposition groups also said the situation was brought on by Canadian comment on the statement of Liberal Leader Pearson warned against any needling up of the present incident for political purposes.

DEMAND DEBATE

Mr. Pearson, Social Credit Leader Thompson and New Democratic Party Leader Douglas all demanded an emergency debate. They got it after their followers overtook Mr. Speaker Marcé Lambert, supported by the government, against such a debate.

Mr. Diefenbaker, apparently

PRIME MINISTER Diefenbaker accused the United States Thursday of "unwarranted intrusion" into Canadian affairs. He made the charge in the House of Commons with reference to a statement issued Wednesday by the U.S. State Department calling into question the Canadian government's nuclear affairs.

Hill Buzzes With Rumors Of Snap Federal Election

OTTAWA (CP) — An air of crisis was left in suspense on Parliament Hill Thursday night when the House of Commons adjourned "in normal" fashion after a possible dissolution and snap general election.

The electric atmosphere in the Commons followed denunciations by all parties of the United States government's intervention in the Canadian controversy over acquisition of nuclear arms.

During the night sitting of the Commons, New Democratic Leader Douglas said the Commons should be called to let the people declare their views on the issue. He noted that in the last election, all parties shied away from nuclear arms. Now the Liberals favored them and the Conservatives were engaged in negotiations to acquire them.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, answering repeated questions from reporters, declared he would make no statement on dissolution.

Reporters followed the prime minister's car out Sussex Street and into a possible dinner room, to make certain he was simply going to his official residence and not across the road to Government House. He laughed at their eager persistence.

Tension mounted after Speaker Marcel Lambert was upset on two of his rulings and a full-free debate was started by Liberal Leader Pearson on the issue. The U.S. state department's contradiction of Wednesday's statement last week about Canada-U.S. defence negotiations.

The prime minister would not say whether he thought it "possible the House would dissolve tonight," but "this does not have to be the case."

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain paid tribute Thursday to the late leader of the Labor party, Hugh Gaitskill, at a memorial service in Westminster Abbey.

More than 2,000 persons, including Prime Minister Macmillan, packed the abbey for the special service.

Musik was performed by the London Philharmonic Orchestra led by Sir Adrian Boult and included selections requested by Gaitskill's family.

Among those standing the service were Danish Premier Jens Otto Krag and his foreign secretary, Per Hækkerup, and Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin.

Mr. Diefenbaker did not visit the Governor-General's residence during the supper hour.

REPEATS RUMOR

Mr. Thompson told reporters earlier that he had received information that Mr. Diefenbaker would ask the Governor-General for dissolution if Speaker Lambert's ruling against the defence debate was not upheld.

Mr. Diefenbaker denied there was any message passed between himself and the leader of the 20-member Social Credit group in the Commons.

Mr. Diefenbaker also told reporters that the vote on the Speaker's ruling did not involve the confidence of the Commons in the government.

The prime minister would not say whether he questioned about whether he planned any mediae dissolution. He told them he would make no statement on the subject.

Story Given British Play

Transplanting AIDS Baldies

LONDON (Reuters) — British newspapers today gave prominence to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's attack on what he called United States intrusion in Canadian affairs.

Both The Times and The Daily Telegraph made it their lead story.

The Times correspondent in Ottawa began his dispatch: "To one of the strongest statements ever made here against a foreign government," he said. "Diefenbaker, the Canadian prime minister, bitterly denounced the government of the United States 'for its unwarranted intrusion in Canadian affairs.'"

British newspaper headlines: "The Times' Canada accuses U.S. of interference; sharp retort to nuclear arms charges; Mr. Diefenbaker refuses to be 'pushed around.'"

The Daily Telegraph: "Canada accuses U.S. of 'intrusion'; nuclear arms note warning re-issued."

State Dept., White House Both Silent

Clash Makes Front Pages At Washington

WASHINGTON (CP) — The state department Thursday remained silent in the face of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's attack on the government's criticism of Canadian nuclear policy.

Press Officer Lincoln White said he had no comment on Diefenbaker's response in Parliament which included the announcement that Canada is an Ambassador Charles Ritchie to Ottawa to provide "first-hand reference" to the Canada-U.S. controversy.

The prime minister's action here as a move to demonstrate how serious he considers the issue and to show that he is with the state department's statement.

The state department's statement in Ottawa on the conditions and terms of his recall. The initial reference to the controversy would remain in Ottawa for only a few days and then return to his country but he did not say how long would depend on the prime minister's decision.

WASHINGTON (CP) — The White House refused Thursday to comment on Prime Minister Diefenbaker's attack on the U.S. state department's criticism of Canadian nuclear policy as an unwarranted intrusion in Canadian affairs.

Defence Head Maintains No Difference With Chief

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Harkness declared in the Commons Thursday night there is no division between him and Prime Minister Diefenbaker on nuclear arms.

He drew a chorus of jeers and laughs when he declared the government will continue the defence policy it has pursued for the last five years.

Mr. Harkness said Canadian defence policy is clear, spelled out in his speeches and in last year's Commons debate on defence estimates.

He said the statement he issued Monday used different words but was on all points the same as the prime minister's speech in last week's foreign affairs and defence debate.

The defence minister also denounced the United States state department's criticism of Canadian domestic matter by issuing a statement Wednesday that the late leader in Westminster Abbey said of Mr. Diefenbaker's speech.

The minister's address, his first on defence this session, was the dramatic highlight of a day of parliamentary drama which started when the opposition parties voted down two rulings by Speaker Marcel Lambert and forced an emergency debate on the U.S. government statement.

After Mr. Harkness spoke, Paul Martin (L-Excess East) said the defence minister had not dispelled the appearance of a deep cleavage between himself and the prime minister on North America.

WANTS FLUID POLICY

Mr. Martin said Mr. Diefenbaker wants to maintain a flexible and fluid policy while conducting negotiations with the U.S. which would make nuclear weapons readily available to Canada's defence weapons in case of need.

Mr. Harkness' view, Mr. Martin said, that the negotiations were being conducted to make nuclear weapons available to Canada. The flexible defence policy was defeated by a vote of 337 to 234.

N.Y. Test Ban Talks End, To Be Resumed In Geneva

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. state department announced Thursday night that exploratory talks with Russia on a nuclear test ban were suspended because of the Soviet understanding they will be resumed in Geneva next month.

The opening of the talks Jan. 1 followed an exchange of letters between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev which had raised hopes and abroad for an early breakthrough in the long deadlocked test-ban problem.

As the talks ended there was no outward evidence that the breakthrough was in sight although there had been reports that various formulas for testing the critical inspection issue were under consideration.
