Where is The Lady

Now that the hot summer days have gone and cool evenings and rainy mornings form a part of the weather probabilities the ladies with their "Rigby" wraps warm, comfortable and rainproof, pass along the streets with an air of independence that is delightful to behold. They have gone to their dealers and selected just the cloth they wanted, and ordered it "RIGBY PROOFED." The consequence is they are wearing the latest materials that are out and their wraps are perfectly waterproof, though the cloth is not changed in the slightest degree. It is as porous and soft as before. This being true where is the lady who would not prefer to have her out of door garments "RIGBY PROOFED." The men are all wearing Rigby Coats and a lady has only to inquire of her father, husband, or brother to learn of their ability.

MURDERED HIS WIFE.

The Horrible Cold Blooded Work of a Doctor.

Chicago, October 8.—Dr. Carl F. Nitz, a German physician, vivisected his wife and then killed himself yesterday afternoon. The murder of the woman was done in the most cold-blooded manner, as shown by notes that were found after his death. Nitz sat by the woman's side watching her die slowly, and now and then to note the effect of another wound, he would stab his knife into her again. He carefully noted all the symptoms of the woman's approaching decease, wrote them down, and then shot himself.

NEURASTHENIA.

Weakened Nerves and Nervous Disease Are Cutting off Thousands

Paine's Celery Compound Makes Nervous people Well and Strong.

Health is the first and most important thing in this life of ours. Health is a blessing far beyond our computation; it is vastly more important than wealth of great social distinction.

One of the most dreaded troubles of the present day is nervousness. It is generally acknowledged that nervous diseases are growing alarmingly prevalent in our midst.

The causes that lead to Neurasthenia, or weakness of the nerves are many. Business cares, feverish haste after riches, social and household worries, sexual and alcoholic excesses all contribute to the breaking down and physical ruin of thousands of men and women.

In words of truth and soberness we see before the sick and afflicted the claims of Paine's Celery Compound, as a quick relief and certain cure for all forms of nervous diseases. It is a perfect restorer of nerve force and power to the weakened debilitated system. Prominent men and women all over the country, have renewed their lives and kept their places in business and in society by using Paine's Celery Compound. In all large cities where nervous diseases are most frequently seen, the best physicians prescribe Paine's Celery Compound with immense success.

The following letter from Mrs. Alfred Perry, Port Maitland, N. S., proves that Paine's Celery Compound has no equal for the cure of nervous diseases in whatever form they may present themselves:

"For two years my system was all run down, and I suffered more than I can describe from nervous prostration and insomnia; at times I almost lost my reason from severe pain at base of the brain. My husband advised me to try Paine's Celery Compound, which I did, and the effects were wonderful. I soon began to sleep well, the pain left my head, my whole system was strengthened, and I am now enjoying very good health.

"I would cheerfully recommend Paine's Celery Compound to anyone suffering from like troubles. You have my best wishes for the future success of your excellent remedy."

The London Chronicle's Rome correspondent telegraphs that terms of settlement of the Turkish question agreed upon by the Czar and Lord Salisbury embrace the opening of the Bosphorus to the world's warships and traders and the preserving of the sovereignity of the Sultan's powers controling the collection of taxes and nomination of Ministers.

Hints to Assistants.

To be a successful assistant it is necessary to possess the following qualities: integrity, energy, dignity, intelligence, and perseverance. It is also necessary to present a good appearance. An air of neatness and prosperity is always prepossessing.

The more genteel and prosperous an assistant looks, the better are his chances of success.

The ideal assistant is the man or woman who is uniformly polite; who shows proper interest in the purchase of the customer, and who is equally courteous to all, of whatever station.

An assistant should cultivate the powers of observation, imagination and invention.

An assistant is not only a seller of goods, but to his keeping is committed the honor, dignity and reputation of the house.

An assistant must not only know, in a general way, what the requirements of the different lines of business are, but must be familiar, to a certain extent, with the business requirements of each particular customer.

To be a good assistant is to be able not only to sell to a customer something he has started to get, but to sell him something he had no idea of buying when he came into the store.

The assistant completes the work of the printed advertisement. The advertisement brings the buyer to the store, and the assistant has it in his power to attract or repel.

The ideal assistant is a man who possesses the good qualities of all men. —The American Stationer.

THE TRIFLING EXPENSES.

If They Can be Stopped Domestic Economy is Secured.

It is the trifling expenses that must be looked after if a housekeeper intends to conduct her domestic affairs on lines of economy. The woman who knows how to handle a hammer, to mend and to contrive can stop many a leak in the family purse—each small in itself, but often amounting to a large sum in the course of a year. For instance: Certain kitchen utensils are usually thrown away as hopeless cases as soon as they are cracked. This is especially true of articles made of paper or granite ware. A high wind after rolling a light paper tub about promiscuously, threw it against a stone, and, to all appearances, wrecked it forever. But the tub was owned by a woman who had few pennies but original ideas, and she straightway went to work to demonstrate that, although mutilated, the tub was not beyond repair. First she took putty and put this over the hole and smoothed it down carefully, until it was about the same thickness as the papier mache of which the tub was made. This was then allowed to dry. Pieces of stout muslin were then pasted over the putty and a coat of paint was put over the cloth to hold it, and to make the mended part of the tub look like the rest of it. Several coats of paint were added from time to time, and the mended place is probably the strongest part of the tub. The mending is a simple matter and the time required was small. The same woman mends small holes in granite ware with copper wire or copper rivets, carefully fitted and hammered down.

Nervous Prostration.

Cured effectually by Scott's Sarsaparilla.

His heart was affected.

"Overwork as a student at college brought on an attack of nervous prostration," says Mr. Gilbert, a railway missionary. "I was exceedingly nervous and if I exerted myself my heart commenced to flutter violently, and I was warned that even ordinary exercise endangered my life. But thanks to Scott's Sarsaparilla I feel better than I ever expected to feel, for I can now address a meeting without effort, can walk a brisk pace for two hours or more without exhaustion and am free from that distressing palpitation. In my work I have oftentime recommended Scott's Sarsaparilla, and have seen many cases where its effects have been most marked."

Scott's Sarsaparilla acts like magic in restoring shattered nerves because it rebuilds the nerve centres. Nervous headache, nervous dyspepsia and all nerve derangements wear on the system. Scott's Sarsaparilla makes new blood and muscles and strong nerves. Of all druggists, $1 per bottle. Dose from half to one teaspoonful.

Now is the time to get supplied with glass and crockeryware as we will sell off cheaper than ever before removing.

THE COMMODORE'S DYING JOKE.

Heard a Reporter Wish Him to Hurry Up, and Pleaded Inexperience.

Some reporters were waiting for news after midnight recently of the condition of Cornelius Vanderbilt. It is no fun to kick your heels against the pavement until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, and the reporters grew restless. "This reminds me," said one, reflectively, "of the death watch on the old commodore. Things were quite different then from what they are now. When the old commodore was just taken ill he used to send for us every day and have us up in his room and tell us all about himself. He used to read the papers and he noticed that a great deal of space was devoted to him.

"'Well, boys,' he said one morning, 'I hope I live a little longer for your sakes. You seem to be making a lot of space out of me.'

"Finally, though, when he became too ill to see us, we had to camp out as we are doing now, and it soon became tedious. We used to camp about twenty feet from the front of the house in which the old gentleman lay, and sometimes you could hear what was said in the sickroom.

"Among us was a certain gentleman who is now the respected father of a family. He was rather impatient. It was late at night. He had a voice in him like a bull.

"'Oh, why don't he die?' he suddenly exclaimed, petulantly.

"We thought no more of his remark until a few minutes later, when a trim servant girl came out of the house. She looked us over and watched us for a few moments. The Doc said something and she came over to him and handed him a note. He opened it, wondering what it could be. On the paper was a score or so of words written in the old commodore's well-known scrawl. They read:—

"'I trust you will pardon me, but as this is the first time I have ever died I am a little inexperienced and don't exactly know how to go about it. If you will bear with me a little while, however, I will try to do my best.'

"The old gentleman had heard the pious remark and it had been too much for his grim sense of humor."—New York Press.

The Florida Freeze.

"A year ago I had an orange grove for sale but I have none for sale now." said a gentleman the other evening to a group of friends in front of one of the hotels.

A laugh greeted this statement.

"I did not intend that as a joke, gentlemen, but in all seriousness. After the freeze, and up to a year ago, I would have taken little or nothing for what had been a fine ten-acre grove. To-day I would not take less than I asked before the freeze. In fact, I calculate this grove of mine will be worth 50 per cent. more two years hence than it ever was, or would have been had it not been for the freeze which killed of 50 per cent of competition that will never again be revived. I am not alone in my views on this subject. You will find a majority of the professional orange growers of the state of the same mind. Very few orange groves are for sale.

"The freeze was a blessing in disguise, not only in killing of competition that would have made the whole industry unprofitable, but in teaching the orange growers the value of diversity and economy. Some of the growers have actually demonstrated that there is more money in other crops than in oranges, and those in future will be found planting everything they can plant, reserving the orange crop as the profit crop, and if they practice the same economy they have practiced for the last year and a half by making their own corn, fodder, hay and bacon, they will grow into a prosperous, if not rich, people.

"Another comforting feature of the freeze is the fact that it put thousands of men at work. In the orange-growing portion of the State it is a rare thing to find an idle laborer. The growers employ them to rehabilitate the groves. The old dead wood has been sawed off, piled up and burned, fertilizers have been worked into the soil, and the trees are growing like magic, green, healthy and vigorous, and many of them have young oranges upon them. A more complete transformation one could hardly conjure up. Last year, if you traveled through the state, you grew sick at heart with the sight of the dead trees red as if fire had swept them. Now it does your heart good to see the beautiful green leaves fast covering every scar."—Jacksonville Union.
