tion throughout the Bisley meet were very good with only one day's heavy rain taking place. The matches are fired under hard conditions and this was particularly noticeable at the 900 and 1000 yard ranges where they fire at 30-inch bulls eye in place of the 36 used in Canada. The meet was wonderfully well conducted. Lt. Gormley said and the Canadian major prizes were nevertheless well up in the standing the various matches fired. Seven of the Aggregate and when quizzed about himself modestly stated that he had finished 124th, which is placing well when one considers the huge entry list of 1000 marksmen that took part in the meet.

The Canadian team had been entertained royally "Brick" stated. They had visited the Royal yard at Portsmouth and had been guests at dinner at the Royal Naval Barracks. They were invited to the King's Garden party at Buckingham palace but due to rain this had to be cancelled and while on this subject the speaker stated that it was the first time in 21 years that rain had forced cancellation of this event and it was an event that the entire Canadian team had been looking forward to for days; they were guests of Hon. Vincent Massey Canadian High Commissioner to London, guests at dinner at the Mayfair Hotel, London.

Rt. Hon. J. B. Bennett, had attended the Canadian Club dinner at which there were 750 in attendance and had been taken on a tour of London by the British Legion. These things would always stand out in his memory. Lt. Gormley stated as he concluded his reminiscences of the most outstanding events of the trip, with the statement that they had also been privileged to view the homecoming of the King and Queen from the office of Viscount Gort, Commander-in-Chief of the Imperial General Staff.

Asked about the war crisis in London at the time "Brick" stated that while the people were hoping for a peaceful settlement, nevertheless, at the same time Great Britain was ready for anything that might happen.

It was presumed that the Fuehrer's axis partner, Benito Mussolini, was being informed of each step of the negotiations.

Closeted With Hitler

Von Ribbentrop, the under-secretary of state, Friedrich Wilhelm Gaus, and other advisers of the Fuehrer were closeted with Hitler from late forenoon into the evening while the reply was being drafted.

Under strict agreement between London and Berlin, officials said, "absolute discretion" would be maintained as to the contents of both the British note of last night and the German reply.

This much, however, was divulged: That the Hitler response would not close the door to further negotiations.

The Poles, however, are not in on these negotiations as far as Berlin is concerned.

The Polish Ambassador in Berlin, is not in contact with the German Government nor is the German Embassy in Warsaw in contact with the Polish Government, it was officially stated.

Polish Stand Unknown

If, therefore, the Poles are agreeable to the plan of crisis solution on which Mr. Chamberlain is working, they are not making their position known directly to the German Government.

Pessimists among political observers believed in fact, that the Poles might yet form a stumbling block to the efforts being put forward by Mr. Chamberlain and Hitler.

The official view here tonight was that "it is to be hoped that the reason may yet prevail."

By "reason," however, every Nazi commentator means the acceptance of the German viewpoint.

That the Hitler reply will include more than the mere questions at issue with Poland was indicated by the emphasis which the commentators laid—with every air of approval—upon Mr. Chamberlain's reference to "a wider agreement" which would accrue to the lasting benefit of Europe and the world at large."

One unusually well informed source also called attention to the demands put forward by Hitler to Premier Daladier of France as an example of "building bridges for the Poles."

These demands were: Return of Danzig and the Corridor, and cessation of "macedonian conditions" on the German-Polish border.

Hitler, this source said, had been "especially reasonable" in his letter to Daladier.

Earlier, German demands were reported to have included the return of Polish Silesia and the reduction of an emasculated Poland to the virtual status of a protectorate.

Vote To Continue Mine Strike

GLACE BAY, N. S., Aug. 29.—Delegates from Cape Breton south collieries of Dominion Coal Company and the Company's International Pler personnel voted 17-13 at a meeting tonight to continue the strike in seven Company Mines. Two of the mines struck last week, while others went out today.

The resolution to continue the strike emerged from voting on a motion that the miners return to work for two weeks and give the district executive of the United Mine Workers of America, to which the men belong, a chance to settle the disputes underlying the walk-out.

More than 5,000 miners walked out today, backing up grievances of fellow miners in two pits which have been tied up for more than a week.

DEFENCE PLANS FOR EMERGENCY ARE PUSHED

Air Of Tense Activity Recalls Preparations Preceding Great War

OTTAWA, Aug. 29.—National preparations for a possible emergency have lent the capital in the last few days an air of tense activity, recalling desperate preparations for war in the same month of 1914.

Canada, as in the days immediately preceding the outbreak of the Great War, has taken measures to defend the security of the people. While the issue of peace or war hangs by a slender diplomatic thread across the seas, the Dominion Government has mustered the permanent forces to the sacrosanct Soldiers of the permanent force and volunteers from the militia stand guard with fixed bayonets over vital industrial plants, canals, bridges and airports.

Similar events marked the nervous days of August, 1914. Late Sir Robert Laird Borden, then Premier, wrote of the rush for preparedness in his memoirs, published in 1938.

abroad in 1912 had convinced him that war was inevitable, and that in London he had studied the sessions of the Imperial Defence Committee. Borden was called to Canada here to complete plans for the preparedness against an outbreak of hostilities.

Deputy ministers, senior civil servants, military and naval heads prepared detailed plans for a national emergency, and they were set in motion when the time came in the summer of 1914.

The Government took action, exceeding the authority it legally held, he recalled, to solve the problem.

"We established censorship" wrote Sir Robert, "declared bank notes legal tender, authorized emergency powers, and we retained the power of the proper officers to detain enemy ships, prohibited the export of articles necessary or useful for war purposes and generally took upon ourselves responsibilities far exceeding our legal powers."

"All these measures, which were wholly without legal validity until they were afterwards ratified by Parliament, were accepted throughout the country as if council had possessed the necessary authority."

At that time, he said, together with the War Measures Act, still on the statutes, which empowers the Governor in Council to do what he deems necessary, he considered proper in case of "real or apprehended war" for "the security, defence, peace order and welfare of Canada" with such orders having the full force of law.

Sir Robert Borden wrote of his precautionary measures then: "There were many rumors of German plans to invade our coast," he said, "and guns were provided from Quebec for the defence of Vancouver, Glace Bay, N. S., Saint John, N. B."

Believed To Have Solution Of Slaying

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The college campus slaying of Anya Sosoyeva, a dancer, as she was on her way last February to appear in a play, is believed solved tonight by officers.

U. U. Blalock, deputy district attorney, said a former Waterloo, printer, De Witt Clinton Cook, who is 20 and married, has confessed he killed her and that he attacked two other young women, all with a two-by-four inch cut was his intention.

Miss Sosoyeva, 24-year-old dancer and drama student, was bludgeoned as she walked across the Los Angeles city college campus to the auditorium, where she was to appear in a playlet. She lapsed into unconsciousness after muttering: "A man hit me over the head."

She died a few hours later of a basal skull fracture. Physicians said she had been criminally attacked but Cook denied today he had attacked her.

He also confessed, Blalock said, that he clubbed Della Bogard, a movie actress, a month later, and similarly attacked Myrtle Wagner, a nursemaid, in the home of her employer, Thursday night.

Cook told interrogators that he criminally attacked only the Wagner girl.

New Minister Of War Named For Japan

TOKYO, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The man who commanded Japanese forces in Central China most of last year, General Shunroku Hata, was named minister of war today as the new premier, General Nobuyuki Abe filled the key posts of his cabinet.

The new government was expected to pursue a moderate course in international affairs but to push ahead vigorously with the war in China.

The 64-year-old general, who emerged from retirement, surrounded himself with political veterans for the task of restoring domestic unity while avoiding international pitfalls.

Apparently at the word of the army General Abe reduced the number of cabinet posts from 15 to 10 through consolidation of minor ministries.

Generals Abe announced he himself, for the present, would retain the foreign affairs portfolio in the new government, which succeeds that of Baron Kichiburo Hirayama. The Hirayama government, which maintained close ties with the Rome-Berlin axis, resigned as a result of the signing of the Berlin-Moscow non-aggression pact.

The new government is expected to pursue an isolationist policy, in line with this authoritative circles believed that the ambassadors to Rome and Berlin, Toshiro Shiratori and Major General Hiroshi Oshima,

READY FOR

rose above the conversational, said Britain was ready for what may come out of the market of that, it need be or peaceful negotiation of the German Polish quarrel if Fuehrer Hitler agreed.

The Prime Minister said the issue of peace and war was still undecided. Then he added in tones that gradually took on power: "We still hope of him and will work for peace but we will not abate any jot of our resolution to hold fast to the lines which we have laid down for ourselves."

He was followed by Arthur Greenwood, who spoke for the Opposition Liberal leader. They agreed Great Britain was following the one possible course in backing the Poles and refusing to lift the face of German military aggression in the face of German aggression.

"In the most emphatic words" declared Mr. Greenwood pouncing the case of the big despatch case in front of him, "it is the situation that so far as we are concerned aggression must stop now." Our determination and for all that threats and menaces of open aggression shall come to an end—"on these issues we are adamant and immovable."

Then came the Scottish baronet who leads the Liberal party, "I cannot go on from one September to another always with a new crisis with a fresh series of demands. This must be stopped."

TENSION MUST LESSEN

Mr. Chamberlain said frontier tension must diminish as "the first prerequisite for peaceful negotiation of the quarrel arising out of Germany's demands for Danzig, the Polish Corridor to the Baltic Sea and other concessions from Poland."

He disclosed that the diplomatic exchanges that have been lying back and forth between London and Berlin because of the extreme delicacy of the situation, which issues "hang precariously in the balance." He said:

"At this moment the position is that we are waiting for the reply of Herr Hitler to our communication. (Hitler tonight in Berlin gave the reply.) Sir Neville Henderson, the British Ambassador, who was to transmit it to London."

On the nature of that reply depends whether further time will be given to the exploration of the situation and for the operation of many forces which are working for peace."

Mr. Chamberlain's 16-minute address informed the House that there had been little change in the situation since the House met last Thursday despite the flurry of diplomatic manoeuvres, and that the danger of war had not "in any way receded."

"MAIN POINTS"

The "main points" of the discussions with Hitler, he indicated, were these:

1. Hitler left "no doubt as to the urgency of settling Polish-German questions" but "was concerned to impress upon His Majesty's government his wish for a complete understanding of a complete and lasting character."

2. Britain "would naturally welcome any opportunity of discussing with Germany the several issues" looking toward a "permanent agreement."

3. "Everything turns upon the manner in which the immediate differences between Germany and Poland can be handled and the nature of the proposals which might be made for any settlement."

4. "We have made it plain that our obligations to Poland cast into formal shape by the agreement signed on Aug. 25, will be carried out."

5. Britain has repeated that German-Polish differences should be capable of solution by peaceful means and "an equitable settlement" reached by free negotiations.

6. "It is our hope that a wider agreement which would accrue to the lasting benefit of Europe and the world at large."

LAID IN URGE

Lauding British unity, determination and confidence, Mr. Chamberlain said the people's "remarkable calm" during the tense period of waiting for Hitler's decision was due to two things:

"First none of us have any doubt as to where our duty lies."

"Second we are ready for any eventuality."

Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax addressed the House of Lords along the same lines, saying "the position remains one of great anxiety and danger, but hope must not be finally abandoned, there is still hope that reason may prevail."

Oyster Growers Discuss Possibility Of Gaining Foothold In English Mart

The chief discussion at the annual meeting of the Oysters Growers Assn. of P. E. I. which was held yesterday afternoon in the Town Hall, Summerside, was the possibility of gaining a foothold in the English market. It was generally agreed that the Malpeque cup oyster was equal in flavor and shape to the famous English Whistable oyster and if the proper methods are used that Malpeque oysters would be in equal favor and shape to the famous English Whistable oyster.

Mr. Brenton Clark, President, president and submitted the directors' report. Mr. R. E. Ellis, secretary, read the minutes of the previous annual meeting.

Taking part in the discussion on export marketing were Dr. A. W. H. Needer, in charge of the biological station Ellerslie; G. Shelton Sharp, T. H. E. Inman, R. E. Ellis, Brenton Clark and others.

The address of A. E. Forthington, of the department of trade commission service, which he gave at the annual field day last week, was read and discussed in detail. This gave valuable information of the English markets and it was generally agreed that with the rapid development in the oyster areas under cultivation that the island growers would soon be in a position to cater to the export trade.

Needer pointed out that no attempt should be made to ship oysters to the British market unless growers were assured of ample supply. He said the Malpeque oyster would meet with approval of the English consumer but a continuity of supply was important. He suggested some sort of cooperation among the growers, or some form of group action would be an excellent method to avoid price cutting and to assure a standard grade. The high class trade in England demanded a select cup oyster and, we have thought it would be a good plan to get in touch with some reputable firm that caters to the best trade and offer to supply a certain quantity to as large a number of select oysters would be a safe estimate and as the increase in production warranted to develop larger markets.

He thought the trade commission service could render valuable assistance. T. H. E. Inman suggested the Dept. of Fisheries might help to develop the British market. It was pointed out that a better price was obtained

Downing Street Closed To Public

LONDON, Aug. 29.—(CP)—Approximately 100 policemen closed Downing Street to the public tonight, driving large crowds to the ends of the short street where Prime Minister Chamberlain lives at No. 10.

Mounted policemen stood guard at the entrances to the street.

There was no immediate explanation but the move was regarded as a precaution to safeguard the privacy of the Prime Minister.

Several persons have been detained during the past week for creating disturbances in the crowd that eagerly watched the movements of statesmen and cheered Mr. Chamberlain.

One man was arrested after making his way inside the official residence and another caused a "bomb" scare by throwing a satchel filled with black rubber balls and "peace" slogans chalked on them.
