I don't urge you not to look at other stocks, but merely ask—as a favor to me and a duty you owe yourself—not to purchase until you have seen my Bargains. See what others offer, learn the price on such articles as you need, but under no circumstances invest a dollar without first seeing my elegant attractions.

I don't fear criticism or comparison; on the contrary, I invite it. I can better make you understand the inducements I offer after an inspection of the goods and prices of other houses in my line.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

School Inspection.

SIR,—When Mr. Cain examined our school on Monday, 20th inst., he found it (so he said) in a very unsatisfactory condition. Now, I think it was as much the fault of the inspector as of the scholars, and if he had examined us in the branches we were studying, he would have found us far more proficient than he did. For instance, he never as much as mentioned Latin, French, Geometry or Algebra; and, as for Geography, he might as well have left it alone. "One of the first questions he asked was, 'What kind of a soil has Brazil?' The answer was, 'Very fertile.' 'Is it much cultivated?'—'No, sir.' 'For what reason?'—'Because of the indolence of the people and the bad government.' 'But,' said he, 'if the best farmers in the world were placed there, they could not cultivate it, because the sun is so hot that nothing will grow there.' Now, Campbell's Atlas, the prescribed authority on the subject for our school, says: 'There is no country so favored by nature as Brazil, and yet so little improved; and that three-fourths of the whole population are Indians and negroes,' which would seem to explain it far better than Mr. Cain's theory. As for Arithmetic, I think if he had given us a few exercises in stocks, commission, fellowship, or cube root, instead of one or two puzzling exercises in vulgar fractions and circulating decimals, he would have shown more sense and fitness for the office he now holds. For the branches that we did correctly, we received no commendation—it not being even mentioned in the address. I for one (and I express the opinion of the school) do not call that a fair examination, and trust that when Mr. Montgomery honours us by visiting our school, that we can show him that we are not such blockheads as we will be represented in the report.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space in your valuable paper, I remain,
Yours truly,
A SCHOLAR.

Union Road Concert.

ON Thursday evening last the members of the Division of Sons of Temperance at Union Road, assisted by the York and Winsloe Road Divisions, held a concert in their hall at Union Road. The neat little hall was tastefully decorated with evergreens and mottoes of "Welcome," and Christmas greeting, in a manner that reflects great credit on the taste and enterprise of those having the affair in charge. The room was crowded with people from all quarters, and the programme consisted of choice choruses, solos, readings, recitations and dialogues, which were well rendered throughout, and received hearty applause from a generous audience. While the lighter pieces provoked the heartiest laughter, the more solemn efforts of the performers did not fail at times to elicit deep and soul-moving responses from some of the more susceptible occupants of the back seats. Altogether the concert was a grand success, and much credit is due to all who took part.

Grand Tracadie School Examination.

The semi-annual examination of the above school took place on Thursday, the 23rd inst., in the presence of school trustees, householders and a few visitors.

The scholars were examined in the various branches taught in our common schools, and by their clear and prompt answers to all questions asked them during the course of the examination, showed clearly that those branches were studied with perseverance and zeal. To comment personally on any of the scholars, from the senior to the junior classes, would be incompatible with that justice that they one and all merited, suffice to say that the scholars are an honor to the District, and certainly reflect credit on their teacher, Miss Georgina McInnis, and ranks her one of the foremost among the many pains-taking and energetic teachers in this Province, whose glorious mission is to keep the sacred lamp of learning burning.

At the close of the examination John A. McDonald, Esq., made a few short and spirited remarks respecting the progress made in the school during the last six months. He was followed by other residents of the District, who warmly complimented the teacher on the efficiency of the school.

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected, and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when these diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price 75 cents, large bottles.

I HAD a dreadful cough, and raised a considerable amount of blood and matter, besides, I was very thin, and so weak I could scarcely go about the house. This was the case of a man with consumption arising from liver complaint. He recovered his health completely by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Thousands of others bear similar testimony.

An Irish Tour.

MR. BLAINE'S LATEST SCHEME FOR OBTAINING THE PRESIDENCY.

Mr. Blaine will not return to Washington this winter. He expects to remain in Augusta until the spring at least. He finds the quiet and seclusion of that place very restful to him after the long years of political excitement at the national capital. Moreover, he is gathering material for the history of the war of 1812. The data are nearly all in hand, and it is probable the opening chapters will be written immediately after the holidays. Mr. Blaine will go to Europe next autumn. He will be the guest of distinguished men in Great Britain and on the continent. He will spend the major portion of his time in France, Germany and Ireland. It is expected by his friends that his presence in Ireland will create a great furor. The effect of this upon the Irish race in America, it is thought, will be to add greatly to Mr. Blaine's popularity with them. In Germany he is expected to make friends, but his piece de resistance will be his visit to Ireland. The present programme is for him to return to the United States about sixty days prior to the meeting of the next Republican convention.

"If anyone thinks Blaine is out of the Presidential race in 1888," said one of that gentleman's friends to-day, "he is mightily mistaken. Mr. Blaine never made such strenuous efforts in his life to secure the nomination as he is now making. And he will get it, too, with even greater ease than he did it two years ago."

A Sore Trial.

Justin McCarthy, M. P., is a man of uniformly genial temper which nothing can disturb. If he were not such a man he would have been vexed Saturday. He was waiting behind the stage at the Academy of Music, in Brooklyn, on the evening of that day, surrounded by Mr. Beecher, ex-Mayor Low and other members of the committee under whose auspices he was about to deliver his lecture on the "Cause of Ireland," when a man, whom he did not know and evidently had not seen before, advanced and shook hands with him, at the same time presenting him with a business card, upon which his name and the nature of his trade were set forth in large letters. The honorable member for Londonderry took the card mechanically, but as the place was nearly dark he kept it in his hand without looking at it, not, however, forgetting to say "Thank you" to the giver. But the latter insisted that he should read it, whereupon Mr. McCarthy, apologizing to those with whom he had been speaking, stepped aside a little toward the light, and holding the piece of pasteboard to his eyes saw that it was a business card about tobacco and cigars. He said not a word. Taking out a case he placed the card in it, and looking at the man smiled with the most gracious dignity and said in a bland tone, "Thank you, sir, very much."—N. Y. Tribune.

The German Army Bill.

The North German Gazette says that in Government circles at Berlin there exists no doubt whatever of the necessity of maintaining the Army bill at any price. It is reported that Dr. Windthorst has informed General Von Schellendorf, minister of war, that if the Government should proceed with the formation of new cadres for the 1st of April the Reichstag would be certain to give a bill of indemnity, but the Centre would go no further. The commission of staff officers continues making arrangements for new troops just as if the bill was already passed. The War ministry is hastening the production of repeating rifles. The Post states that the workmen in the factories at Spandau have been refused the usual Christmas holidays. It is expected that the Landtag will meet on January 14. Among the bills to be introduced is a new measure for an organic revision of the May laws. Berlin will be illuminated on January 1 in honor of the eightieth anniversary of Emperor William's entry into the army. It is rumored that the Emperor will seize the occasion to make an address to the Reichstag deploring its attitude on the military bill.

The Imperial Colonial Institute Scheme.

Dr. Selwyn, C. M. G., who has just returned from England, speaks in glowing terms of praise of the Canadian exhibit and the effect it produced on the English mind. He favors the establishment of an Imperial Colonial Institute, but objects to its having to depend on Government appropriations. As an alternative scheme, he proposes that the people be asked to contribute according to their means, and says:—"Objections were raised to this idea on account of the difficulty that would be experienced in collecting the money. To overcome that, let every postmaster in the British Empire be given power to issue postal orders to subscribers for any amount they wish, take the subscription, and give the cancelled order as a voucher. Then let all the postmasters send the amounts to the headquarters in London, and I think that if this plan was followed out the three million pound sterling which will be required to erect suitable buildings and endow the institution could be raised without any trouble whatever. Then the institution would be beyond the chance of financial trouble."
