

over night. Yesterday forenoon he went to the house of his sister, where, getting into the slight altercation, he was seen to revolve a revolver and fired. The shot not taking effect, he seized an axe, and with its edge, aimed a murderous blow at her head and face. The blow took effect just below the brows, cutting across the nose and eyes, and striking down the right eye, with the floor a scarp, the axe repeatedly into her body, cutting diagonally across the breast from her left shoulder, the bloody weapon going completely through it more than one stroke, and cutting the heart from her body, laying it in a quivering bloody mass at her side. The children in the house fled to the neighbors, in the beginning of the terrible tragedy, and when help came—but came too late—the father, with blood and his weapon in his hand, was soon brought before Justice Daniel Corry, who, upon hearing the facts, immediately ordered the prisoner to be sent to the jail in this city. As he entered the jail, which, the husband of the murdered woman met him on the threshold, and there learned of the terrible scene just enacted at his home. The murderer was securely bound with cords, and brought to the jail, where the blood-stained weapons were removed and he was committed to the cell. In conversation with our reporter, he exhibited the most unaccountable indifference and coolness, expressing his way at the deed, and declaring that he did it partly in retaliation for the alleged act of his sister poisoning her parents in Ireland, as he said, and partly for fear of his own life here. There is probably no truth in this statement. He declares with the utmost coolness, that he was glad that he had done it, and exhibited a nonchalance perfectly beyond its enormity. To carry out this positively sickening atrocity, he complained of the manner in which he had been bound and brought into the city, and he was treated severely for the manner in which he had been treated.

The monster is about 38 years of age, has a very repulsive demeanor and cold-blooded, and is said to have been married, and to have a child in his home. He has four children somewhere in that State, and had a wife, who has been missing for some time, and the suspicion now awakened that he put her away by foul means. His present victim was 42 or 43 years of age, and a reputed, quiet, industrious woman. The utter atrociousness of this deed, that shames our human nature, has excited the indignation of the whole country. Few such deeds are to be found in the annals of even savage cruelty. There has been no explanation vouchsafed for the hideous act. The worst that could be said is, that he was a man of a very low order of intellect, and that he was a man of a very low order of intellect, and that he was a man of a very low order of intellect.

Mrs. Grinders was recently executed at Pittsburgh, Pa., for poisoning. The last scene is thus described:— "The wretched woman fell a distance of about three feet. Owing to an oversight in adjusting the rope connected with the upright under the trap, her fall was not sudden; the neck was not dislocated, and she died after a struggle of about five or six minutes, and writhings for several minutes were agonizing to behold. The knot, too, had slipped, and the circulation of the blood on the right side of the neck was wholly unimpeded. Her death was literally a happy one. After expiring a moment, she moved her hands, as if to clasp them in prayer—another indication of the religious sentiments with which she was inspired, and which sought at that terrible instant of agony to accompany her flight with the outer world of devotion. A series of fearful struggles succeeded, during which she caught, with her right hand, the edge of the fallen trap, and grasped and held it for some time. At length the struggles became fainter, died away, and she finally expired. Her pulse continued to beat until twelve minutes after the falling of the trap; during which time she was alive, but it is to be hoped, not conscious of suffering. Half an hour the body lay in the air, slowly turning round, until it was in the prescribed time having placed, it was lowered to the ground and placed in the coffin, which was resting on a couple of chairs immediately behind the gallows. Here the cap was removed from the face, and the features were found to present a most singular appearance. The same inevitable smile was there. The mouth and eyes were closed as evenly as in life, and were not not for the black and blue marks of the cord around the throat, and the left ear, which would have seemed to have died a natural death. The Sheriff allowed the hands across the breast; the dress was tucked in on either side of the lifeless form; the face was drawn over the coffin, and so vanished from human sight the last of this wretched criminal.

The New York papers relate a sorrowful case of death during the recent outbreak in that city. Mrs. Lafferty had four children, one of whom was an infant. At a late hour of the night she arose from bed in order to cover her three oldest children, and again retired with her infant at her breast, and left her infant as found frozen to death with the innocent babe endeavouring to suck from the breast of the dead mother. Her husband, being a night watchman, did not come home till daylight. So tightly were the arms of the mother around her infant, that it required the united efforts of two men to remove them from their cold embrace.

A great two months' excursion is planned to leave New York on May 1st, and finally return chartered for the purpose, England, Ireland, France, Italy, Russia, Egypt, the Holy Land, and, in fact, all the countries of special interest in Europe, Asia, and Africa, will be briefly visited. One hundred or more of the most prominent will be taken. The proposed trip, as ordinarily made, would consume two years, and $7000 in gold, for a single traveller.

NOVA SCOTIA. EXECUTION OF DOUGLASS, THE MURDERER. The following account of the execution of the Cook, Harry Dougllass, for the murder of the Captain of the Brig Zebra, is furnished by the Halifax Evening Express of the 24th January. The execution took place in the jail yard on the morning of that day. The Express states:— "About half-past six o'clock the gates were opened, and the public admitted. There were not more than two hundred persons present. The gallows was erected at south side of the jail grounds, and two companies of the 17th Regt. formed two sides of the gallows. "After all the preparations were made, the culprit came forward from the jail prisoned, supported on either side by the Very Rev. Dr. Hainan and the Rev. Mr. Carmody, both of whom attended the scaffold. His name being called, and Dougllass having expressed his intention of speaking, silence was immediately preserved. "He said he was there this morning to suffer for a crime which, if he had not been repeatedly urged by his friends, he would never have committed by him. He reiterated this statement again, though in different words, and declared that his published confession was true. The clergyman, sheriff and other officials having shown to him the money, they descended the steps, and the hangman then took his place in the box, and at a given signal the drop fell, and in a few minutes the unfortunate man ceased to breathe. In slinking hands with the hangmen, the rope slipped, and the knot got placed at the back of the neck. This caused a convulsive struggle before death ensued. "We learn that Dougllass was very grateful to the Very Rev. Dr. Hainan for unflinching attention since his conviction. He was very kind, and the Rev. Mr. Carmody, who was with him until eleven o'clock last night, and again at four o'clock this morning. Yesterday the Archbishop, assisted by the Rev. Messrs. Hainan and Carmody, administered to him the Sacrament of Confirmation. When the body was cut down it was placed in a deal coffin, and interred this afternoon, in the Roman Catholic Cemetery. "The corpse was buried with perfect resignation, deeply penitent, and fully satisfied to give up his own life for the one he had taken. "A farmer living between Lyons and Geneva had sold his farm for $4,000, and on the morning of the murder had started West to purchase another farm. About 8 o'clock in the evening three men, dressed in soldiers' clothes, entered the house and murdered the man's wife and child, and then proceeded to ransack the house. A neighbour, living across the road, hearing a noise, rushed over there, taking with him a revolver. Upon entering the house the first sight that met his gaze was the bodies of the murdered mother and child, weltering in blood. The murderers, in the meantime, were upstairs, and had started to come down when the killing force entered, and fired upon them. One instantly fell, and mortally wounding the other two. The name of the murdered woman we did not learn, neither was the man able to tell the name of the person who has fearfully avenged her.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON THE NIAGARA. CLIFTON, C. W., Jan. 16, 1866.—On Saturday evening about dusk, the ferry-boat at Fort Erie was running on account of the ice, Mr. W. A. Thomson, the Vice President of the Erie and Niagara railroad, and one of their foremen, William Warren, and a ferryman, attempted to cross in a small boat. When two-thirds of the way across some large cakes of ice came down and stove in the boat, when poor Warren sunk. Mr. Thomson and the ferryman succeeded in getting on two separate pieces of ice, and mortally wounding the latter, where their repeated cries for help were heard, and they were rescued.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Important for the Delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution—the damp, cold days of the autumn and winter, or the drier, dry days of the spring. Maintained by the seasons good health may be interrupted by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine is a most reliable remedy to convince the ailing and desponding that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain, or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to our first-aid medicine, health may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

CRIME IN THE ARMY.—In the year 1864, the average number of effective of the British army was 204,075, the number of convictions was 17,484, or 8.57 per cent. of the effective strength; this is a proportion which is lower than that in the previous year, but above the average of the preceding seven years. There were 465 instances of corporal punishment; being 0.22 per cent. of the effective strength; this proportion is below the average. The number of men marked as deserters was 1,000, or 0.49 per cent. of the effective strength; and this proportion also is below the average.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EXAMINER. SIR.—In handing you the reports on the late Tenant League Trials, which you published with so much realism, I quite inadvertently omitted to extend from my notes the very able speech made by the Hon. Solicitor General, Mr. T. Heath Haviland. If you think it is not too late yet to give the speech I will prepare it for your next issue.

Yours truly, A. McNEILL.

TO "THE IRISHMAN AT HOME." Many thanks to you, Mr. Post LaPage, I could not have believed it in this age, when West had published my name New Year's. That the Government post would have put'd them with praise; Nor dream'd my maiden process in the same strick would be; Set, with Honorable E. Whelan and D'Arcy McTeague; And could have laugh'd, till my both sides were sore; To see my production on the same self with "The Irishman at Home"; Only you know, Paddy dear, for your merriment can't fail; That Tim's been long dead—"dead as a door nail"; While I am here, and you can't be a whit drier; To be "stopped and label'd" and put by mung; You did not intend this, I fancy, so then, I must just put it down "as a slip of the pen." But when I read all your praise, I exclaimed— "Dehone, Sure Paddy had a brass 'lick of the cold barny stone'!" Or, only I know he gives int'rance the lash—I'd be sure he'd indulged a true "Brandy snuff"; Because I'm sure you can't be a whit drier; Must sustain his wind with something better than "Swags"; Well as old people say—"wonders won't cease, More in this cold climate, than in the mild one of Greece"; Now while Mr. Piper, put a rest on your nose, While I know that you said others have done me a wrong; Who could a report add to it many a word? Or a kind of seagatoo that are blam'd day and night; For all sorts of stories, whether wrong or right? "They's a mighty conveyance," as Paddy would say; "Whin one wants to square out ov' ev'rin' a lie!" But take up them rhymes, put your spectacles on, And read them again, as you ought to read, John; When you had some two voices were deen'd out of tune; But their owners didn't know it, or they would have said, for they're fond of good music, and would'n't allow Any jarring to fall on their friend's ears below; Yet, while the words frolic'd the discord, 'twould appear these two Were allow'd to carry it on from the old church to the new; So 'twas put into rhyme, that thro' the eye they might hear; What nobody want'd to put in the ear; I know 'twould be a good thing, if it were so to do, But that some one must tell them, or how would they know? Therefore 'twere vain, almost absurd, to expect Reformation by those who set a warfare of deaf; These are the plain, unvarnished facts of the case, And were designed to improve, and not to disgrace; I'm not an admirer of the musical law; But I know a sweet voice from a file on a saw! The former will start a perturbed breeze, And the latter will turn a man into a sea; While nine times in ten, till the ruffled one lies, The louder, and harder, and longer you file; But if the major part say let the discord have scope, The minor must only shut their musical ears, And just feed their souls on the sermons and prayers; I'm sure you'd do it, Paddy, that you would!

A word which might bear an unedged brother's cheek; You need not be jealous, but I may wish to cheat You out of your smile, as Post Laureate; Of your native love! I'm sure Scotland's rich there; She has some you know, with milder rich and rare; One thing I have found out, and that is, that the Muse can't be bribed by the rich or the poor; While she kindly commences with, and shows her bright; To a poor, printed News Boy, while at work on his case, Or she designs to go with him 'mong Gentiles or Where'er he's occasion to deliver the News; Which is a high honor—at least it is so; For earth's untold treasure, but blunbly part, Will kindly instruct me till the end of life's day!
