Amendment To Highways Act Strongly Opposed

Opposition appeared from all sides of the House when an amendment to the Public Works and Highways Act sought to give peace officers the right to arrest without warrant anyone operating a motor vehicle in contravention of the regulations. The amendment was introduced in committee during the morning session of the Legislature yesterday with Hon. Donald MacKinnon, Minister of Public Works and Highways, as the promoter.

Several members thought the amendment went too far in that "it gives too much authority to young and inexperienced Mounties," the opinion was freely expressed that they might not use "common sense" in many cases. So many objections and suggestions were offered that it was agreed to simply report progress and bring the amendment back in another form.

FLORAL EMBLEM: In promoting an amendment to The Floral Emblem Act Premier Jones said that the word in the Act "Hirautum" should be deleted as there was no such word. It got in by mistake as the word intended was "Hirsutum." However, he believed the House should simply substitute the word "Acaule" in its place. The members just sat back as the Premier and Dr. MacMillan engaged in a learned discussion of various Greek and Latin derivations.
