Local Librarian Named President

Douglas Boylan of Confederation Centre Library has been named president of the Atlantic Provinces Library Association.

Mr. Boylan was elected to the position at the annual meeting of the association in St. John's, Nfld., recently. William Ledwell of the Prince Edward Island Libraries was elected vice-president for P.E.I.

The Atlantic Provinces Library Association, formed in 1919, represents public, university, high school, and special librarians in the four Atlantic provinces.

Delegates discussed a number of problems facing the various types of libraries in the region. Topics discussed included methods of photo-copying, information retrieval by machines re-classification procedures for university libraries, and state support for public libraries.

Dorothy Cullen, provincial librarian, participated in the presentation of an illustrated paper entitled "Library Services Compared: Lapland, Russia, and Newfoundland.".

Highlight of the conference was the presentation of a presidential gavel to the association by the Memorial University of Newfoundland Library. The gavel was made by Newfoundland craftsmen and is shaped from local wood. The handle of the gavel is hollow and contains an illuminated scroll listing past presidents and secretaries of APLA. Mounted on the head of the gavel are the provincial crests of the four Atlantic provinces. The gavel is contained in a specially bound book which is hollowed-out in the centre, and is handsomely bound in calf and red morroco.

Librarians in Prince Edward Island will host the 1966 meeting of the Atlantic Provinces Library Association.
