Weak, Tired, Nervous

Women, who seem to be all worn out, will find in purified blood, made rich and healthy by Hood's Sarsaparilla, permanent relief and strength. The following is from a well known nurse:

"I have suffered for years with female complaints and kidney troubles and I have had a great deal of medical advice during that time, but have received little or no benefit. A friend advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and I began to use it, together with Hood's Pills. I have realized more benefit from these medicines than from anything else I have ever taken. From my personal experience I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla to be a most complete blood purifier." MRS. C. CROMPTON, 71 Cumberland St., Toronto, Ontario.

STEVENSON'S LAST LETTER.

A Pathetic Message to Sidney Colvin From the Dying Exile in Samoa.

October, 1894.—I know I am at a climacteric for all men who live by their wits, so I do not despair. But the truth is I am pretty near useless at literature. Were it not for my health, which made it impossible, I could not find it in my heart to forgive myself that I did not stick to an honest, common-place trade when I was young, which might have now supported me during all these ill years. But do not suppose me to be down in anything else; only, for the nonce, my skill deserts me, such as it is, or was. It was a very little dose of inspiration, and a pretty little trick of style, long lost, improved by the most heroic industry. So far, I have managed to please the journalistis. But I am a fictitious article and have long known it. I am read by journalists, by my fellow-novelists, and by boys; with these, incipet et explicit my vogue. Good thing, anyway, for it seems to have sold the edition. And I look forward confidently to an aftermath; I do not think my health can be so hugely improved without some subsequent improvement in my brains. Though, of course, there is the possibility that literature is a morbid secretion, and abhors health! I do not think it is possible to have fewer illusions than I. I sometimes wish I had more. They are amusing. But I cannot take myself seriously as an artist; the limitations are so obvious. . I did take myself seriously as a workman of old, but my practice has fallen off. I am now an idler and cumberer of the ground; it may be excused to me perhaps by 20 years of industry and ill-health, which have taken the cream off the milk. * * *

I am almost ready to call the world an error. Because? Because I have not drugged myself with successful work, and there are all kinds of trifles buzzing in my ear, unfriendly trifles from the least to the—well, to the pretty big. All these that touch me are Pretty Big; and yet none touch me in the least if rightly looked at, except the one eternal burthen to go on making an income. If I could find a place where I could lie down and give up for (say) two years, and allow the sainted public to support me, if it were a lunatic asylum, wouldn't I go, just! But we can't have both extremes at once, worse luck! I should like to put my savings into a proprietarian investment, and retire in the meanwhile into a communistic retreat, which is double-dealing. But you men with salaries don't know how a family weighs on a fellow's mind.—McClure's for November.

Cured by Sun Baths.

The liveliest passenger on board the steamship City of Peking was Humphrey Kendrick of Los Angeles. He had just returned from Japan, a country that he loves, because a few years ago it completely cured him of paralysis.

When Kendrick found that he had lost control of his limbs he determined to spend all the money he had to get relief. It was easy enough to tell what had brought the paralysis upon him, for the first stroke came soon after he had a bad tumble on horseback. The animal fell in such a way as to catch Kendrick squarely beneath it, severely wrenching and straining his spine. Kendrick found that he was much better in hot weather, and this led him to go to the Hawaiian Island. He was so much better there when it was hot that he concluded to go to a still warmer place. Somebody told him that the south coast of Japan in the summer was the place.

For many months during that hottest of hot summers Kendrick engaged in a most unique attempt to regain his health. For days at a time he would lie positively stripped to the skin in the hot sand on the seashore of Japan. He got so that he rather liked it. As the days passed he kept getting better. Then he took to seeking exercise. A donkey was secured, and Kendrick, stark naked, would ride the animal up and down the beach. It was almost too hot for the beast, but Kendrick did not seem to mind it. The result was complete recovery. Kendrick came back feeling like a schoolboy, and much infatuated with the country of the Japs.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Pasteur's Microbe Fad.

Pasteur was a very great man in the sixties, or, perhaps, four or five years into the seventies. He was master of himself under all circumstances, and possessed his soul in patience. His plain, unvarnished manner was very attractive to those with a feeling for the life-long habit of self-restraint, and so was the reverse of vulgar.

One hardly ever met Pasteur in society. He only asked intimate friends to his house. Mme. Pasteur, who entered into all his ideas, and was an invaluable helpmate when he studied silk worms' diseases, humored his table fads (for fads they were) about microbes. He would not eat without having knives, forks and plates scalded, the napkin heated almost to the scorching point, the bread toasted and served hot out of an oven, and the dessert fruit washed in water that had been boiled and then hermetically corked. An antiseptic liquor ended the repast. This was unwholesome, microbes being necessary to good digestion. There are friendly microbes, as well as unfriendly. The good may, after they have served us, turn against us if they find our vital resistance feeble. They are like the policeman who protects the rich man with zeal and "runs in" the pauper.—London Truth.

Not Born to be Drowned.

A man named Paquette, who works on the boom just above the first dam at Marinette, had a miraculous escape from drowning. His work is driving the logs into the sluice, but he missed his footing and fell into the water. The current was so swift that he was carried into the sluice and dashed through it into the raging waters below. It was remarkable how he escaped, but it seems he grasped a log and clung on for dear life. After bobbing below the water for some distance he finally reached smooth sailing, and was towed ashore with the assistance of fellow workmen. Those who saw him go over say they never expected to see him alive. Paquett could not swim a stroke. He was on deck again the next morning for work, none the worse for his adventure.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

LITERARY NOTES

A complete and immediate revolution of transportation methods, involving a reduction of freight charges on grain from the West to New York of from 50 to 60 per cent., is what is predicted in the November Cosmopolitan. The plan proposes using light and inexpensive corrugated iron cylinders, hung on a slight rail supported on poles from a cross arm—the whole system involving an expense of not more than fifteen hundred dollars a mile for construction. The rolling stock is equally simple and comparatively inexpensive. Continuous lines of cylinders moving with no internal friction to speak of, would carry more grain in a day than a quadruple track railway. This would constitute a sort of grain pipe line. The Cosmopolitan also points out the probable abolition of street cars before the coming horseless carriage, which can be operated by a boy on asphalt pavements at a total expense for labor, oil and interest of not more than a dollar a day.

Cured of Chronic Catarrh.

A Remarkable Cure—J. W. Jennison, Gilford, spent between $200 and $300 in consulting doctors; tried Dixon's and all other treatments, but got no benefit. One box of Chase's Catarrh Cure did me more good than all other remedies; in fact, I consider myself cured, and with a 25-cent box at that.

Father Ritchot's Explanation.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 19.—Father Richot gives a simple explanation of the alleged forgery of the diary which has been cited as bearing on the fourth bill of rights. He publishes an affidavit denying that he altered the date for the purpose of deception. Father Ritchot says the entire date "April 28, 1870," was not written till some years after, as he left space on the first page intending to address them to some federal minister. He did not do so, and in writing the date some years after, doubtless in 1873; force of habit in making three induced him to make a wrong date. He, however, corrected it on the spot by making a cipher over the three.

Cured Weak Back for 25 Cents

For two years I was dosed, pilled and plastered for weak back, scalding urine and constipation, without benefit. One box of Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills relieved, three boxes cured. R. J. Smith, Toronto. One pill a dose, price 25 cents.

Emperor William is said to have written to the Prince of Wales expressing the hope that the Duke of York's next son will have the name of Shakespeare bestowed upon him in addition to his other names.

MARK IT WELL.

A Development Peculiar to the Present Generation Dangerous and Often Fatal.

As each generation comes and goes it is marked by changes, developments and discoveries unknown to its predecessors. From a physical standpoint one of the most to be dreaded conditions and peculiar for its rapid increase during the present generation, is when the mind labors under the delusion of persecution, continual restlessness, pain in the back and head, twitching of the muscles of the face and hands, furred tongue, breath foul and heavy, nausea and further indications of stomach trouble. There may be delirium, convulsions or sinking spells. Medical authorities apply different names to the conditions that are unintelligible to the average reader. The actual fact is the demoralized and dangerous state of the system is due to the accumulation of "Body Poison" in the blood that should and would be thrown off by the Kidneys if in a healthy condition. In order to restore health, strike at the root of the disease with Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the only medicine known that will control the changes going on in the Kidneys, enabling them to furnish for the whole system blood free from disease-breeding poison, building up the shattered condition of nerves, and relieving mental depression Price 25c., sold by all dealers. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Blobbs—Has Scribbler's new play much local coloring and atmosphere? Slobbs—Lots of it; but judging from the opening night, the coloring is very blue and the atmosphere decidedly frosty.—Philadelphia Record.

Mr. Spinks—Well, Willie, has your sister made up her mind to go to the concert with me? Willie—Yep. She's made up her mind, and she's makin' up her face now. She'll be down in a minute.—Great Divide.

Widow—Do you know, Mr. Caller, that you remind me very much of my late husband? Mr. Caller (looking at watch)—Why, it is late, isn't it? Excuse me. I really had no idea of the time.—Richmond Dispatch.

He—Chicago has some of the most beautiful cafes to be found in the country. She—Now I understand what you meant when you wrote that you were "drinking in the beauties of Chicago."—Yonkers Statesman.

Miss Kostique—Do you know when I see you looking so happy it reminds me of what a great poet once said. Cholly Saphead—Indeed! Pway, what was it? Miss K.—Where ignorance is bliss.—Philadelphia Record.

She—I think you would better tell father that we are engaged, dearest. He—Why? She—His lease runs out on the first of the month, and he wants to know whether to take a larger house or not.—Harper's Bazar.

Mr. Huggins, entering parlor with Miss Kissam on his arm—I have just had a taste of Paradise; I've been to your conservatory, Major. The Major—Yes, I notice you got some powder on your nose in getting it.—Yonkers Statesman.

Mrs. Gray—How could you go and tell what I told you to that gossiping Mrs. Black? I thought you could keep a secret. Mrs. Green—So I can; but that wasn't a secret, you know, after you had told it to me.—Boston Transcript.

"You can see for yourself that these goods are marked down," said the salesman, pointing to the altered price marks. "They appear to be all marked up," replied the customer, as he looked at the many hieroglyphics.—Yonkers Statesman.

Good-looking young girl—Will you do something for me, Mr. B.? "With pleasure, my dear Miss A. What is it?" "Well, I wish you would propose to me so that I may crow over my cousin. I promise I won't accept you."—Fliegende Blaetter.

The son-in-law (gratefully)—I don't know what I should have done if you hadn't given us all this furniture. The Father-in-law—That's so, my boy; without it my daughter couldn't have given you much of a home.—New York Herald.

"Johnny," called his mother; "quit using that bad language." "Why," replied the boy, "Shakespeare said what I just did." "Well," replied the mother, growing infuriated, "you should quit going with him—he's no companion for you."—New York Herald.

"I see there is a prospect of a hard coal combine this winter," said the man who lives in a flat, as he stopped the householder at the street corner. "Naturally," replied the householder, bitterly. "Any coal combine is sure to be hard."—Chicago Evening Post.

"A trout is the queerest fish," said Brickley, "it will get hooked badly, and bite again." The Widow Smith looked at him absent-mindedly for a minute, and then added: "Yes, but the poor fellow's to be excused; it's human nature, you know."—Adams Freeman.

Mr. Wickwire—I wonder what are the feelings of a deposed sovereign? Mrs. Wickwire—I imagine the contrast is something similar to that felt when one has bought all one wants and is merely sitting around in the way, waiting for her change.—Indianapolis Journal.

Ragson Tatters—Wa'at's become o' Bonesy? Rollingstone Nomoss—Did'n yer hear? Why, dey had ter put 'im in de loonertic asylum. "What fur?" "Why, he swiped a box frum de grocery store and carried it ten blocks, an' w'en he opened it it wuz full o' soap."—Philadelphia Record.

Boy (on the stump, who has been patiently watching the strange angler for about an hour)—You ain't caught anything, 'ave yer? Stranger—No, not yet, my boy. Boy—There wasn't no water in that pond till it rained last night.—Los Angeles Herald.

Mr. Slaveser (to his wife)—Clara, I wish you would tell Bridget not to cook the biscuits quite so brown in future. Mrs. Slaveserf—Why, John, What are you thinking of? Bridget and I haven't been on speaking terms since that morning I forgot myself and spoke hastily to her when she broke that old china saucer I had had so many years.—Boston Transcript.

POOR DIGESTION leads to nervousness, chronic dyspepsia and great misery. The best remedy is HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

Samuel Staples, a sober citizen of Deer Isle, in the prohibition State of Maine, avers that the other day he dug out of one pest hole 259 snakes of various kinds and sizes. There were green and striped and brown snakes, and they measured from two and a half inches to eighteen inches in length.
