The Wife of Moses.

We must examine the Talmud and the books of the commentators before we can answer the question of a correspondent: "Did Moses take a negro woman to wife?" We learn from the twelfth chapter of the book of Numbers that certain persons "spoke against Moses because of the Ethiopian woman whom he had married, for he married an Ethiopian woman," but it must be remembered that all the people of the extensive region anciently known as Ethiopia were not negroes. The Cushite race lived there in the time of Moses. Perhaps the wife whom the Lawgiver of Israel married was a Cushite or Sabean. If, however, she was of the negro race, we cannot help it.—New York Sun.

Ivory Ball Making a Slow Process.

It does not look reasonable that 6 to 12 months should be needed to make a billiard ball, but a first class ball cannot be manufactured in less time, owing to the tendency of carved ivory to shrink. If it shrank equally, a ball could be cut and polished in a few hours, but it does not, the shrinkage being greater in the direction of the width than of the length of the trunk. A ball must thus be roughly shaped, then kept for a number of months, until the shrinkage process has been completed, when the fine cutting and polishing may be done.—Chicago Tribune.

A Simple Remedy.

An effective means of stopping bleeding from the nose is to move the jaws up and down as if going through the process of mastication. If the patient is a child, put some paper in his mouth and tell him to chew it thoroughly. This method is ridiculous simple, yet it has never been known to fail even in the most aggravated cases.—Vulgarisateur.

Confined to the House.

A—You look very pale and thin!
B—Yes, I have been in a very bad way. Yesterday I went out for the first time during the last 12 months.
A—Poor fellow! Pray, what was the matter with you?
B—One year in jail, that was the matter.—Monarch.

Qualifications For High Office.

From Harper's Weekly.

By way of object-lessons, let the citizens of New York ask themselves this question: As our political parties are now organized, would George Washington have any chance of preferment in either of them? Not the slightest. The Republican machine as well as Tammany Hall would set him down as an intolerable "duke," a pharisee. A man of such spemishness in selecting persons for public places, and of such opinions as expressed in the Farewell address about the "baneful effects of the spirit of party," and about "the interest and duty of a wise people to discourage and restrain it," would be scorned as a mugwump, and an utterly unfit person for the confidence of a regular party organization—ay, as an enemy of democratic government. In the Republican case of the New York Legislature George Washington would, in the contest for the speakership, have been laughed at as a competitor of Thomas C. Platt; as he would, while the Legislature was controlled by the Democratic machine, have been an absolutely hopeless candidate as against David B. Hill or Edward Murphy. And in the city of New York it would require a successful revolt against both regular organizations to make George Washington Mayor.

This applies not to New York alone, but to Pennsylvania likewise, and to many other States in a greater or less degree. In fact, party organization in its recent development tends in the same direction all over the country. It is true, men of the first order of character and ability still get in high places now and then. But this, in the most cases, owing to one of four circumstances: either some man of authority is large-minded and courageous enough to appoint them to important positions, notwithstanding the displeasure of the party machine; or there is a public sentiment strong enough to force their nomination and election over the head of the regular organizations; or the party organizations nominate them, and then, deriding their character by mistake, but generally it will hardly be denied that party organization, as it has gradually developed itself under the influence of the patronage system, tends more to suppress than to promote the employment in the public service of the best talent and character of the country. And this accounts to a great extent for the deterioration of our political life which is so much complained of.

Heavy Rebel Losses in Cuba.

General Weyler has received the provincial authorities at Sancti Spiritus. He said the revolution in Cuba from the very beginning had taken the character of a brigand war, and the insurgents had, whenever possible, avoided engagements with the Spanish forces. He prophesied the early ending of the revolution, and declared the pacification of the island would soon be an accomplished fact, and would be due entirely to the operations of his troops. General Weyler remains in the Sancti Spiritus district. A hot fight is reported to have occurred between a band of rebels and a Spanish force in Tigre hills, Las Villas, resulting in numerous losses to the insurgents and the capture of the positions occupied by them. The Spaniards lost 9 killed, 35 wounded. General La Baros reports the troops of his column seized at Cante Bairo a rebel convey with a number of mules and a quantity of ammunition and supplies. Colonel Santonazo asserts the rebel leader Ramon Lazo was killed in a skirmish at Sitio Anita, province of Pinar del Rio. Col Alfau reports he had a three hour's battle with the rebels at Colmeur, near Cuba Mocha Matanzas province. The battle was hotly contested. The rebel losses in killed and wounded were heavy. Insurgent leader Raulvarange was among the killed. The Spaniards had one lieutenant and 18 privates wounded.

Molasses for Fattening Cattle.

Molasses is now much used in Germany for fattening cattle and sheep, the consumption during the season of 1894-5 having been not less than 100,000 tons. The British consul at Stettin mentions that some difficulties have had to be overcome. Much of the raw molasses sold has less than the fifty per cent of sugar contained on leaving the original factory, while a more serious matter has been to find a suitable substance to mix with the molasses to counteract the purging effect. Many experimenters now believe that the difficulty arising from a dust or "mull" from moss-turf. The advocates of the "molasses-null-fodder" claim that it tends to keep the animal in health, gives the skin a glossy appearance, increases the working capacity, increases the production and improves the quality of milk, improves the flavor of meat, and is much cheaper and more economical than any other fat-producing fodder.

Submarine Cables.

The world's submarine cables now number more than 1,200, according to the recent presidential address to the London Institution of Electrical Engineers. They have an aggregate length of 102,000 nautical miles, over half of them being less than five miles long, while eight of them exceed 2,000 miles. They represent a total expenditure of about £40,000,000 sterling, about 75 per cent of which is British capital. A fleet of 41 repair ships is maintained. The electrician can localize the breaks in a cable closer than the captain can sail his vessel, yet a break on one of the Anglo-American lines cost almost half a million dollars to mend—this being probably the most expensive repair on record. It is possible to transmit nearly 50 words of five letters each per minute on the Atlantic cables by an automatic transmitter.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

(BY A BANKER.)

The ancient Roman when desiring to utter the proudest boast of which he was capable, exclaimed "Civis Romanus sum"—I am a Roman citizen, and well may a citizen of the British Empire feel a glow of pride and satisfaction at the thought that the flag upon which the sun never sets, and which must, therefore, respect by all the world, is the symbol of his liberties, and that he is a freeman of the greatest and most powerful empire which has ever existed on this earth.

The population of our Empire, exclusive of Egypt, upon which we have expended so much blood and treasure, to the great and manifest advantage of the country, is now reaching, supinely to look on with folded hands while the ferocious ruffians were doing their full work, and were brutally outraging and massacring innocent Christian men, women and children, simply because they professed the pure faith of Christ.

Another just source of pride and gratification to the Englishman is the number and efficiency of the innumerable beneficent organizations, hospitals, almshouses, almshouses and other charitable institutions, throughout the country, "supported by voluntary contributions." Probably no other country in the world can boast of anything approaching the number of such charities as exist in this country, where probably almost every individual who is able, voluntarily contributes his quota, some more, some less, to the relief of his indigent fellow-creatures.

In one respect, however, it is to be feared that England is going back. In former times practically the whole population attended systematically some place of worship, now, however, it is calculated that not more than one in five of the entire population do so, and unhappily this proportion of non-church-going chapels appear to be steadily increasing, and we are becoming more and more assimilated in this respect to our continental neighbors. In Mohammedan countries, every man, woman and child entertains even a fanatical regard for his religion, and when the mazzin, or call to prayer, is sounded, a people within sound fall down upon their knees; the workman mends down his spade, the clerk lays down his pen, the friend ceases his conversation, and even in countries which worship hideous idols of wood or stone the most intense devotedness to religion, such as it is, is exhausted; some wearing themselves on hooks forced into their flesh, others allowing themselves to be crushed to death under the wheels of their lord's car, and others subjecting themselves to the most painful tortures; all in honour of their religion.

England, alas! is however, though nominally professing the pure and holy religion of Christ, as far and away inferior to these countries in love of her religion, and it is sad to think what a large proportion of her inhabitants are absolutely without any religion at all; and though the church bell, the call to prayer, sounded Sunday after Sunday in their ears, yet it is utterly disregarded and contemned, and the sacred name of their God, and the glorious tenets of their faith, are forgotten. Surely it would be more tolerable in the Day of Judgment for Mohammedans and Hindoos than for these!

THE GREENROOM.

Miss Marie Hilton, the beautiful, says that the report that she is going to be married is all nonsense.

Miss Amelia Summerville, who has been ill for several days, resumed her place in the cast of "Brian Boru."

Several well known actors are at work on plays for John G. Sparks, who will probably star next season.

It is stated that Boehm Tree has arranged to produce "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in London next Christmas.

Wright Huntington has been engaged by R. L. Giffen to be leading man of his stock company at the Broadway theater in Des Moines.

Frank R. Mills is a recent addition to the Lyceum Theater stock company who is likely to become decidedly popular with New York playgoers.

James O'Neil is rehearsing a new play which he will shortly produce. It is an adaptation from the French, and the name of the piece has not yet been made public.

A book shortly to be published has the alluring title of "The Personal Recollections of a Ballet Girl." It is a. Barne believes it will throw much light on prehistoric man.

Mr. Nathaniel Vert endeavored to persuade Sarasate to visit America, but was not successful. Mr. Vert says the great violinist seemed very much indisposed to ever return to the ocean.

"It's the world is a floating show," says Jessie Bartlett Davis, "then a pessimist is always the man who got in on a free pass. He is the fellow who trends on the toes of his other folks and blames the world for not giving a better performance."

Chase's Ointment Cures All Skin Irritations.

Of the many skin diseases, eczema is one of the worst and most common. The one effective remedy so far discovered for it is Dr. Chase's Ointment. It has never been known to fail. Mr. Andrew Aiton, of Hartland, N. H., says: "My little daughter, Grace Lila, aged three and a half, was a dreadful sufferer from eczema for three years. We tried a number of alleged cures and several doctors, but all without effect. Her's was indeed a bad case. Her little body was entirely covered with rashes. One day our local druggist, Mr. Wm. B. Thistle, recommended me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. I did so, and four hours effected a complete cure and saved our child."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is just as effective for piles, salt rheum and sores of all descriptions. For sale by all dealers and Edmondson, Bates & Co., manufacturers, Toronto; price 50 cents.

There is nothing to equal Chase's Liniment and Turpentine for severe colds and lung troubles. Large bottle 25 cents.

dress parade.

Ermine and seal skin and seal skin are constantly used in winter.

The general tendency is to discard all stiff linings on the newest gowns.

Drab—"winter sky," the French call it—is one of the favorite colors of the season.

Soft liberty wools and silk and wool mixed liberty crapes are much used for dressy tea gowns.

Red in every tone and smaltone is in high fashion this winter not only as sleeve effects, and they are charming on a slender rounded figure and often on one not so slender that is well proportioned.

Some of the new princess gowns are rendered most picturesque by the waist and sleeve effects, and they are charming on a slender rounded figure and often on one not so slender that is well proportioned.

Small sailor or seal capes, with narrow edge of ermine, with one long pointed end to cross the bust and fastened at the side of the waist, are charming, suggesting the crossed neckerchief of a Puritan maiden.

Winter skirts still fair to rival the bodices in excess of elaboration, and the delightful simplicity in woman's attire which not long ago was so marked has now almost entirely vanished, tailor gowns and velvet evening toilets excepted.

This year not only are rich velvets in ruby, black, brown and green worn, but there are lovely pink, pale turquoise and deep peacock blues, mauve, hazel, yellow, gray and rose colored shades, the most of them made extremely simple.—New York Post.

Gloom

Of ill health, despondency and despair, gives way to the sunshine of hope, happiness and health, upon taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, because it gives renewed life and vitality to the blood, and through that imparts vigor and energy to the whole body. Read this letter: "Hood's Sarsaparilla helped me wonderfully changed sickness to health, gloom to sunshine. No pen can describe what I suffered. I was deathly sick, had sick headaches every few days and those terrible tired, despondent feelings, with heart troubles so that I could not get up and down stairs without clasping my hand over my heart and resting. In fact, it would almost take my breath away. I suffered so I did not care to live, yet I had much to live for. There is no pleasure in life if deprived of health, for life becomes a burden. Hood's Sarsaparilla does far more than advertised. After taking one bottle, it is sufficient to recommend itself." Mrs. J. E. Smith, Beloit, Iowa.

To The People

Of Ch'town and Prince Edward Island. Since opening our office in Ch'town we have by our Painless and Know How Methods of Dentistry met with great success. Our aim has been and is to build up a business and we have exceeded our greatest hopes. We are not TRAVELLING DENTISTS

As has been reported by persons who seek to injure us, and for whom we care not in the least. Nor did we locate in this city on speculation. We came here as we had been advised that there was an opening for our class of work. Our office was engaged by the year. Does that look like Travelling Dentists?

Now, what we are coming at is this: Certain persons have been making cheap talk about us. We can stand it all, and such talk does not worry us in the least, it is simply funny. You can always find us at work in our place of business, and ready for business.
