Dorothy Dix Says—

the answer to them is no, and your decision must be maintained. If they are given clothes by other people, ask yourself if you would want to wear them. Sometimes a dress that just won't suit little Daisy can easily be remodeled into a dream of fashion. These are the channels into which your energy should be directed, instead of being wasted on needless anxiety.

Your fundamental trouble is probably physical. A thorough examination and a good talk with your doctor will set you straight on that point.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 24 years old and have given a friend financial aid for the past five years. This I did at his request. He is a year younger than I. He entered the armed forces in 1946 and has been there since. I let him have a thousand dollars or more in cash through the past five years. He has never written a letter of appreciation. Could this possibly be a friend or is it that he doesn't have time to write because of being in the service?

HAROLD: ANSWER: You have no doubt heard the saying that the best way to lose a friend is to lend him money. Your friend absolutely touches bottom when it comes to ingratitude. You, I am afraid, have simply been used as a soft touch. You have been a very fine and true friend; it's too bad your investment yielded such poor return.

DEAR MISS DIX: Another girl and I have asked the same boy to different parties on the same night, but he won't answer either of us and keeps putting us off by saying his father won't let him have the car. We don't know whether it is a reason or an excuse.

J. R.: ANSWER: Both you girls are very ill-mannered and inconsiderate to put a boy in such an awkward position. Of course he can't accept both invitations, and probably doesn't want to hurt the feelings of either one of you. Consequently, in a characteristically human fashion, he is dodging the issue. One of you girls should be gracious enough to relinquish the claim to him for that evening so the poor boy can have fun at at least one party.
