Good Advice.

In a recent speech, Mr. Gladstone gave Mr. Ashmead-Bartlett the following piece of good advice which might be profitably studied by all young politicians:—

"The hon. gentleman is young, the hon. gentleman takes great pains. He has plenty of time to gain instruction; he has plenty of time to unlearn and cast off error. Let him apply that time to good purpose. Let him learn this—that if he wants really to make an impression upon the world, if he wants really to give aid to his friends, or inflict disaster upon his adversaries, the very first lesson he must learn is to restrain his universal and sweeping propositions within bounds of fact and actual experience—to submit himself to be taught by the lessons of the world and the lessons of the day, and to learn and know that moderation, reserve, consideration for those with whom you have to deal, and the endeavor to bring your propositions into exact conformity with the circumstances of the case, are, for him and for everybody else, the very first conditions of useful and durable success."

To See the Land.

VISIT TO CANADA OF MR. A. STANLEY HILL, M. P., FOR WEST STAFFORDSHIRE.

MR. A. STANLEY HILL, a member of the British House of Commons, has been in Toronto and has been interviewed by the Globe's reporter. The present is Mr. Hill's first visit to Canada, and he pronounced himself thoroughly well pleased with what he has been enabled to see of the country so far as he has gone. Mr. Hill is one of that body of English gentlemen who adhere warmly to the idea of Imperial federation. His idea is the institution of a Council of State, which should be composed of representatives from Great Britain and all the Colonies, this Council to be empowered to execute all commercial and other treaties with foreign nations, and to enact all laws relating to the general welfare of the Empire. There would also be instituted a Legislative Assembly in each of the various Colonies and in Britain, similar to our Provincial Legislatures, to provide for the government of local affairs. The idea is not by any means a new one, as every one who is acquainted with English politics knows; but the scheme has been so generally discountenanced that it is somewhat unexpected to find a man of Mr.
Hill's apparently very practical nature adhering to it. Mr. Hill is also a strong advocate of the "fair trade" cry in England, which simply means the adoption of the retaliatory system in the tariff.
He would place on the corn imports of the United States and Russia a 5s. tax, and on those articles of luxury which are imported from other highly protected countries, an import duty of ten or twelve per cent, while imports from the Colonies would be continued on the same free trade principle as at present.

Rules for Right Living.

BY MRS. E. H. LELAND, AUTHOR OF "FARM HOMES, IN-DOORS AND OUT-DOORS."

1. Keep the body clean. The countless pores of the skin are so many little drain tiles for the refuse of the system.
If they become so clogged and so deadened in their action, we must expect to become the prey of ill-health in some one of its countless forms. Let us not be afraid of a wet sponge and five minutes exercise with a coarse towel every night or morning.

2. Devote eight hours out of the twenty-four to sleep. If a mother is robbed of her sleep by a wakeful baby, she must take a nap sometime during the day. Even ten minutes of repose strengthens and refreshes, and does good "like a medicine." Children should be allowed to sleep until they awake of their own free will.

3. Never go out to work in early morning in any locality subject to damps, fogs, and miasms, with an empty stomach. If there is not time to wait for a cup of coffee, pour two-thirds of a cup of boiling water on two teaspoonfuls of cream, or a beaten egg, season it with salt and pepper and drink it while hot before going out.
This will stimulate and comfort the stomach and aid the system in resisting a poisonous or debilitating atmosphere.

4. Avoid over-eating. To rise from the table able to eat a little more is a proverbially good rule for every one. There is nothing more idiotic than forcing down a few mouthfuls, because they happen to remain on one's plate, after hunger is satisfied, and because they may be "wasted" if left! It is the most serious waste to over-tax the stomach with even an ounce more than it can take care of.

5. Avoid foods and drinks that plainly "disagree" with the system. Vigorous out-door workers should beware of heavy indigestible suppers. Suppers should always consist of light easily-digested foods, —being, in the country, soon followed by sleep, and the stomach being as much entitled as the head to profound rest. The moral pluck and firmness to take such food and no other for this last meal of the day can be easily acquired, and the reward of such virtue is sound sleep, a clear head, a strong hand, and a capital appetite for breakfast.—American Agriculturist for 1st September.

The Practical Utility of Art.

THE AMOUNT PAID FOR ART ENCOURAGE-MENT IN ENGLAND.

Writing in Good Words for August, Mr.
Beavington Atkinson gives some interesting particulars as to the extent to which art is studied in England. He tells us that no fewer than 146 Government schools of art are now in operation, affording systematic instruction to 29,191 scholars. There also exist, he says, 400 art classes with 16,600 students, besides 4,459 elementary schools wherein, under the inspection of the Government, drawing is taught concurrently with reading, writing, and arithmetic. Altogether it would appear that no fewer than 795,444 scholars are annually receiving in England tuition in drawing, painting, and modelling. The cost of all this is, of course, not small. There are fees which are paid by the parents of the pupils, but even with those the drain upon the country's purse is somewhat heavy. As a matter of fact, the last Government grant amounted to £69,- 423, which by many will doubtless be considered an extravagant sum to be devoted to such a purpose.

A Military Demonstration at Cairo.

A Cairo despatch says:—Four thousand soldiers, with thirty pieces of artillery, have surrounded Abden, the Khedive's resid. ace.
They ask for the assembling of the notables, and the dismissal of the Khedive's Ministers. The leaders of the demonstration previously sent a circular to the foreign consuls, assuring them that no hostile intentions were entertained against Europeans. The troops also demanded a consultation and the increase of the army to 18,000 men. The British consul went to the palace with the foreign consuls and negotiated with the discontented colonels.
Finally the English consul handed them a decree of the Khedive accepting their demands and appointing Cherif Pasha President of the Council.
The troops then cheered the Khedive and withdrew. It is thought a foreign occupation of the country will be imperative.

An Authentic Portrait of Columbus

A most curious discovery has just been made in the Spanish Colonial Office at the capital of a portrait of Columbus, one in fact made during the life of the great discoverer. The portrait is in a perfect state of preservation and the inscription is intact.
It reads:—"Columbus Lygue Novi Orbis Reperter." The portrait represents Columbus at about forty years of age, without any wrinkles on his broad forehead, with dark, thick hair, a brilliant eye, and a beak nose. A first copy, which has been made, has been offered to the Duke of Vargas, a lineal descendant of Columbus. Sub-Secretary Correa has ordered another copy to be placed in the Colonial Office. The size of the portrait is half a metre long by forty-two centimetres wide. It is supposed to be by an artist of the end of the fifteenth century.
