Rev. W. G. Dickson Accepts Call To Ont.

—After giving faithful and conscientious service for over five years as the Minister of the O'Leary pastoral charge of the United Church of Canada, Rev. Warren G. Dickson announced to his congregations on Sunday, September 21st, that he was accepting a call extended to him by the Osgoode, Ont., charge. Subject to the approval of the Ottawa and Prince Edward Island Presbyteries, he would preach his farewell sermon on Sunday, October 26th. He thanked the people for their love, loyalty and splendid co-operation.

Osgoode is a village twenty miles from Ottawa on a paved road. There is no other church on the charge, Kars, three miles from Osgoode. Many of the people work in Ottawa and High school children are taken by bus to Ottawa.

During Rev. Mr. Dickson's ministry, the church membership has increased, the four church buildings and the manse are in splendid condition, finances are in a very healthy state and the congregations of the four churches, Brae, Bloomfield, West Devon and O'Leary, have greatly increased.

The O'Leary Church and the Bloomfield Church have been painted and both churches have had new furnaces installed. West Devon Church has been renovated inside and Brae Church has had its lovely cemetery put in fine shape. The O'Leary choir have purchased new caps and gowns. The Bloomfield Church is being wired for electricity. Using a sum of money saved up during Rev. George Gough's ministry of ten years (1937-1947), the people under the leadership of Mr. Dickson made a canvass of all the families and contributed a further large amount and new pews costing twenty-two hundred dollars were installed free of debt.

The minister was an active Young People's worker and organized two new Young People's Unions at Brae and West Devon.

The Y. P. U. at Brae has the largest membership in the Western Presbyterian Union. He has served as chairman of the O'Leary Library Committee and for the past four years has been secretary of the West Prince Ministerial Association. He was elected last year in Charlottetown as the secretary of the P. E. I. Ministerial Association. For the past five years he has acted as the "Gleaner" correspondent for O'Leary. Mrs. Dickson has been active in C. G. I. T. and W. M. S. work.

The people of O'Leary and district unite in wishing Rev. and Mrs. Dickson and their two daughters, Norma and Jean, every success and God's richest blessing in their new home.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WINIFRED E. WILSON

CHIN STRAPS

The beautiful Blue Jay which, strange as it may seem, belongs to the same family as the Crow is easily identified—a comfort, especially in autumn, to the bird watcher. For one thing, few Canadian birds are blue, and certainly no other has such distinct markings. Vivid blue, white, and black form a veritable plaid suit. The head and back verge on mauve, and a black chin strap accentuates a pure white face. A prominent crest gives the Blue Jay a saucy appearance. Though sometimes choosing lookouts that act as a camouflage, and supposed to be secretive, yet it is so showy and noisy that we can hardly fail to spot it.

Blue Jays cannot long remain in a neighbourhood without announcing their presence by harsh screams of "Jay, jay"; but this is by no means their only cry. A buzzing whistle which, though louder, sounds as if someone were blowing through a comb, a good imitation of the Flicker's voice, and a Red-shouldered Hawk's scream ring across the autumn woods. Chuckles, whistles, and soft twitters will come from the same direction. For a moment we wonder how many kinds of birds are grouped together; but Blue Jays are responsible for all the varied noises.

They like to move about in companies, working their way through the trees in characteristic flight, or flying overhead in loose formation. With the modern method of banding, there is proof that at least some Blue Jays migrate a matter of 200 miles; yet, others never leave their native surroundings. On the whole, bird watchers are of the opinion that the majority do migrate, but only a short distance. Jays we see in June may be the identical birds that come to our feeding station in November, though the chances are that our summer Jays move away south, and those nesting just a little farther north occupy the territory later on.

As a matter of fact, Blue Jays breed across eastern Canada from the borders of settlement, and south to the Gulf of Mexico. If anything, they have increased since civilization has developed. When the nesting period is over, they flock together—preferably coniferous woods. However, the food supply is the essential. In early autumn the fruit of the hawthorn is the great attraction, later on nuts, particularly acorns and beech nuts, provide the main part of the food. Consequently, many are found in private grounds throughout the winter.

"What do you mean by looking ahead?" Peter wanted to know.

Striped Chipmunk stroked his whiskers. He gave Peter a funny look. "You probably wouldn't understand if I should tell you," said he.

"What makes you say that?" asked Peter.

"Because you never do it yourself," replied Striped Chipmunk.

"Do what?" asked Peter.

"Look ahead," replied Striped Chipmunk.

"I do too," said Peter. "I always look where I'm going."

"But you don't see much beyond your own toes," chuckled Striped Chipmunk. "Now I'm looking ahead to next winter. That's what I'm doing."
