

True Success Story

About one mile from the bonnie banks of Clyde which he immortalized in song all over the world, Sir Harry Lauder was laid to rest March 2nd beside his beloved mother, in Bent Cemetery, Hamilton, Ayrshire, Scotland.

It was in this little hamlet that Harry Lauder began work in the mines as a pit boy, and it was very fitting that miners, minstrels and great folk should come together to pay their last tribute of respect to the man who was making his last earthly journey.

After 79 years of ups and downs, the great Scottish comedian, who had captured the world with his unique songs, now rests among the immortals.

It has been said of Sir Harry Lauder that he did more to blind the Empire together during the hectic years of the First World War than any other person and no other personality in the British Isles is better known throughout the world than the man who wrote "Romany in the Gloom" and scores of other popular songs.

There never was a truer success story than that of this Scottish genius who was once forced to work in the coal mines for a few shillings a week.

His last trip to North America was made in 1937, but he continued to entertain the soldiers of the second World War as he had entertained their fathers a generation before, raising large sums of money for the troops and for charity.

Early in the 19 hundreds, he crashed the music halls of London, immediately became a huge success with his fame spreading to every quarter of the globe.

He was knighted in 1919 for valuable service rendered to the Empire troops in the trenches of France.

Sandwich Filling

A delicious filling for tea sandwiches can be made with cold salmon, cream cheese, and olives. Makes a smooth paste of the cheese and salmon, and then add stuffed olives which have been cut in halves.

Fish should always be served with utensils of silver, as steel is apt to impart a disagreeable taste.

VALUE OF PROTEIN FOODS

While nutrition experts have been informing all of us of the great benefit of meat in that it builds up worn cells, helps burn up the fats and starches to give quick energy, many have not known of one other important factor in proteins. They help to ward off infections.

For years we have known about the red and white corpuscles in the blood; the red corpuscles carry oxygen and nourishment to all the tissues and the white corpuscles are the disease fighters.

Shapely Silhouette

Featured In Autumn Fashions

By FLORENCE MILLS

PARIS, Aug. 1 - (AP) - Christian Dior opened the fall fashion showings here today by introducing a shapely silhouette which emphasizes big hips, an ample bust and an hourglass waist.

Everything has been swept away and even hemlines tend to be slightly lower, particularly for topsuits. He spotlights the bust with draperies and plumps up the hips with padding, pocket flaps or kangaroo-pouched drapery.

He plasters many dresses with large plain pearl buttons and any number of outside pockets. Dior skirts are either narrow or fabulously full. He evokes a 1930 look with narrow ones that fit tight to the knees then flare out into godets or bunches of pleats.

Suit jackets are long with tight, often belted waists, high button fastenings and small turndown collars. The bottom portion protrudes bulbously often as much as six inches from the hips.

Dior introduces detachable corsets that fit the midriff and top like a breastplate. He makes them in white satin to top strapless sheath dresses of black grosgrain and in shell pink satin atop white ones.

Dior has designed "elephant ear" sleeves cut about two feet wide. Used on loose topsuits they make the wearer look like a bat in flight.

He stiffens full length, three-quarter and hip length flared coats and jackets with buckram and often lines them completely in beaver or mink fur. Many are belted tightly to the waist. Fold down collars on coats and jackets develop into long stoles ends that dangle to hemlevel. On belted numbers they are threaded through the belt to form loose panels.

Muffs the size of pillow cases, made of mink, beaver or racoon, are worn with a lot of these outfits.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS

DOROTHY DIX SAYS -

Tips For Wives

Women Owe Husbands Affection, Consideration, Comfortable Home

DEAR MISS DIX: Not long ago you wrote ten commandments about what a woman has a right to expect of her husband.

ANSWER: A husband has a right to expect love and tenderness and appreciation from his wife. He has a right to expect her to give daily and hourly indication that he is something more than a meal ticket to her.

HE PART OF BARGAIN: A husband has a right to expect his wife to be a good housekeeper and make him a comfortable home.

When a man marries he puts his happiness, his prosperity and his health in his wife's hands. No man can be happy unless he goes home at night to a clean and orderly home that is filled with the spirit of peace and cheerfulness.

And no man can be healthy unless he is properly fed. Whether a man is able to stand up under the strain of modern business competition and win out, or whether he is a physical wreck at 40 depends mainly upon the way his wife keeps house and the kind of meals she sets him down to.

A man has a right to expect his wife to read and keep abreast of the times, so that she may be a companion to him. He has a right to expect her to be as amiable and pleasant to him as she is to strangers, and to do her best to keep him glad he married her instead of making him wonder why he did it.

DEAR MISS DIX: My daughter, a girl of 18, says to me: "Mother, I don't intend to be a coed. I want to go into society, and marry."

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife

Linden trees of our planting, are in blossom now, spreading a heady scent about the lawn and close by, blue delphiniums garb themselves showily and flirt with the bees and remind folks that the Summer is fast slipping away.

However it is comforting to know that in the event of failure there are other days of opportunity given in the new school year about to open.

Summer is passing now in the joys of the holidays and the delight of the haying. "I'm sorry, Ellen, but I can't see anything lovely about the haying," a farmwife friend of ours declared recently.

"What, no beauty in the satiny sheen of the waiting hay-lands? No music in the drowsy song of the machines? No glory in the fragrance of the new-mown hay? No satisfaction or delight in all working together as one forceful unit, each one a cog in the wheel of the farm industry to save these riches to the barns? Hot? Not this far."

Beyond hay and woodland and limned fearfully against the deep blue of the Northern horizon, a fire sends up its tongues of flame, indicating, we have heard the complete loss of a farmer's barns - reducing many of his plans and hopes to a heap of ashes. Our farmer's returning from the day's field-work saw the illumination and were away quickly in the truck, joining others to render what assistance they could, or perhaps too late to stand by humble and sad in the face of this raging element that is so good a friend to mankind and yet, once out of bounds, so terrible a master.
