

Inter-Town Traffic Feud Begins To Simmer Down

NEW GLASGOW (CP)—A traffic feud between the New Glasgow town council and Mayor Albert Logan of neighboring Trenton has signs of simmering down. Cars are making left turns again at Bell's Corner, the intersection that funnels traffic between the two adjacent Nova Scotia towns.

The height of the dispute saw the council charging Mayor Logan with breaking the law and Mayor Logan charging the council with illegal action. The fuss over traffic signs started last week when the Glasgow council put up signs banning left turns at Bell's Corner. As a result Trenton-bound motorists had to drive several blocks farther through the New Glasgow business district before heading for Trenton.

Mayor Logan announced the Trenton town council had protested to the provincial highways department and would tell its citizens to ignore the New Glasgow ban on left turns.

During the Easter weekend the New Glasgow police committee announced that Mr. Campbell would send a traffic engineer to New Glasgow to survey the situation.

Mayor Logan later denied that he "nearly ran over a police officer." He said he blew his horn to attract officer Seaman's attention.

Housing Is Big Business For New Zealand Government

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent
WELLINGTON, N. Z. (CP)—The government dwarfs all real estate agents in New Zealand as a seller of houses since it took office. It has sold houses valued at over $90,000,000. These have all been state rental houses, built for renting to tenants, and sold to the people occupying them.

The average price in 1953-54 was about $6,400, but it has risen each year and is expected to average about $8,800 in the current year. For well built modern small homes of the kind built for state housing in New Zealand this is an attractive price by local standards.

The government is continuing to build houses for rental to those who cannot afford to purchase or whose job requires them to move houses, adding whole suburbs to many cities and towns. These were for rental only.

It has another reason for trying to dispose of the huge holding of state rental houses, other than its wish to create a "home-owning democracy." The state rental rentals are fixed low—well below the equivalent charge for similar accommodation in private business. The loss on state house rentals is about $1,000,000 a year and may become much higher. So the government feels it pays to make houses available for sale at a better price.

THE PREVIOUS Labor government built large numbers of state houses, adding whole suburbs to many cities and towns. These were for rental only.

THE PRESENT National party government came into office with the housing slogan of "Own Your Own." It threw open the state houses for purchase, but only to the tenants occupying them.

A tenant who cannot or does not wish to buy is free to go on paying rent. The house will never be sold over his head.

But the houses are offered on such favorable terms that large numbers of tenants buy. They are not sold at strict market value but take account of the cost of construction and the value of the intending purchaser's tenancy rights.

Opening lead—King of spades. There is nothing unusual about declarer being in a contract where the result depends upon the success of a finesse. It happens all the time.

If there are no contrary indications, the finesse has a 50-50 chance to win. What declarer tries to do when he has this situation is to avoid the finesse, if it is possible, and substitute for it any other method, such as an endplay or elimination play, which will raise the chance of success to 100 per cent.

Many times such a positive cure is not available and the best declarer can do is to try to increase his chances of succeeding.

BEDTIME STORIES

Welcome Robin Explains

Some simple things, in simple ways will often ignore amaze.

Old Mother Nature.

It was very early in the morning. The Black Shadows of the night had only just begun to creep out of the Green Forest and across the Green Meadows toward the Purple Hill behind which the Peter Rabbit had started for home by way of the Old Orchard and Farmer Brown's dooryard for as yet no one was awake at Farmer Brown's. He does like to poke around in that dooryard when he is sure it is safe to do so. Early as it was someone was there ahead of him. It was Welcome Robin. Welcome is an early riser.

"I've heard it said that the early bird gets the worm," said Welcome.

"Well?" questioned Peter after a pause.

"Well what?" asked Welcome, pretending not to understand.

"Have you proved the saying is true?" retorted Peter impatiently.

"No, but I am going to right now," replied Welcome Robin. He ran a few steps and pulled a long worm out of the ground. He swallowed it. "That is a true saying and that was a good worm," said he. Peter turned up his nose and made a face.

Just then Mrs. Welcome arrived. She paid no attention to Peter. "Has he been around yet?" she asked eagerly of Welcome Robin.

Welcome shook his head. "I haven't seen a sign of him," said he.

Builds House On Wrong Lot

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Desmond Brand, 21, of Sunshine, Victoria, bought a lot, intending to build a home on it.

When he took his girl to see it both rubbed their eyes. The house was already there.

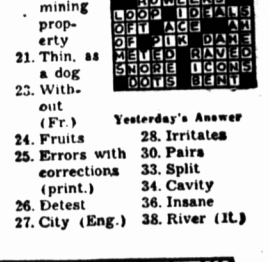

The explanation was that a builder had made a mistake, and put up another man's house on the wrong lot.

The Victoria Supreme Court has held that the house belongs to Brand, because he knew nothing about it, and because the builder later refused to negotiate with him.

The builder says he will appeal.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR IS LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
