

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

SEPTEMBER 24, 1894.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Patriot is preaching blue ruin. Sure signs of better times. Last summer England suffered very seriously from drought, and this year, although they have had a very favorable season of growth and maturity, much grain is being ruined by stormy weather.

GENERAL TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

WARSAW, Sept. 21.—It is reported here that the impending departure of the Russian imperial family for Crimea is due to the fact that the czar has grown much worse and to the critical state of his second son, Grand Duke George, who was thrown from his horse a few days ago, with the result that he has since suffered from hemorrhages.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—The Lexington hotel at Michigan Boulevard and at Michigan Boulevard and Twenty-second street, said to be valued at $1,000,000, was sold at the delinquent tax sale, by the treasurer of the county, for $841,475.

ATHENS, Sept. 21.—A most daring outrage upon the part of Greek brigands is reported from Lamia, near the Turkish frontier, and at the head of the Gulf of Volo. The Procureur de Roi, a judge and two secretaries were returning in a carriage accompanied by two gendarmes, from villages where they had been collecting information regarding the brigandage.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Acting Secretary Sims has decided not to pay a dollar a bushel for wheat for the Indians in South Dakota, but will buy four for them instead. These Indians have a claim on their reservation and the Indian Bureau wanted to make use of it, but as the Indians have raised no wheat of their own, and there seems to be some difficulty in getting the grain to the reservation, the advertisements, the secretary will purchase flour.

THE TURK.—We are pleased to learn that the get of the old Provincial favorite trotting sire, Hernando, are coming to the front, both in the East and in the West. On the 12th inst. Lalando resumed his record from 2:27 to 2:23, at St. Stephens, N. B., and on the 15th inst. at the youngsters, Egbertetta and Wingo, relined their records at Grand Forks, North Dakota, the former to 2:31 and the latter to 2:36, which represented a gain of within 1/10 seconds of the Canadian two-year-old record. Wingo's driver is nearly thirty pounds overweight, and this is quite a disadvantage for a two-year-old trotter to overcome, especially as Mr. Wingo is not an extra good one. Wingo's performance was a great one under the circumstances, and with the conditions now favorable, the Canadian record would seem within easy reach of these two youngsters.

SOUTH FISHERY ITEMS.—The schooner Minnie Mand arrived in port yesterday. She got 20 barrels of mackerel off East Point on Saturday, and Capt Wolf says that there is a large body of fish between East Point and Bear River. Capt. Keel, a trotter cruiser Kingfisher, was at St. Point on Saturday, seeing mackerel schooling around him, was tempted to try his luck, and got three barrels with very little haul. He says he never saw such fish—all extra No. 1—150 would fill a barrel! This makes good Capt. Smith's prophecy some time ago, that it only would require patience to make a good trip this fall. The Collector of Customs had the storm signal up yesterday and last night, for the first time this season.

W. C. T. U.—The twelfth annual convention of the Maritime Christian Temperance Union met in the W. C. T. U. Hall, at Fredericton, N. B., on Friday morning. Twenty-one officers and thirty-four delegates were present, and the number was considerably augmented in the afternoon. Mrs. Enman, of Charlottetown, and Mrs. Brennan and Miss Smith, of Summerside, were amongst the delegates present. The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand October 29, 1893, of $301.50; receipts from various sources, $73.76; Maritime day donations, $63.75; from local unions, Nova Scotia, $178.02; New Brunswick, $136.00; Prince Edward Island $66.50. Total $377.52—total receipts $814.53, expenses $455.35, balance on hand $359.18.

St. Paul's Church.—It is pleasing to learn that a new and beautiful Church for St. Paul's congregation is to be built forthwith. Mr. W. C. Harris, Jr. is the architect.

Thousands of new patrons have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla this season and realized its benefit in blood purified and strength restored.

THE CATHEDRAL BAZAAR.

At three o'clock this afternoon the Lieutenant-Governor opened the Bazaar. His Honor's remarks were made in his usual happy style, and were attentively listened to by his hearers. His Lordship Bishop McDonald also delivered an address. The Bazaar is now in full blast, and judging by appearances, it will be the event of the season, without a season of numerous attractions. But owing to the Bazaar being open after the days at the Exhibition are ended, it will be there to amuse and comfort as well, to the many who will remain in town during two or three days of this Exhibition week, and are at a loss to know how to spend their evenings.

The taxes upon goods are under the charge of the members of the different societies in the two convents. St. Vincent de Paul Society have one fancy table and two tea-stands. The Children of Mary have allotted to them one apron table, one ice cream and one oyster booth, besides tea, dinner and fancy tables. St. Joseph's Sodality have a dinner table, oyster and ice cream booths, besides fancy goods. The Holy Family have one apron table, one ice cream and one oyster booth, besides tea, dinner and fancy tables. Besides these several tables, independent of the societies, occupy spaces allotted to a fancy table, flower table and soda water fountain. The decorations around the tables and the partitions separating them are most artistic; and as comparisons are always odious, none can be made, in fact, a particular and choose one as being more attractive than another, would be almost impossible to do. Suffice it to say that each person has decorated her booth or table, as the case may be, with exquisite taste, and the perfect blending of colors shows the skilled hand of an artist in effective draping in many places, and the whole presents a scene most charming to behold, and one that reflects the utmost credit on the indefatigable workers who have wrought such perfect harmony out of a chaos of bunting, boards and bare walls.

Among the many attractions at the Bazaar will be a tree made of lanterns shown every night. The executive committee have made arrangements with Messrs. Haslam and Donih to exhibit their line light views every night during the progress of the Bazaar. They have spared no expense, and many new pictures will be thrown on the canvases that have never been seen here before. Among those specially prepared will be an interior and exterior view of the proposed new cathedral, from the plan drawn by W. C. Harris, Jr. Esq., views of His Lordship and several local clergymen, also of the palace and many of the Island churches; views of the World's Fair, and the Canadian Northwest will be given as well, and the exhibit commences every evening at 7:45. This attraction is not an every-day one, and it is sure to bring a crowd, who will see plenty of things to admire and appreciate and remember afterwards.

Then tomorrow, a poll will be opened, to decide as to the most popular of the Dominion lotteries, Thompson vs. Laurier. The election will be by ballot and the result will be made known every hour. The poll will close next Thursday. The successful candidate will be presented with an appropriate gift. In view of a Dominion election approaching, politicians will do well to bear this side-election, as it were, in view, as the old and tried saying, "nothing events cast their shadows before," will surely prove its own value in this instance.

The scholarship donated by L. B. Miller, Esq., consisting of a course in the Business College, which he is principal, (said course including short hand and typewriting) will be disposed of by the guess system. A number of beans will be placed in a vessel, and for ten cents any one can have a guess as to the number of beans the vessel holds, and the person guessing the correct or the nearest to the correct number will have the scholarship. This is an excellent way of disposing of it and the opportunity to procure a scholarship worth $60 for ten cents only comes about once in a lifetime.

T. R. Motherwell Esq., the genial representative of the New York Life Insurance Co., has donated a $50 premium policy for one year to the Bazaar. It will be disposed of by the guess system also. The winner will have the policy for a year, the amount of course, being according to the age of the person who wins it. If he is someone under age, or a person uninsurable, it can be transferred to anyone chosen by the winner. This idea is a splendid one, and Mr. Motherwell's generosity is worthy of much praise.

The Bazaar Committee have received a sterling draft of £5 5s. ($25.54) from the Marjans of Bate, through Mrs. A. D. McLeod, in the city. The gift is doubly appreciated as coming from whom it did, and as being due to the energy and thoughtfulness manifested by the talented lady who obtained it.

The Bazaar Committee have received a handsome donation of cash and goods from Souris parish, per Rev. D. F. McDonald.

A member of the Ladies Committee acknowledges with thanks, the receipt of several beautiful articles for the fancy table, the gift of Mrs. M. and the Misses Power of Pictou, N. S. Also many thanks to Miss M. McDonald of Pictou, for a parcel for the fancy table.

The Ladies Committee wish to thank John Williams, City, for a handsome donation of flowers, worth $7. Cairns & McLean for a valuable piece of marble; Mr. Class McKenna, City, for two beautiful pictures; and Mr. D. L. McKinnon, of Montague, for his thanks for a generous donation of goods—Excellency.

Messrs. James Paton & Co. have given the Ladies' Committee $10 in goods, besides the generous loan of innumerable yards of pretty shapies. Many thanks will be given to the donors. It might be suggested that the young ladies in charge of the tables wear some distinctive dress, to single them out from among the patrons of the Bazaar. Pretty white caps and aprons are always most becoming, and those in charge of the oyster, ice cream, tea and dinner tables could not do better than don the pretty, neat and bewitching costume that distinguishes young lady waitresses elsewhere on occasions of this kind, and that only needs to be introduced to be generally followed here.

Capt. McDonald has the thanks of a member of the Ladies Committee for a barrel of oysters. Mrs. C. McMillan for a barrel of ginger ale, Mr. Fraser, S. S. Colgan, for $1 in cash, and Mr. J. McKenzie for a barrel of oysters.

Messrs. A. & C. Quirk have been very busily engaged baking cakes for the Bazaar, for some time past. They have baked or rather "dressed" between 40 and 50 cakes free of charge, and have filled a great many orders. Messrs. Prowse Bros., Mrs. E. Carmody, Mrs. Murphy, and numerous others being among the donors. They have just finished their own beautiful cake, which is a marvel of pastry, and promises much on being cut.

Mr. William Moren has the thanks of the Ladies' Committee for a handsome three-story fruit cake.

A lady of the committee desires THE EXAMINER to acknowledge the receipt from Mr. Robert Harris, P. R. C. A., of a beautiful and costly picture for the Bazaar. Last but not least, Mr. Ike Murley the celebrated picture framer has presented to the Bazaar the framing of a beautiful banner screen with elegant plate glass fittings and finished in white wood. See it at the Bazaar tonight.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

MEDICAL MEN AND TAXATION. SIR,—I think the medical men of this Province have cause for serious complaint against the Legislature of the Province. As a profession we are called upon to declare whether we have an income from our profession or not and if so to pay taxes upon it. This by a Government who refuse to pass a medical law for the improvement of the education of medical men unless the medical men pay for the same out of their private pockets. Not only this, but they refuse to pay for the administration of the law and the consequence is that the medical men have to tax themselves to pay their property taxes. In other countries the medical laws are treated as public laws and the legislature appropriates money to enforce and carry out the provisions of the law. Medical men willingly pay their property taxes to the general revenue as citizens, but when their profession comes to be taxed, in addition to the tax of $2.00 per head required of them for the administration of their own law, it is legislated against a class without receiving any return. Taxation of labour applied to one class of citizens and not to others is surely a principle at variance with equity and justice. There is no class of citizens who pay a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it only requires a look at it to be convinced of its injustice. The government may have done it in ignorance or without consideration of the principles involved, nevertheless ignorance does not excuse people from the consequences of their own acts, and I mistake the influence and ability of the profession in this Province unless they will demand that, as a class, their professional labor to the poor citizen be recognized as a greater drain made upon their charity than medical men and when they have to tax themselves to administer their law, and pay property taxes besides, it is such a jagged policy that it