LET'S TALK IT OVER Tickets For Teachers Followed The Welcome

Recently we received our first traffic violation ticket in a fairly long career of driving a car. We would feel pretty smug about this were it not for the suspicion that we have rated one of these summonses to a seat of justice more than once or twice, and didn't get it. We feel reasonably sure we've gone through a few time zones a little faster than the law allows, and we distinctly remember parking in a "30 minute parking zone" for a full forty minutes and driving away still at large.

We got this first ticket for "parking between the curb and the sidewalk" opposite the new Birchwood School in Charlottetown. While we were in this beautiful new school listening to a lecture on classroom management and making the punishment suit the crime, the law finally caught up to our little string of petty crimes against the state.
