

English Estates.

Castles in Spain and estates in England have grown to be synonyms. It is astonishing what a number of fools there are not only willing but eager to be gulled out of their cash by any sharp schemer with tact enough to hold out a gilded bait for them to swallow.

One of the easiest ways to get a trip to Europe is to organize a "family" as claimants for an English estate and then go over as delegate for them to get it. It is better than having a dog bite you, because it is attended with less risk. Probably it will always be a simple game to work, because so many people are eager to throw away a little money in even the vainest pursuit of a great deal.

The Dude and Drunkard.

"Those two," continued the speaker, as two men, one a fashionably dressed young fellow, and the other a disappointed-looking individual, walked in from the billiard-room, "are the dude and drunkard of the trade. The former is a 'masher' of the most pronounced type. He wears good clothes, in fact puts all his salary on his back, and is always on the lookout for a girl.

"His companion is a jolly good fellow, but he will drink to excess. He is a good salesman, and although his employers know of his little spees, they overlook them because they know that no new man can cover the territory or sell the bills that the jolly but dissipated drummer can do when he is sober.

Mrs Lincoln's Fish-balls.

Put a pint of potatoes peeled and cut into pieces, into a kettle. Take a piece of salt fish large enough to fill a half-pint cup when shredded, free it from bones and skin, then put into water and tear into the smallest possible flakes with the fingers; when it is all shredded it will be sufficiently fro-vened. Put into the kettle with the potatoes and pour over boiling water enough to cover them. Put cover on the kettle and boil until the potatoes are done, then pour off every particle of water. Mash in the kettle with a potato-masher till thoroughly fine and mixed; put in a teaspoonful of butter and when a little cool stir in one beaten egg. Shape the fish-balls in the spoon into the wire basket for frying, or directly into the hot fat if the basket is wanting.

Worth Remembering.

An esteemed contemporary gives the following eleven facts, which he says are worth remembering:— Never eat between meals. Never eat a very heavy supper. Never stand long at a corner of a street. Never fret, it will only shorten your days. Never reply to the epithet of a fool, or a low fellow. Never speak in a contemptuous manner of womankind. Never anticipate too much, disappointment is not pleasant. Never taste an atom when you are not hungry, it is suicidal. Never speak of your parents as the "old man" or "old woman."

"Rebecca," the old lady shouted up the stairs, "was you goin' to de party?" "Yes matter," answered Rebecca. "Was you gettin' ready?" inquired the old lady. "Yes, matter," replied Rebecca; "will I wash for a high-neck or low-neck dress?"

NOTES.

Not the promissory, but facts about WELCOME SOAP, an article that does not contain one particle of the adulterations used to reduce the cost of "Pure Goods," but does possess the value of legitimate Washing Qualities, the demand for which proves the advantage gained by the use of the genuine over soaps of doubtful character. None should be deceived even by Red and Yellow Wrappers or any of the imitations of the WELCOME as a pair of clasped hands is stamped on every box. Made by CREZZA, Davis & Co.

MANHOOD. How Lost, How Restored. We have recently published a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses. Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cts or two postage stamps. The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically. This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land. Address: THE CULVERWELL MEDICAL CO. 41 Ann St., New York. Post Office Box 400.
