Birth Control Review Results May Be Months In Preparation

By EUGENE LEVIN

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The spirit of Roman Catholic reneval and the development of birth control pills have led to a major review of church policy n population growth, but it ay be months before conclu- ons are announced.

Until then, Pope Paul VI has onfirmed the validity of exist- ing rules and in effect quieted what had been a growing debate among some Roman Catholic prelates and theologians about birth control.

Vatican circles believe a major result of the study will concern oral contraceptive pills. The basic church position on birth control is expected to remain unchanged, with emphasis on improving economic conditions, not contraception.

Vatican sources say theologians and medical experts in many countries are working on the moral and practical aspects of the problem.

BROAD STUDY PROMISED

The Pope said June 23 the study would be carried out "as broadly and profoundly as possible"—on indication that conclusions are not likely to be announced soon.

His statement has had three major effects:

It has served to acknowledge a demand among Roman Catholics for clarification of hormone pills.

It has tended to moderate public discussion of birth control among prelates and theologians by meeting the demand for clarification while reaffirming, for the present, current policy.

And it has emphasized anew the church's search for renewal in the modern world.

While Pope Paul's speech was believed to refer especially to the new pills, he did not specifically mention them and he talked in general terms, indicating a broader review.

PROTESTANTS ACCEPT

Some sources think the study might also bring on protestant views about birth control, with the hope of helning unity efforts by examining points of difference. Many protestants accept contraceptive measures rejected by Catholics.

Last Christmas, in his annual Christmas message, Pope Paul described artificial birth controls as "remedies . . . worse than the (population) problem itself."

He added: "Instead of increasing the supply of bread on the dining table of this hunger-ridden world as modern techniques of production can do today, some are thinking in terms of diminishing by illicit means the number of those who eat with them. This is unworthy of civilization."

In announcing his study, Pope Paul was careful not to promise changes. "Let us say frankly," he declared, "that we have not yet sufficient reasons to consider overcome, and therefore not obligatory, the rules given by Pope Pius XII in this connection."

He was referring to major pronouncements by Pope Pius.

The first, Oct. 29, 1951, to an audience for midwives, discussed the use of the rhythm system, which is allowed by the church. Pope Pius made it clear even the rhythm system should not be used indiscriminately.

A few weeks before his death in October, 1958, Pope Pius said a woman might use pills to check uterine ailments if done without intent to prevent fecundation.

Debate on the pills is generally concerned with finding ways of using them along with the rhythm system to make that method more certain. The pills, in addition to controlling ovulation, help make the menstrual cycle regular.

Most Roman Catholic authorities, including British Archbishop John Heenan of Westminster and the Vatican weekly L'Osservatore Della Domenica, reject the pills now on the market. They indicate a pill must be found to make menstruation regular without suspending ovulation.

However, some theologians say the current pills may be ruled acceptable — that they apparently do not sterilize, but simply cause a suspension of ovulation by providing a woman with the same hormone that nature produces to halt ovulation during pregnancy and lactation.

Until a formal pronouncement the pills now on the market lack church approval.

European Union Sought With Britain Outside

BONN (AP)—Meeting under visiting President de Gaulle and Chancellor Erhard, a joint French - West German cabinet session sought Friday some new step to move forward the cause of West European unity.

The idea was to give a political basis to the economic ties that bind the European Common Market — France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

Britain is on the outside. De Gaulle vetoed Britain's membership application in January, 1962. De Gaulle, who was under an extremely heavy security guard as what German police call a "specially endangered person," told reporters:

"I think that from our meetings there will emerge, more and more, a Europe better and better united."

Pressing for action was former chancellor Konrad Adenauer. De Gaulle spent an hour in Adenauer's office Friday afternoon.

Beside the two chiefs, those present at the meeting of cabinet ministers included French Premier Georges Pompidou and the two countries' ministers of foreign affairs, defence, economics, agriculture and development aid.

Adenauer recently has been urging the two governments to make some clear forward move toward European political union.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE MAJOR HOOPLE

Woman MP Gets Welcome

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Eloise Jones, newly-elected Conservative member of Parliament for Saskatoon, got a desk-thumping welcome in the Commons as she took her seat Friday.

The new member is the widow of Harry Jones who represented the Saskatoon riding from 1957 until his death March 4. She was elected in a by-election June 22.

Mrs. Jones, a psychiatrist and mother of four, was escorted into the House by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and Alvin Hamilton, former Conservative minister of agriculture.

The new woman MP brings to five the number of women members in the Commons. The others are Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, Mrs. Margaret Konants (L—Winnipeg South), Pauline Jewett (L — Northumberland), and Mrs. Jean Casselman (PC — Grenville-Dundas).

PCs Oppose Voting Age Cut To 18

OTTAWA (CP)—While spokesmen for all other parties were in favor of lowering the voting age to 18 from 21, two Conservatives opposed the move in the Commons Friday—one of them suggesting it should be increased instead of lowered.

Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton Strathcona) rose to speak with only four minutes left of the allotted hour for private members' business.

He replied to the jeers of other members: "Yes, I am aware that if I speak now I will kill this bill and yes, that is my intention."

Until Mr. Nugent rose, only one other speaker, Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound - Muskoka) said he was against lowering the voting age at this time.

Speakers of all other parties were strongly in favor of supporting the measure proposed by Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth).

But the Scott bill to lower the franchise right away was "talked out" by Mr. Nugent and probably won't be discussed again this session.

Opening lead — eight of spades.

Scintillating defense by Robert Jordan and Arthur Robinson gave the Bridgerama audience a thrill when they saw this outstanding American pair cooperate perfectly to defeat the two spade contract three tricks. They played every card as though all four hands were exposed.

The deal occurred in the match between South Africa and the United States during the recent World Bridge Olympiad.

Jordan got off to a good start when he led the eight of spades. Declarer played the nine and Robinson's ten forced the king. South returned the ten of clubs, hoping to ruff one or two clubs in dummy, and West took the ten with the queen.

Playing as though he could see through the backs of the cards, Jordan returned a low diamond. Robinson won with the king, cashed the A-Q of spades, removing both of dummy's trumps, and then returned the nine of clubs.

Declarer finessed the jack, losing to the king, and then saw Jordan cash the ace of diamonds and return a diamond, permitting East to score the three of spades. It was the seventh trick for the defense. The declarer, in the meantime, had taken only one trick.

Robinson now led a heart. South took the ace, cashed his remaining trumps, but then had to lose another trick because his last two cards were the A-8 of clubs and Robinson still had the 7-4. So South went down three in a contract he might well have made two spades or gone down one against less skillful defense.

Actually, declarer was ill-advised to finesse the jack of clubs when Robinson played the nine. Having no entry to dummy, he should have viewed with at least mild suspicion the opportunity East gave him to finesse. Had declarer gone up with the ace, drawn Robinson's last trump, and then played a low club, he would have held the loss to down one.
