Sub-Soil Plowing.

Continued.

Sub-soil plowing is, no doubt, practiced to advantage in many places where the growing season is long, and the soil naturally very rich and moist. But it must be remembered that here the growing season is far less extended, and all manures have to be applied to the soil in such a way that the crops can secure the benefit of them in the easiest manner. But is this done by burying it to an extraordinary depth by sub-soil plowing? Certainly not. It has to be applied to the ground in such a way as to bring vegetation on very rapidly; this is done by mixing it as is usually done with the surface soil. Lime and mussel mud should be applied in small quantities to good land; the former harrowed in, the latter plowed in as shallow as possible. With this mode of culture our soil can be made to yield all kinds of vegetables, grains, and hay in abundance; and short as the growing seasons here are, the soil is capable of yielding the latter crop twice in one season if the soil is well top-dressed. This is another proof that all required here is manure to make farming profitable, and without it, no matter how much sub-soil plowing is done, success cannot attend the labor of the P. E. Island husbandman, nothing but inevtiable ruin would attend the sub-soil plow here in most cases.

Under draining would benefit low wet lands, and with the exception of this kind of soil, about seven inches is the greatest depth for any purpose, all kinds of root crops included. A garden is dug as deep as a common spade, about ten inches, and that is just the depth of good well made drills, rolled and ready for the beet, carrot, parsnip or turnip seed.

Sub-soil plowing would not have the effect of destroying weeds, after the land was made rich because rich land produces a great variety of weeds. Look at a garden, for instance. Yellow weeds are the effect of bad cultiavtion, such as draining the land of its substance and not replenishing it or seeding it down at the proper time, which is a bad practice among some farmers. The most effectual way to destroy weeds is to plow your land as shallow as possible in the month of July, letting it lay without cross plowing till the tenth of June following, and then manure, if you did not when first plowed, and then cross plow to the depth of five inches, seeding it down at the same time. This will effectually destroy weeds without the sub-soil plow.

At some other time I will offer some observations on the best mode of raising turnips for stock feeding with the ordinary mode of doing it. This will prove that turnips can be raised to advantage with the means at the disposal of every farmer (almost) in the Island.

Racy Literature.

'Dawkter,' said an exquisite, 'I desire you should tell me what to put into my head to make it all right.' 'Only brains, sir, nothing but brains.'

Dean Swift was one time solicited to preach a sermon for the benefit of the poor. When the preliminary exercises were gone through, he arose and selected the text: 'He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord.' 'Now,' said the witty pastor, abruptly closing the book, 'if you like the security down with the dust!'

A Public Danger.—A glutton of a fellow was dining at a hotel, who, in the 'battle of knives and forks,' accidentally cut his mouth, which being observed by a Yankee sitting near him, he bawled out, 'I say, friend, don't make that ar hole in your countenance any larger, or we shall starve to death.'

Anecdote of Napoleon.—An anecdote, showing the good nature of Louis Napoleon, was related by the late M. Mocquard. After leaving the Malmaison Queen Hortense settled by the lake of Constance, where the young prince wus constantly in the habit of relieving poor people by giving away his pocket money. One day he observed a family in the greatest distress, but having no money to give them, he took off his coat and boots and gave them to those poor people, saying that he was sorry that he had not any money for them, as he had given away the allowance his mother had made him to some other poor people who had just passed by the house; but he hoped they would dispose of his clothes to relieve their wants. The weather was very cold at this time, and the ground covered with snow; the prince, nevertheless, trudged through it towards home, and when near the house was met by Mocquard, who expressed his surprise at seeing him in that state. The little fellow replied, 'I have given away my clothes to some poor people to prevent them from starving.'

Crusty Advice.—An exchange, presided over we presume by a crusty old bachelor, says: 'Never look at the girls—they can't bear it; they regard it as an insult. They wear their feathers, furbelows and frills merely to gratify their mammas, that's all.

How Fallen.—In the district of Cognac, in France, so famous for its brandy, is an old castle in which was born the great sovereign, Francis I., but which is now used as a brandy warehouse.

CHILDREN TEETHING

MRS. WINSLOW,

An experienced Nurse and Female Physician, presents to the attention of mothers, her

SOOTHING SYRUP,

FOR CHILDREN TEETHING.

which greatly facilitates the process of teething, by softening the gums, reducing all inflamation—will allay all pain and spasmodic action, and is

SURE TO REGULATE THE BOWELS

Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourselves, and

Relief and Health to your Infants.

We have put up and sold this article for over thirty years, and can say, in confidence and truth of it, what we have never been able to say of any other medicine—never has it failed in a single instance, to effect a cure, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in terms of highest commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this manner "what we do know," after thirty years' experience, and pledge our reputation for the fulfillment of what we here declare. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

This valuable preparation is the prescriptions of one of the most experienced and skilful nurses in New England, and has been used with never failing success in thousands of cases. It not only relieves the child from pain but invigorates the stomach and bowels, corrects acidity, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. It will almost instantly relieve GRIPING IN THE BOWELS, AND WIND COLIC, and overcome convulsions, which, if not speedily remedied, end in death. We believe it the best and surest remedy in the world, in all cases of Dysentery and Diarrhœa in Children, whether it arises from teething, or from any other cause. We would say to every mother who has a child suffering from any of the foregoing complaints—do not let your prejudices, nor the prejudices of others, stand between your suffering child and the relief that will be sure—yes, absolutely sure—to follow the use of this medicine, if timely used. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None Genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS, New York, is on the outside wrapper.

Sold by Druggists throughout the world. Principal office, No. 48 Dey Street, N. Y. Price, only 35 Cents per Bottle.
