TIGNISH RACES.

Riverside track, Tignish, held a very successful race meeting on Thursday last. Great credit is due the manager, Mr. J. A. Brennan, for the success of the affair. A very good crowd assembled and the best of order prevailed. The different events were hotly contested and each driver was out to win. In the three-minute class only two horses started, but they were so evenly matched that it caused as much excitement as a fast match race usually does. The green race brought four horses in answer to the judge's bell, and it took seven heats to finish the race. The most exciting incident of the day happened in the finish heat when the little pacer driven by Prof. Rockford, and wearing hoppers made a misstep and turned a complete somersault; sulky, driver and all. Fortunately no damage was done, and "Rocky" started again in the next heat coming in ahead of the procession. The following is this summary:

THREE MINUTE CLASS

Royal Prince [Fitzsimons].....1 1 1

JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE GOES A-VISITIN'

"Josiah Allen's Wife" has sharpened up her pen again, and with her patient, amiable, unobtrusive husband "goes a visitin'" for The Ladies' Home Journal. Every one, knowing that Josiah's wife is "observant" and "critical," can anticipate that in laying bare the short comings and mistakes of those she visits she will have abundant opportunity for the exercise of her quaint humor and homely philosophy. In the course of her "visitin'" she finds many things to set right, and there is a definite purpose underlying all her sketches. "Josiah and I Go a-Visitin'" is perhaps the best series that Mrs. Holly has ever written—superior even to her description of the Centennial which established her reputation as a humorist-philosopher of the first order. The first sketch of this new series will be published in the August Journal.

Donahoe's Magazine

JULY.

"The two great essentials requisite for success in business, or in any calling, are natural aptitude and sound training," writes T. B. Fitzpatrick in the July number of DONAHOE'S to which he contributes a valuable paper on "Business as a Vocation." It will be noticed that this number is in large part devoted to the interests of young people leaving school, advising them as to the requisites for success, and giving practical information how to enter on certain lines of work.

Rev. John Talbot Smith, writing of "The Military Academy at West Point," describes the various steps to be taken by the candidate for entrance at this splendid military school, and urges upon Catholic boys the desirability of fitting themselves for the course of training, and pointing out to them the lasting advantages it affords. This paper was especially prepared as a reference, and in the simplest and clearest manner makes plain every step of the way from application to the completion of the course.

Maurice Francis Egan, Mr. Michael Cudahy, and Mr. John M. Smyth enter into a discussion of the relative influence exerted on public life by college man and the self-made man. Able arguments are advanced on both sides, and many frank expressions of opinion will excite more than passing thought. For instance, Dr. Egan says:

"I may be narrow; but it seems to me that we have had few broad-minded statesmen since the old-fashioned college man ceased to be prominent in politics."

William Lloyd Garrison, Patrick Patrick Ford, Editor of the Irish World, New York, and Butler T. Wilson, contribute their views on the proceedings of the Alabama Conference, the attitude taken by Bourke Cockran receiving particular attention.

"In Fulfillment of a Vow," by Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., for several years a resident in the Austrian Alps, presents a fine study of the Passion Play of Oberammergau. The descriptive passages, the synopsis, and the illustrations make it possible for every one to gain an intelligent knowledge of this village and of the play that has made it famous.

Another illustrated article of most timely interest is "Impressions of the Canonization of Blessed Rita of Cascia," at St. Peter's, Rome. The writer, Marie Donegan Walsh, who was present at the ceremony, gives a vivid description of the groups of pilgrims, the interior of St. Peter's, and the gorgeous effect of the electric lights used on this occasion for the first time in the history of St. Peter's. The priest as a novelist is the subject of an able paper by the Rev. Mortimer E. Twomey.

Among the poets are D. J. Donahoe, Charles J. O'Malley and Rev. James B. Dollard. As usual, the fiction is excellent.
