

SWIMSUITS OF YESTERYEAR

These swimsuits are the start of an authentic historical collection planned by E. B. White, a Toronto bathing suit manufacturer. The original designs were obtained from the fashion collection of the New York Public Library and Mr. White hopes to have 25 styles when his museum collection is complete. These suits will be displayed at a fashion show at the Muskoka Sands at the end of this month. (CP Photo)

Blue Twilight Shadows Dance Above White Fields

Twilight's shadows were blue above the white fields this evening and the trees were as still as though painted against them. Night was commencing to come down softly, dimming lightly the distant hills. And hearing the sound of young chatter and laughter from the near yard, we came to the door.

The snowballs that had been striking one after another on a piggy-back had turned now to the possibility of more lively targets. "You can't hit me!" Mack observed confidently while Granddaughter made a threatening gesture with the round in her hand. "And moreover" he added "you need never try to — you would only be wasting your energy! Girls... girls!" he grinned "why they couldn't hit a target if they tried!"

"Couldn't they?" she countered. "That's what you think! You just stand there where you are, and I'll show you the folly of such words" she chuckled.

"Stand there" she says, "he smiling, patting the snow in his hands into a shape. "Stand there!" he mimicked.

She eyed the distance between her and this threshold. Then risked the snowball and fled laughing toward shelter within. She reached it just in time.

"Bang!" his snowball landed on the wall by the door which closed behind her.

"It didn't catch me" she giggled in relief. "But judging by the force of it, I'd say it is a caught him! Oh, dear, what fun that was!"

And the twilight was kind to the two, who had thrashed it with their young laughs.

MARY HAWORTH

Man's Sudden Distrust Of Wife Is Sign Of Problem

Dear Mary Haworth: I need help desperately. My husband and I lived happily through the years, building a life, buying a home and rearing two wonderful children.

There were no major conflicts until now, when one has developed that I just can't cope with. My husband no longer trusts me, he feels that I am untrue to him.

There is absolutely no basis for this. I always have been a somebody, devoted to the care of my family. He says he can no longer stand the sight of me and cannot help the way he feels.

He refuses to see a doctor or consult our pastor. Instead he is running away from his problem. He won't leave me, for he says he has worked too hard all these years, and now has nothing.

Please tell me if I should stick this out and risk making him wick? Or should I leave (as he surely expects me to), taking the children, thus hurting them?

I feel that he is being unfair, for I also have worked hard all these years and shouldn't have

HAPPENINGS

Guests at Sunset Lodge were entertained by Zion Church CGIT group on Thursday of last week.

The girls and their leaders, Miss Doris Ferguson and Mrs. Mildred MacDonald, were received and introduced by the superintendent, Dorothy Barwick.

The lodge residents enjoyed a service of Easter worship and vocal and instrumental music, with Mrs. Bruce McLaren as accompanist. Special features were two Gaelic songs and a drill, "The Cross."

The visiting group presented an Easter lily to the lodge guests. Thanks and appreciation were expressed by Mrs. MacEwen.

The choirs of six Charlottetown churches will be joining forces on Sunday, April 29 for a special choir service being held in the Kirk of St. James at 3:00 p.m. This special festival-recital is organized by the Charlottetown Centre of the Royal Canadian College of Organists. Choirs participating include, First Baptist Church (Mrs. V. Leigh Dingwell, director); Central Christian (Mrs. W. A. MacRae); St. James (Christopher Gledhill); St. Paul's (Mr. G. Thompson); St. Peter's Cathedral (Miss S. Brenton) and Zion Presbyterian (Miss Madelyn Wadden).

Each choir will be singing an anthem individually and the climax of the program will be the singing of the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's Messiah, by the massed choirs.

Rev. C. K. Bean, pastor of Calvary Temple, Upper Prince Street, left by car yesterday for Yarmouth, N.S., where he will attend the Maritime District Conference.

A short preview of some of the numbers that will be heard in the 1962 P.E.I. Musical Festival will be seen this afternoon on the CFXY TV program "Today At Home." During the program Helen Herring will be interviewing Mr. Gordon Bennett, vice-president of the Canadian Music Festivals and past-president of the P.E.I. Music Festival Association.

IDA BAILEY ALLEN

Beef Stew Is An Almost Traditional English Dish

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN
England's Parliament House in London, hallowed by centuries of tradition, stretches more than a thousand feet along the Thames River. Nearby in Westminster Abbey.

"Big Ben" in the great clock tower, silhouetted against the moonlit sky, boomed the hour, eight o'clock of a Saturday evening, when the American press party arrived at the entrance to the House of Commons, where we were guests at dinner of Mr. Robin Cooke, M.P.

As we passed through the long corridors to the reception hall, I managed a peek into the spoolwood-paneled kitchen and was greeted by smiles and friendly waves from the serving maids.

Here is the perfect dinner menu.

DINNER PARTY

Remove at once; beat thoroughly, add salt and nutmeg. Cover and chill.

Newlyweds Are Shower Guests In Darnley

BALTIC — Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Harding, following their recent wedding, were guests for a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harding.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Champion escorted the bride and groom to their seats, while Mrs. Ivan Dickieson played appropriate music. Karen and Carla Harding carried in the gifts, while Margaret Pickering and Carol Hickey opened them.

The accompanying verses and names were read by Mildred Thompson, and Mrs. Elmer Hickey arranged the gifts.

The groom expressed his own and his wife's appreciation and thanks.

A singsong with Mrs. Ivan Dickieson as pianist and Leslie and Eldon Harding as accompanists completed the evening.

Annie Horton Attends Meet Of Crystal Chapter

At the regular meeting held on Friday night, April 20 the Crystal Chapter, IOES was honored by an official visit from the worthy grand matron, Annie Horton of the Grand Chapter of Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Accompanying Mrs. Horton were Myrt MacLellan of Truro, N.S., Douglas Horton, Amherst and Pearl Grimley, Amherst.

Also present were Arthur and Irene Larkin of Kensington, P.E.I.

Before the meeting opened the worthy grand matron was presented with a corsage of yellow roses and the worthy grand patron with a boutonniere by Edith Lewis.

During the regular business meeting more presentations were made.

Mrs. Horton gave an inspiring address on the work of the order explaining the duties and merits of each officer. A number of the other visitors attending the meeting also spoke briefly.

Following the meeting the gathering adjourned to the banquet room where delicious refreshments were served by the past matrons of the Crystal Chapter with Mrs. Ives presiding over the tescups. A social hour followed.

Countess Is West Germany's Cultural Attache To Canada

By EDNA BLAKELY
OTTAWA (CP) — Countess Finck von Finckenstein, West Germany's new cultural attache here, says her mission is especially important because of Germany's political past.

"We have caused so much unhappiness in the world I hope to give others something beautiful."

She would like to show Canadians another face of her country — its scientists, artists, authors and poets.

Much of her work will involve the exchange of students and professors between Canadian and German universities.

The contact between intellectuals was good but should be encouraged at all levels. The best way to learn about a country was to visit it and the countess would like to see housewives, workers and school-children involved in exchange programs.

"We must enlarge the system that enlarges comprehension."

The countess joined Germany's diplomatic service in 1957 and served as an executive officer in the Bonn foreign office for three years before being posted to Valparaiso, Chile. She spent two years mastering Spanish, then came to Canada earlier this year. She had learned English as a schoolgirl in Berlin.

Her husband, Count Ottofried von Finckenstein, is an author and translator. Marie, 19, and Adenauer, 16, the youngest of their seven children, are in Ottawa with them.

The countess moved to diplomatic work from politics. After fleeing from East Prussia with her family in 1945, she became a political writer in Bonn.

"We were just a few among 12,000 refugees," she said. Because she was pregnant, she was taken to north Germany in a military car but many people walked.

She joined the Refugee Party and was elected to a four-year term to the German parliament in her first political bid in 1953. Her main interests were welfare and the unification of Europe and she continued to work for unification when she joined the diplomatic corps.

She says she is "absolutely persuaded" that it is possible. Economical unification already existed and the "political must follow."

In Chile the countess was concerned about "those poor, poor people who could not read or write and had no chance to help themselves." She "had a certain success" in encouraging society women to drop their bridge parties and teas in order to help with adult education programs.

TRICK OF THE CHEF
Brighten cooked cabbage by saucing with cumin seed lightly sauteed in butter heated until nut-brown (1 1/2 teaspoon cumin seed to 3 tablespoons butter).

ST. MARK'S W. A.
Mrs. Ron Parsons was hostess to seventeen members of St. Mark's Anglican WA at the April meeting held at the Rectory on Wednesday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. Elmer Moore, presided and led the devotions consisting of hymns, prayers and responsive readings. Roll call was answered with a verse containing the word "Light." The new text word chosen was "Treasure."

"The Victory of Light" was the title of the Bible study, in which the educational secretary was assisted by discussion among the members. A quiz on Mosaic Laws, conducted by Mrs. Harold Mill, created keen interest.

A Red Cross layette had been received, articles made up and returned. Articles for sale were displayed by the Dorcas secretary Mrs. Cecil Mill. Mrs. Lloyd Howard, social service secretary, read a letter from Mrs. Hemming, and one from Valija Savers in Germany thanking the WA for money and parcels received at Christmas. She also read a letter from Mrs. Campbell in Alberta, telling of a well filled box sent to Valija on March 1st.

It was announced by the president that the group will have a new prayer partner.

The president asked the WA to buy an honor ring for Joyce Sudbury, at the request of Mrs. Lester Champion, G.A. leader. The G.A.s have also taken on a project to collect dishes and cutlery for the Church Center, and asked for donations. A motion was passed that money be taken from the birthday box to buy the ring, and contributions from members oversubscribed the amount needed.

Mrs. J. G. Townsend invited the members to her home for the May meeting. The offering amounted to $5.50, flower fund $1.00.

Tea was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Elmer Moore and Mrs. Hazel Moore.

HIGHFIELD W.I.

3 new Johnson compacts prove boating can be fun without being expensive

Johnson believes boating is for everyone. The three Johnson compacts are for people who enjoy fishing and small-boat fun. With a Johnson compact it's quite possible to buy both a Compact 10 and a boat for less than $700.00. Even less if you have a trade. Because the compacts are designed to be carried, excess weight has been trimmed away to make them light. Underwater exhaust, beveled gears and suspension drive shafts make the compacts extremely quiet. The compacts have many standard-equipment features not always found in small motors, such as high quality baked-enamel finishes, fuel pumps, full gearshifts, thermostat controlled-cooling and complete corrosion proofing.

Visit your Johnson Dealer; find out which Sea-Horse Johnson made for you. A complete line of Sea-Horse accessories is also available. With almost a thousand Dealer's across Canada, service is never a problem when you own a Johnson.
