BRISTOL

Mr. William MacDonald a Bristol resident who has been residing in the city for some time discovered over the weekend that his old violin or old fiddle as many call them is one made in Germany and may be one of the very few that is worth a fortune. Music men in the city are tracing the old violin and if its what they think it is one man said it could be worth several hundred thousand bucks. Mr. MacDonald said he would not part with the instrument at any price right now until its value was found out.

Mr. Roach one of the best known knitters of lobster trap heads says he will knit with the help of his family several thousand heads this season.

It is understood that Mr. Sydney Anderson potato inspector has purchased a nice home of Mr. Byron Webster. The latter has moved to New Brunswick to reside. Mr. Anderson has resided in the fine Leslie property he purchased some years ago when he moved to the village.

The high school hockey team is showing its colors this winter with some smart players who hail from different school districts. The old timers under C. McAdam is also coming along pretty good for the chance they have. One of the things sorely needed in the incorporated village right now is an up-to-date rink like the one we once had. There are two large halls and a legion building, two large schools, bingo and card games going on weekly. But the young class want the rink and it is hoped another year some of the business men and business women will start the ball rolling early in the summer for the needed rink.

It is reported that another restaurant and store will be opened in the village in the spring. Right now the village diner seems to be all the restaurant required here.
