PEOPLES' PARTY'S MOTTO: VICTORY WITH HONOR.

Peoples' Party's Platform

"The Provincial executive will be reduced from nine to seven." "No public money will be expended in excess of legislative appropriations, unless in case of unavoidable necessity, such as caused by flood or sudden disaster." "Provision will be made for a quarterly publication of revenue and expenditure." "The office of Commissioner of Public Lands will be abolished and the duties assigned to the Attorney General." "The present ferry system will be reformed with a view to greater economy of expenditure without diminishing efficiency of accommodation." "A reform in the administration of the Surrogate and Probate court will be effected." "A radical change, will be made in the administration of the Public Works department, so that the money now wasted can be saved to the Province." "The present system of taxation will be so changed that it will operate with even-handed justice, and not bear oppressively and unfairly on any class of taxpayers." "Economy will be practised in every department, and taxation will be kept down to the lowest possible limit." "The efficiency of the Public Service will be maintained, and revenue and expenditure will be made to square as nearly as possible." "No further increase of the public debt will be permitted." "There will be considerable reductions in the expenditure of the public money, and the resources of the Province will be safeguarded and husbanded by every legitimate means that can be devised."

GOVERNMENT'S RECORD.

"They promised to greatly reduce the public expenditure. They have largely increased it." "In the strongest language they condemned a provincial debt. In five years they have added over a quarter of a million of dollars to our debt." "They solemnly professed that they could manage our affairs without taxation. In three years they have taken from the people over one hundred and thirty-eight thousand dollars in taxes." "They protested against the practice of borrowing money at the banks. There has scarcely been a year since they attained power, that the Province has not owed very large amounts to one or more of the banks." "They pledged themselves not to impose taxation without consulting the people. No sooner was the promise made than it was faithfully broken by the introduction and passage into law of four separate tax acts." "They seriously engaged, in 1891, to devote about 15,000 dollars of the money to be raised by debentures to the repair of the Provincial building. This has not been done. The building has received no repairs." "They loudly proclaimed, in opposition, that there was no necessity for a Commissioner of Public Lands. That official still exists, although they have been in power for over six years." "They denounced, with one voice, Provincial deficits. There has not been a single year of their administration that there has not been a large deficit,—their deficits aggregate over $255,000, and if the taxes they collected be added, the astounding result of over $393,000 will be reached."

AN INTERESTING FIGURE.

An interesting figure in the jubilee procession at London was that of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, the heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne. It is only a few months ago that this Prince was supposed to be in the very last stages of quick consumption. His death was momentarily expected, and so certain was it thought to be that his brother, hated alike by the Emperor and the people of the Empire, was officially recognized as the future ruler. As a last resort, Ferdinand went to Egypt, and there the climate seems to have worked something not much less than a miracle, for, as he rode through the streets of London, there were few among the scores of princes who bore themselves more vigorously than he or looked more likely to attain old age. Ferdinand, who was born in 1863, is one of the richest men in Europe, as he inherited, while still a child, all the immense wealth of the Este branch of the Hapsburg family. His father was the most confirmed of Ultramontanes, the Archduke Karl Ludwig, who died last year and his mother was a daughter of "Bomba" of Naples. Thus he can hardly be said to have started life under the best of auspices. He was only 8 years old when his mother died, yet his father straightway handed him over to the care of the Jesuits, with strict injunctions that he should be brought up untainted by this wicked nineteenth century. Once his own master, a reaction set in, and he rushed into every kind of dissipation. Still, even in those days his career compared very favorably with that of his brother Otto, and the people who have had most opportunities to judge maintain that he has always been more sinned against than sinning. He is by nature they declare, both intelligent and kindly, and his faults are the inevitable result of the way he was brought up. He became heir to the throne by the tragic death of Prince Rudolph, and the old Emperor at once took him in hand, spending many hours of every day in impressing upon him the responsibilities of his new station. Under this tutelage he sobered down completely, and was fast becoming popular with both Austrians and Magyars when his health failed. This necessitated an attempt to reform Otto in a similar way, but Ferdinand's recovery has made it unnecessary to continue what seemed to be an almost hopeless task."

FOREST MONSTERS.

Some of the Giant Trees That Are Found in California.

In the national parks and forest preserves of California the big trees are by far the most interesting and greatest natural features. There are two varieties—namely, Sequoia sempervirens, ordinarily known as the redwood, the tree which has furnished most of the redwood lumber of commerce, and the Sequoia gigantea, from which a comparatively small amount of similar lumber has also been made. The former is the smaller variety and grows on the foothills along the coast. The latter attains a considerably larger growth, is, more strictly speaking, the "big tree" of California, and is seldom found at a lower altitude than 5,000 feet.

Scattered along the extent of the Sierra Nevada from north to south are many distinct and separate groups or groves of Sequoia gigantea. These are generally known by names significant of locality, as, for instance, "Calaveras," "Tuolumne," "Mariposa" and "Fresno," names of the counties in which the groves so called are situated. The Tuolumne grove is in the Yosemite Park, and the Mariposa near by. This latter is the one most frequently visited by tourists and contains the "Wawona"—a tree with a hole burned in its base, through which the stage road runs and four horse stages are driven without difficulty—and the "Grizzly Giant," one of the largest trees in the world.

The stately grandeur of these enormous and lofty trees is so impressive that it seems quite fit and natural that some of the larger ones should have been individualized and honored with distinguished titles. Nearly every state in the Union and every distinguished general of the civil war has a namesake among them. The "General Grant," in the General Grant park, and the "General Sheridan" of the "Giant forest" (situated in the Sequoia park) are individuals of the largest size. It is difficult to determine just which of the big trees is the largest, but these two and the "Grizzly Giant"—the gnarly base of any one of which will exceed 30 feet in diameter—are probably the biggest trees yet discovered.

The trees often grow in such inaccessible mountain retreats that some of the territory covered by them has never yet been thoroughly and systematically explored. Outside the lands reserved by the government a California lumber company owns several thousand acres of these trees—enough to last 40 years, cutting many millions of feet per year.—Harper's Weekly.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

Showing What a Shotgun Can Do in a Load of Hay.

"What was the most exciting experience I ever had?" repeated Clarence Haight at the Olympic Gun club. "I think it occurred last summer, when I was hunting doves up in Sonoma county. Now, shooting doves is not particularly exciting or perilous, but this was one of the hottest experiences I ever had."

"I had been traveling all day with a big bag, and was pretty well tired out when I struck the country road and started for home. It was a good four miles' walk, and I was pretty well pleased to see a big wagon load of hay approaching. The rancher gave me permission to ride, so I scrambled up on top, lay down on the sweet, new mown hay and went swaying and swinging down the road. I was just dozing off when bang! went my shotgun. I had forgotten to take the cartridges out of it, and something had pressed the trigger. The horses gave a jump, and the driver rolled off into the ditch."

"Then I discovered that my gun had set fire to the hay, and I thought it was about time for me to escape. The horses were tearing along the road as hard as they could run, but I clambered for the side of the load and slid for the road. The tail of my stout hunting coat caught on the top of a sharp standard, and there I hung to the careening wagon that threatened to upset and dump a load of burning hay on me at every turn of the road."

"The fire was crackling and burning fiercely, and already I could feel the flames. Still the horses ran, and still my coat held me fast to that seething mass of flames. My trousers commenced getting hot, and then I found my coat was on fire. The next moment the loose cartridges in my pockets commenced exploding from the heat, and then I smelled my doves broiling."

"I had just made up my mind that all was over, when the tail of my coat burned off and I was thrown into a ditch full of water beside the road. I did not stop to see what became of the hay and the horses, nor of the rancher, but cut straight across that field for home. That, gentlemen, was the most thrilling experience of my life."—New York Press.

SCOTT ACT MANIFESTO.

To the People of P. E. Island:

What will you have, Scott Act or Free Rum? We will have one or the other after election day.

The times are laden with golden opportunities for, and woeful dangers to, the cause of temperance; and it behooves men and women everywhere to be in real and active earnest in promoting temperance and denouncing the liquor traffic.

Charlottetown holds the key of sobriety or drunkenness for this Province. The Scott Act election, to be held July 22nd decides which door will be opened—whether from the fountain head of P. E. Island will flow a stream of good or one of damning influence, contaminating more or less every boy and girl, every man and woman in this province. The enemy is strongly entrenched in this city. Its wealth and power is concentrated here and will fight as never before for its very existence. It is tenfold harder to drive liquor out of the city than out of the country.

The success or defeat of the Scott Act will not only strongly affect, for weal or woe, the people of P. E. Island for some years to come but will have a pronounced effect upon the coming Plebiscite. The eyes of this great Dominion are on us, and the result of this election will be strongly felt by the people from the Atlantic to the shores of the Pacific. Mr. S. F. Spencer, of Toronto, in writing, says it will be a great calamity to the temperance cause if the Scott Act is defeated in Charlottetown. Now then, in view of these things, we ask for your sympathy and financial aid. May God give us all wisdom and power to fight and maintain His cause.
