

Atomic Curtain Between East, West Lifted By Reds

By RONALD BATCHELOR
 GENEVA (Reuters) — Russian scientists Wednesday gave the world's top atom experts a mass of hitherto top-secret data on Soviet nuclear experiments.

They sprang a surprise on delegates from 72 countries at a deluge of peace conference here by putting forth detailed measurements from their experiments in atomic fission.

Such facts so far have been cloaked in strictest secrecy by both East and West.

One Western delegate commented: "The atomic curtain in fundamental physics is now completely down between East and West."

PRECEDENT ESTABLISHED

Never before had such a wealth of detail in such exact terms been collated and exchanged between the world's leading scientists.

Russia's Dr. M. S. Kozlov gave the long list of highly-technical data and measurements which, in the main, complemented those made in the West. A Western delegate said it would have amazed such knowledge as the result of information gained by spies.

Physicists from the United States, Russia, Britain and the other Eastern and Western states were meeting for the second day to share data on the fundamental principles of nuclear energy.

NO BREAKTHROUGH YET

Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, disclosed the United States has been working "for a considerable time" on ways to harness the energy of the hydrogen bomb for peaceful uses.

"Progress is being made from a scientific point of view, but there has been nothing in the way of a breakthrough which would indicate anything but a long-range task," he told a press conference.

The Strauss statement followed a similar announcement by Britain Wednesday and by Russia earlier this summer that they were trying to solve the riddle of controlling H-bomb type energy, called fusion energy.

Strauss said the problem was unprecedented in difficulty, but that scientifically it did not appear impossible. He did not say when results could be expected.

Strauss also said the time is close when the U.S. may begin selling power-grade uranium and plutonium to countries outside the Iron Curtain.

ATOMIC "KLONDIKE"

A. H. Lang, acting chief of the mineral deposits division of the Geological Survey of Canada, said his country now is the scene of a new "Klondike rush" with prospectors using helicopters and jeeps instead of packhorses, in a hunt for uranium instead of gold. But many amateurs were attracted to the search by over-simplified and over-glamorous publicity, and made a nuisance of themselves.

Several papers stressed the importance of radioisotopes—a by-product of nuclear energy—to agriculture, industry and medicine.

Russian professor A. L. Kurzanov said these had shown Russian scientists the possibility of making more economical and effective use of fertilizers.

He also hinted that the secret of photosynthesis, the process by which plants use sunshine in turn using inorganic matter into organic matter for food, may be mastered soon.

Dr. R. A. Silow, of the agriculture division of the UN Food and Agriculture Organization, said more value may eventually be gained from nuclear energy by-products than from industrial atomic power itself. By-products such as isotopes were extending the frontiers of agriculture knowledge "into fields hitherto inaccessible," he said.

Says Woman Told Husband Was Prisoner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The air force said Tuesday night it addressed a telegram to Mrs. Una Schmidt on June 22 last year saying her airman husband, Daniel C. Schmidt, was reported a prisoner in Red China. This was three months before Mrs. Schmidt says she married him.

Una repeatedly has told reporters she married Fine, 21, a logging worker, last September in the belief Schmidt was dead. She said she received word in January, 1953, that he had been shot down and that it was not until November, 1954 two months after her second marriage, that she was notified Schmidt was a prisoner of war.

The air force said that during the Geneva POW discussions in June last year it received a list of prisoners whom the Reds said they held. Notifications were sent out to next of kin on all the list.

The air force also sent a letter to Mrs. Schmidt confirming the information and saying she would be kept informed of any developments.

The air force said it had a receipt from Western Union for delivery of the telegram but the spokesman did not know who signed the receipt. He said it was presumed the letter was delivered since it was not returned to the air force.

As the question was raised whether Mrs. Schmidt knew her husband was alive when she married Fine, the 20-year-old woman with two husbands remained in seclusion in a house trailer in the High Sierra—weighing which one to choose.

Among The Farmers

Federation of Agriculture Newsletter

Ever since rainfall first appeared, the remark has been passed that it falls on both the just and the unjust. It might further be remarked that it is well no individual has the responsibility of deciding what the weather is doing to be in the summer months, urban people hope to have it fine and warm on holidays and over the week-ends. The latter period appeals to the farmer as the best for a real soaker. Central Canada and a portion of the adjoining United States has this year suffered with the lack of moisture has been extremely high temperatures tending to sear the crops and with the pasture. In many cases it has become necessary to give cattle the feed which should be on hand for next winter. This all adds up to decreased production of meat and milk. Should the dry weather and scarcity of feed persist it is likely that large numbers of low grade cattle will be on the market this Fall. The result will be lowered prices to be followed likely next Spring and Summer by an increase over this year's levels.

HAYSEED

In the mind of the urban dweller the term "hayseed" produces an altogether different mental picture than is the case of the farmer who means by this word the seed of the timothy plant. Timothy has so far proven to be the most reliable of crops for hay. True, it is not very satisfactory as a pasture plant and was for many years held to make only suitable hay for horses. More and more, however, it is being recognized that timothy, if made into silage or cut early for hay is an excellent cattle feed. Years ago practically every farmer saved a small piece for his own seed. This practice dwindled and more and more is being replaced by a commercial operation. Of recent years the total acreage devoted to commercial purposes is, we believe, on the increase. Prices realized last year made this a profitable crop and this year's good crop will tend to increase the production. Timothy seed is being harvested this week, side by side with those who are still making hay or what will be by courtesy be given that title.

RUSSIAN FARMERS

When early last March it was suggested by an Iowa newspaper that Russian farmers be brought to observe American agriculture, we noted in our newsletter of March 18, that if diplomacy and prosecution of wars was left to might be noticeable in international affairs. The acceptance by the Russians of the American invitation was the first indication, to our knowledge, of a mellow attitude by Russian rulers to the Western world and its ideas and people. Recently the signs all point to a more reasonable attitude developing between the East and West. With this we look forward to seeing an increased activity in the field of exchanging agricultural ideas between the East and the West as admittedly one of the problems that Russia has not been able to solve is the adequate production of food.

FARMER EXCHANGE

The National Grange, one of the major farm organizations in the United States, has for some years past been active in bringing teen-aged European farm people to the United States for periods of up to one year. This year the Grange is bringing 26 young German people. They will go to school and participate in Grange church and other community activities as well as help out with work on the farms where they may be stationed.

AUSTRALIAN MARGARINE

The Australian government some time ago enacted a statute which required margarine manufacturers to secure a license and to adhere to production quotas. These regulations were recently the subject of a decision by the Supreme Court of Australia. The Court ruled that the laws were valid.

FIRE AND ACCIDENTS

The last month has produced an unusually high quota of farm fires. These were due to lightning which was certainly difficult to prevent, only adequate insurance could provide protection.

Having, spraying and harvesting all produced their quota of breaking limbs, wrenched backs and amputated fingers. Many of those accidents can be prevented and in particular, those which occur as a result of extra riders on the farm tractor. In too many cases the farm tractor is treated as something to play with. This is a very dangerous plaything and in the hands of wild cowboys becomes a potential killer.

MEACHAM

Published in 1880 Meacham's Atlas of which a number of copies still exist in the Province, provides a valuable source of information on the early history of the Province and the ownership of the land. Of particular interest is the fact that in that particular period every stream in the Province had a number of small dams which were used to provide power for saw, grist and carding mills. In many cases a stream ten or twelve miles long would have five dams. Thus the number in the Province must have been very large, possibly numbering in the thousands and constituting an available means of water conservation and of maintaining the water table at a high level.

We do not know how numerous the copies of the old Atlas are. Those individuals who are fortunate in having possession of one have a valuable book and every care should be exercised in its preservation.

Frequently we hear visitors remark upon the neat appearance of the farm homes in the Province and the fact that so many of the buildings are painted. It is possibly no harm to divulge the fact that in many cases this "paint" is lime whitewash. A fact which recalls to our mind the sarcastic statement relative to a certain community where most of the buildings were of an actual grey. "The people in that community" said the unkind commentator, "were too poor to paint and too proud to whitewash". Whitewash certainly does add to the appearance of any building and is definitely valuable as preservative. Unfortunately it must be done yearly to maintain the best appearance and must be applied with a brush if the job is to have a neat appearance. Whitewash may be sprayed over very rapidly but the drawback here is the difficulty of getting the material over the windows, up on the roof, and other portions of the building where it is not required.

FRUIT CROP

It appears to be a favorable season for the production of a wide variety of fruit both cultivated and wild. Many farm orchards show prospects of a good apple crop, in fact, the best for many years. Wild raspberries — one of the most delicious of fruits — is a really good crop and farm women are braving the risk of wasps, snakes and scratches to harvest their quota.

Two Seized As Suspects In Bank Holdup

NEW YORK (AP)—Two hoodlums were seized by the FBI Wednesday as members of a four-man gang that staged a $305,000 bank holdup here April 6—the largest cash bank robbery in history.

Assistant U. S. attorney Paul Windels Jr., confirmed police suspicion the smoothly executed stickup of a Chase Manhattan branch bank was in part an inside job.

Windels said a bank employee helped the bandits.

The FBI issued warrants for two other men, including a murderer who was a suspect from the start. Both these fugitives were described as armed and dangerous.

Arrested and charged with violating the National Bank Robbery Act were James McCoo, 36, and Frank Cocchiaro, 34.

WIFE WAS EMPLOYEE

The FBI said Cocchiaro's wife, Mildred, was a teller at work in the bank when it was robbed. She since has resigned.

The Chase Manhattan holdup was a classic of precision timing in its execution.

The bandits, one with a sub-machine-gun, handled 11 employees at arm's length, scooped up a fortune mostly in small bills and apparently made a clean getaway without a shot being fired.

As a prelude, the bandits kidnapped a teller outside his home and used him to gain entry into the bank before it opened for business. Kidnapping of the teller makes the bandits liable to the death penalty if convicted.

In Memoriam

MRS. WILLIAM Y. MacEWEN

Many hearts were saddened on July 15th by the tragic death by accident of Mrs. William Y. MacEwen of Summerside at the early age of 32. Mrs. MacEwen was a young woman of many qualities of mind and heart, kindly, loyal, generous to a point of self sacrifice. Of her it could be truly said, she wore the white flower of a blameless life, and her memory will be ever green in the hearts of those to whom she had endeared herself.

Much sympathy goes out to her husband and William Y. MacEwen and son Horace, and to relatives and friends so suddenly bereft of one much beloved. Her funeral was held from Mt. Stewart United Church on July 18 and was largely attended.

Services were conducted by Rev. J. M. Sproule of York. Her remains were tenderly laid to rest in Mt. Stewart Cemetery, there to await the Resurrection morning when the shadows flee away and those angel faces smile which we have loved long since and lost awhile.

Sleep on beloved, sleep and take thy rest. We love thee well but Jesus loves thee best. Good night, dear one, good night.

Mechanization Slow In Rubber And Rice Planting

SINGAPORE, (Reuters)—Mechanization is coming slowly to rubber planting and rice cultivation in Malaya, where manual labor has always been the rule.

Throughout Asia, the sight of lines of men, women and children bending in mud to plant life-giving "padi" or standing in the sun to harvest the rice crop, has been traditional.

In the rubber industry, thousands of laborers have been employed tapping rubber or weeding the huge estates.

To date only about 1,000 tractors are used for agricultural work in Malaya. This is 10 times the number in use five years ago but it still puts Malaya far behind other countries which are attempting to mechanize agriculture.

A detailed count shows that 740 tractors are in use on estates and the rest on small holdings, mainly growing rice. This total exceeds the number brought into the country for mining, road-making and civil engineering.

Government assistance is making the tractors available to some small holders and at least 200 are at work in the small rice fields in Malay villages from one end of the country to the other.

On estates, holdings of more than 100 acres, the value of mechanization is more apparent. It is estimated that twice as much mechanized cultivation now takes place on these estates as five years ago.

In the rubber industry, most important to Malaya's economy and at the same time most vulnerable to market changes, there is evidence that the swing towards mechanization is increasing, particularly for costly operations like replanting.

The government is determined that rice production in Malaya shall increase.

The rate of opening up new land for the settlement of small holders, however, must depend upon the rate at which small farmers become available. Most of them are poor men and conversion of an average of four acres from jungle or swamp to a rice-growing area is an arduous task.

It takes him an average of four or five years to bring this four-acre plot to full production unless he is given substantial financial help, tractors and other equipment.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my son, Cpl. David L. Laybolt, who was killed in action, August 12, 1944.

We little thought when he was leaving home that he would no more return. That he in death so soon would sleep.

And leave us here to mourn.

We do not know what pain he bore, We did not see him die, We only know he passed away, And never said good-bye.

We will always be remembered by his Mother and Father and five children, Annal, Clarence, Daniel, Ellen, Georgina.

In loving memory of my dear brother Sheldon McQuarrie, who was killed in an accident August 11, 1933.

Through his smile is gone forever and his voice I cannot hear, I shall never lose sweet memories of the one I loved so dear.

Lovingly remembered by sister Mrs. Parker Smith.
