Blind Old Age Pensioners Face Increase In Charges

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind in four provinces has increased room and board charges for blind old age pensioners in its care and in a fifth province an increase is expected soon.

The raised charges come on the heels of the recent $10-a-month increase in the old age pension to $65 from $55.

Room and board increases have been reported by the CNIB in Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

The CNIB Ontario office has disclosed that an increase, not yet formulated, is expected "soon."

Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia and Newfoundland CNIB headquarters are not planning to push up charges, but in two or these provinces it has been reported those blind persons receiving provincial and municipal aid to bridge costs of their full keep will get no benefit from the larger old age pension. The CNIB has no residence program in Quebec.

APPEALS IN COMMONS

Following an increase to $55 a month from $45 in the CNIB room and board rate in Winnipeg, Murdo Martin, CCF member for Timmins, Ont., last week in the Commons said the government should introduce social security pensions of real benefit to the elderly blind who must pay for room and board out of pensions.

He said the increase in Manitoba left recipients with only 33 cents a day.

CNIB business manager Robert Hutsell in Winnipeg explained the cost of keeping a man or woman in a single room, with meals, recently has risen to $35 a month from $75 with the federal government making up the extra $30.

"They still get back their $10 from their pensions cheque," he said. "We tried to get a little more back for them, but it's a question of our deficit."

APPROVE $8 RAISE

The Maritime board of the CNIB has just approved an increase in monthly rates to $48 from $40 at the Lancaster, N.B., residence which serves New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

In Newfoundland authorities are not contemplating raising charges. However the CNIB there only has room for a few pensioners.

None of the Maritime provinces provide government assistance for the elderly blind.

Oldster Married Last Year Celebrates 100th Birthday

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — "Only 79 years old?" scoffed William Alexander Smith. "I was told I was born in 1862."

He is 100 years old, agreed his 28-year-old wife, Marjorie.

She said that when they were married last year they told city officials he was only 78. "We were afraid if we put down the right age we wouldn't get a licence."

Mr. Smith celebrated his birthday last Friday and congratulations poured in, including the traditional greetings to centenarians from the Queen and Prime Minister Diefenbaker. He received callers as he relaxed in his wheelchair at Westminster Hospital.

Tuesday doubt was cast on his age and on his war service. First, city records revealed the age on the marriage licence. Other records showed he was born variously in Woodstock, March 2, 1865, 1866 and 1871, and also in Crestville, N.C., in 1883.

Department of Veterans' Affairs records showed he served as a private in the First World War. The records did not support Mr. Smith's claim that he also served in the Boer War and, before his age was discovered, for 1½ years during the Second World War.

Unperturbed at the official statistics, Mr. Smith said he certainly served in the other two wars, although he cannot remember with what outfits.

Mrs. Smith said her husband was born in the area where Timmins now stands (it grew from a mining camp started in 1910), and was brought to Woodstock when he was one year old. She said when Mr. Smith was about 10, the family doctor, Dr. Brownlie, told him he was born March 2, 1862.

"The doctor got the information from the family bible—but that has since been lost or destroyed," Mrs. Smith said.

Marjorie is Mr. Sm th's third wife—the others died. She said stroyed," Mrs. Smith said.

Marjorie is Mr. Smith's third wife—the others died. She said the gap of 72 years between them makes no difference.

"He has a great deal more experience in life than! have," she said. "He is a great help to me."

Paul Hellyer Said Gullible

OTTAWA (CP) — Works Minister Walker has described Paul Hellyer (L—Toronto Trinity) as "gullible" for bringing up in the Commons the subject of location of a new post office at Reserve Mines, N.S.

Mr. Hellyer asked whether the minister has received representations that the location is dangerous for children.

Mr. Walker said the question was "a repetition of an old chestnut." A protest meeting at Reserve Mines had been attended by only 18 persons and presumably Mr. Hellyer was acting for these 18.

The ministera dded that the most popular and safest site had been picked "despite the interference of opposition politicians."

Celanese Co. Earnings Higher

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Celanese Ltd., textile manufacturers, has announced net earnings in 1961 were $3,374,540, or $2.08 a share, compared with $2,958,153, or $1.74 a share, in 1960.

President C. W. Palmer said in the annual report, "all divisions showed satisfactory increases in sales and profit, with the exception of warpknit fabric and yarn sales to warpknitters, which were slightly down compared with the previous year."

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2♠	Pass	3♠	Pass
7♠

Opening lead—Jack of clubs.

A reader sends this hand in which he bid and made seven spades. North-South were using the ace-showing convention over two-bids, and South wasted no time getting to seven after he learned that North had the ace of diamonds.

It is not easy to see how declarer made the contract, and if you feel like testing your skill before reading on, this is your chance.

Declarer ruffs the club in dummy, trumps a heart, and then ruffs a club, ruffs a spade, ruffs a club, and ruffs the third round of hearts.

He next draws three rounds of trumps, and nine tricks having been played, this becomes the position:

Declarer now cashes his last trump. West cannot find a suitable discard. He is squeezed.

If West discards the king of hearts, dummy's eight becomes a trick, and if West chooses instead to discard a diamond, declarer's diamonds all become good. Either way, South wins the remaining tricks.

At first blush, it does seem overly-dramatic for South to trump the A-K-Q of clubs in dummy, but if he doesn't do this, he goes down.

The purpose of these plays is to try to exhaust one defender of all his hearts so that place the burden of guarding against the eight of hearts on the other defender.

Nothing can be lost by this effort, even though it may turn out to be a waste of time if the hearts are divided 5-4.

If that proves to be the case, declarer can always fall back on a favorable diamond division, and will not be worse off for having given himself an extra choice to make the contract. Two shots to make the hand are better than one.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
