Weight Dead and Alive. It is a very popular idea that a poon when dead weighs heavier than when living. One reason that a dead body is thought to be heavier than a living one is probably this: In carrying a living person we have the center of gravity adapted by the person carried to suit the convenience of the carrier and maintained in a position as far as possible to fall within the base of his body. Again, the elasticity of the structure of the body, especially the cartilages, though not in reality diminishing the weight, gives an appearance of lightness, as we see in the beautiful movements of the stag, and this would seem to corroborate the notion that living creatures are lighter than dead ones. It has also been asserted that the breath makes the living body lighter than the dead. But we need hardly say that a man when dead weighs no more than when alive.—London Tit-Bits.

Well Paid. "Will you take this here woman for better or wuss an give me $2 for marryin of you?" was the unique manner in which a Georgia justice addressed a man. "I'll take the woman, but blame me if I have the $2," replied the groom. The justice of the peace took a kiss from the bride for his fee. And it was richly worth $2 too.—Dublin (Ga.) Dispatch.

Knew He Was Not Guilty. "Madam, your husband has been arrested for arson." "Impossible! Why, he never started a fire in his life."—Columbus (O.) State Journal.

The Normans introduced their own style of writing letters into England and, according to an edict of William the Conqueror, all legal documents were written in the Norman hand.

It is said of the great Swedish botanist and scientist Linnaeus that he placed over his door the motto, "Live innocently; God is present."

Two Thousand Pigs. A butcher residing in a country town was afflicted with a terrible lisp. One day, being suddenly seized with an inspiration to raise his own pork, he invested in a few pigs; but, having no place ready for their immediate occupation, he called upon a neighbor whom he knew had an empty sty.

"I thay, old man," he began, "I have juth bought a few pigth. Could you lend me your sty?" "Certainly, if it is any use. But how many pigs have you? The sty is none too large."

"Oh, only two thowth and pigth." "Two thousand pigs! Good gracious! It wouldn't hold 200!"

"I did not thay two thowthand pigth. I thud two thowth and pigth." "Yes, I hear, and it won't take a quarter of them. It's no use."

"You don't understand me," said the poor fellow. "I do not mean two thowthand pigth; I mean two thowth and pigth."

"Well, you couldn't get 20 in; so there!" "I don't want to!" exclaimed the lisper excitedly. "There are not two thowthand pigth, but two thowth and pigth, I tell you!" And so he kept on in vain until at last a happy thought struck him. "I did not mean two thowthand pigth, but two thowth and two pigth!"

He got the sty.—London Answers.

More and More. "Jeremiah," she said to her husband, who dislikes pets, "you know that you think a great deal more of that dog than you used to."

"That's true." "I'm glad to hear you say so." "Every night now he refuses to let me think of anything else."—Washington Star.

CUPID AT COURT. Young Cupid strung his bow one day and scolded out for sport. As country hearts were easy prey, Odds darts, he went to court. Of all that wore the puff and patch, Belinda led the fair. With falbala and fan to match, I trow she made him stare. "Oho!" he cried and quickly drew His bow upon the sly. But, though he pierced her bosom through, She never breathed a sigh. This was a turn beyond a doubt That filled him with amaze, And so he sought his mother out With tear bewildered gaze. "You silly boy!" Dame Venus said. "Why did you waste your art? Go clip your curls and hide your head—Belinda has no heart!" —Samuel Minturn Peck.

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET.

Let us now examine into some of the conditions surrounding domestic wells and springs in the larger towns and villages, conditions which also prevail sometimes even about rural homes. We shall then be better able to understand how a well, like a Nevada silver mine, may have "millions in it," and how "the old oaken bucket" may bring from the depths elements of disease with the same draft that refreshes the thirsty throat. For convenience a well is situated in the back yard, perhaps a rod away from the house, or it may even be nearer. Certain other things, also for convenience's sake, are grouped close about the back door. Here is a cess-pool but a short distance, perhaps only a few feet, from the well. There is a vault, a filthy institution, which is an open disgrace to civilization. A little farther away is the garbage heap. In other adjacent localities are the chicken coop, the pigpen and the stable, with their accumulations of decomposing filth. It may be that in a corner a dead animal has been buried to save the trouble of conveying it to a distance. A damp and reeking spot near the back door marks the place where the slops have been deposited since the drains to the cesspool became stopped up with the accumulated refuse of half a dozen years.

Every one of the sources of contamination mentioned is a contributor to the well. A part of the putrid material floats upon the ground and is disposed of by evaporation, but the greater portion of it soaks into the ground. It is a common error to suppose that whatever has disappeared into the ground is destroyed. The filth which has disappeared from the surface may be out of sight, but it is not out of existence. If the soil is filled with refuse of various kinds, the well will be contaminated. Every rain washes the filth a little deeper down until it reaches the well proper or one of the underground veins of water by which it is fed. It may not be generally known that a well will draw water a distance of 60 feet.—Arena.

A Hand Written Book.

Colonel Noble D. Preston of this city has completed a most remarkable book. Except for some photographs and one or two lithographs, the entire book is the work of the author's pen. The workmanship could not be more perfect or beautiful, and it took Colonel Preston most of his leisure time of eight years to complete it. The title on the back of the book is "Preston's Pen Pictures, Medals, Songs and Sketches, Medal of Honor, Loyal Legion, Biographies, Bugle Blasts, Family Genealogies, etc.—Noble D. Preston."

On opening the book one's first idea is that the pages are fine examples of copper-plate engraving, but a closer inspection shows that it is all pen work, done with a very fine pointed pen. Not from any irregularity in the work can this be told, however, as every letter is as perfect and every line as even as the best example of the engraver's art. Each letter is separate. Only a man of unbounded patience and absolute control of his nerves could have done it. At the heads of the chapters are bits of scroll work, done in ink of various colors, and the initial letter of each chapter is a remarkably beautiful piece of illumination. Besides this, there is scroll and margin work on some of the pages.

Under the heading of "Preface," which is itself an exquisite bit of penmanship, the author says: "I made this novel volume with pen and ink for my children by special request." It possesses no literary merit and little of any other. The edition is limited to one volume and is not copyrighted. The main body of the volume is taken up by reminiscences of incidents of the author's career as a member of the Tenth New York cavalry.—Philadelphia Record.
