Book On Bible By Rev. L. Toombs

Rev. Lawrence Toombs

Recently released for publication is a text book entitled "A Year With The Bible" written by Rev. Lawrence Toombs, Ph.D., professor at Drew University, Madison, N.J., and formerly of Charlottetown.

The text is intended to provide guidance to a group of young people studying the Bible for a period of one year. It tries to emphasize the Bible itself and to keep background and introductory material at a minimum.

Dr. Toombs points out in the book's introduction that the course provided is merely a series of outlines, stripped to the bare bones.

The groups using these outlines will have to put the flesh on the skeletons and give them life," says Dr. Toombs.

Divided into three parts, each 10 periods, it is thought that it should be possible to cover one period in a 50-60 minute session. The book has been adopted for study by the National Young People's Union, the Board of Christian Education, the United Church of Canada.

Princess Has Fun During Stay In N. B.

By JOHN MOSHER

Canadian Press Staff Writer FREDERICTON (CP) - Princess Alexandra, in a good mood to assess some fun between the numerous formal phases of her three-day stay in New Brunswick with her mother, the Duchess of Kent.

"She had a wonderful time Monday night," a member of the royal party said Tuesday before their special train pulled out for Montreal.

It followed a dignified dinner given by Lieutenant-Governor D.L. MacLaren and the provincial government.

Then the 17-year-old princess was a guest at the home of Janet McNair, also 17, daughter of former premier John B. McNair. Boys and girls of the same age group enjoyed dancing and all had a fine time.

PRINCESS BREAKS SCHEDULE - Two previous departures from an otherwise rigid schedule were made in this province by the gay young princess. At Moncton, she left an officers' mess to see the magnetic hill, where the lie of the land makes an uphill stretch of road appear to slope down.

At Saint John, after a civic reception, she slipped away to inspect HMS Sheffield, British cruiser which was christened by her mother.

The New Brunswick tour began and ended with the rain, sandwiching a fine, warm Labor Day. About 100 persons—a sharp contrast with previous large turnouts here and at every other spot on the N. B. itinerary—endured the wet weather in hopes of catching a final glimpse of the royal visitors.

When the lieutenant-governor, Premier Hugh John Flemming and Mayor H. S. Wright accompanied by their wives, stepped from the train after saying farewell, the duchess appeared on the rear platform to wave good-bye.

STILL SLEEPING - A minute or so later the train started and the disappointed spectators asked, "Where's the princess?"

The receding duchess called through cupped hands: "She had such a good time last night she's still sleeping." Her daughter had been up until 1:15 a. m.

The three-week eastern Canadian tour will end in the Montreal area and Laurentian mountains. The party will visit New York before sailing home on the liner Queen Mary.

After a trip through the salmon-famous Miramichi district, the royal visitors had a half hour stop Tuesday afternoon at Newcastle, N. B. where mayors Percyley Roy and D. J. Cripps of Newcastle and Chatham were presented.

BIG OWLS - The horned owl, largest Canadian species, is nearly two feet in length.

navy and white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. On their return they will reside in Cherry Valley.

Stresses Need of Early Treatment In Dealing With Problem of Cancer

"No matter how elaborate the technical machinery is for dealing with cancer, unless the patients go to the doctor early they lose the chance of being saved," said Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan, O.B.E., president of the P.E.I. Division of the Canadian Cancer Society. One of the founders of the Society, Dr. MacMillan made the statement last night at the opening meeting of the "Special Names" Cancer Drive.

"Our duty is education, said Dr. MacMillan, "to bring home to our people in every possible way the danger symptoms of cancer. I am quite satisfied with what we have done—our educational programme has been successful in bringing people to the doctor earlier. Our pathological reports indicate that our education is effective. Our safest refuge in the cancer control programme is our educational programme. When in doubt, we urge our people to go to the doctor early. Quite a number who do go have the great satisfaction of being told that they have not got cancer."

"The funds collected here are also used for cancer research on 70 different projects, for national fellowships for doctors and for refresher courses for our Island doctors."

"The whole co-ordinated programme is an endeavor to save lives and I am glad we are doing so well."

"I have no doubt that when the campaign is over we will have reached our objective as the cancer drive is one that always meets with a hearty response from our people," concluded Dr. MacMillan.

Mr. R. M. Jones, "Special Names" chairman distributed the cards to the different teams (given in another column) and thanked the workers for their attendance.

Mr. W. H. Beaton, general city chairman, presided and also gave a concise but interesting report of the proceedings of the Grand Council.

Geo'town Home, School Meeting

The first Home and School Association meeting of the fall season was held at the home of Mrs. Agnes Murphy on Thursday, Sept. 2. A favourable report was received from the dental clinic which was sponsored by the Home and School organization in Georgetown in the spring. All grade 1 pupils had received complete dental care at a small nominal fee for each child. This is a service very much appreciated by the parents.

The Georgetown Home and School Association also sponsored the Red Cross swimming and water safety program held here recently under the able instruction of Miss Bernice Delory. A motion was passed to send the donation to the Red Cross for this service to the community. Some discussion was held on the possibility of obtaining a piano for the school, further discussion to be held at the next meeting.

Miss G. Soloman moved that a donation of $10 be made to the Iron Lung fund in Charlottetown. This was seconded by Mrs. F. J. Delory, and this motion was heartily endorsed by all present.

Next month the annual meeting will take place and the nominating committee to draw up the slate of officers is as follows: Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, Mrs. Agnes Murphy, Mrs. C. Fraser.

Mutt And Jeff Comic Strip Creator Dies

NEW YORK, (AP)—Bud Fisher, 69, creator of the "Mutt and Jeff" comic strip, died in Roosevelt hospital Tuesday of cancer. Fisher started his comic strip for the Saturday Chronicle in 1907. His talents caught the eye of William Randolph Hearst, who signed him to a contract the next year.

Fisher was born Harry Conway Fisher in Chicago April 1, 1885. He had gone west in the early part of the century with ambitions to be a prize fighter. However, he abandoned this plan after one fight—in which he was knocked cold.

Fisher then turned to drawing sketches and cartoons put in windows of stores to attract customers and finally obtained a job in the art department of the Chronicle.

Fisher spent his day off at a track across the bay, watching the characters who hung out there. He finally sketched a character of his own, based on his observations, with a nose as long as an anteater's. The cartoonist named him "A. Mutt."

Fisher showed the drawing to John P. Young, then the managing editor, who remarked: "I think that looks pretty good. We will run it tomorrow."

Thus began the comic strip that was to become a favorite of millions.

JEFF COMES LATER - Jeff got into the cartoon later when Fisher was attending training preliminaries for the heavyweight championship fight between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson at Reno, Nev.

Jeff was based on another "character" who turned up, under the delusion he was a cousin of the champion.

One of the first cartoon strips featuring both Mutt and Jeff showed Jeff pushing a wheelbarrow upside down. Mutt pointed derisively to him and said: "Look at the little guy. He's crazy."

Replied Jeff: "No I'm not. Nobody can put any bricks in it this way."

The Bell Syndicate said Fisher's assistant, Al Smith, who has been doing the cartoon during the author's long illness, would continue to produce it.

Strange But True

By F. H. MacArthur

The oldest fossils known were discovered last year by Professor Elso Barghoorn of Harvard and Stanley Tyler of the University of Wisconsin. The fossils consist of two kinds of algae, two of fungi, an organism which the professors believe may be calcareous flagellate. They were found in a layer of flint beneath an iron ore deposit in the province of Ontario.

"Since they lay far below the iron ore deposit they are probably a couple of million years old," said the professors. The world appears to be getting older all the time.

Believed to have been dead for 12 years, Kay Martin, 20, of Three Rivers, Quebec, returned home last year to visit her parents. An insurance company had paid a death claim after an unsuccessful 8-year search for the missing woman. The day following her arrival home Kay was killed in an automobile accident when her car went out of control and crashed into a hillside. Strange but true!

An oak plugh, the kind used by the ancient Celts, was dug up recently from a bog near Dumfries, Scotland. The share was not tipped with metal but the plough evidently had been made to be hauled by twin-yoked oxen and not women as in earlier times.

In 1919 Mrs. Betty Furman moved into a two-room cabin which she had bought a few miles from Anderson, California. During the first week of occupancy Mrs. Furman was repeatedly awakened at night by the sound of footsteps. Her brother Charles also heard the footsteps and each time an inspection got the investigators nowhere. The front door was found open though it had been securely fastened before the family retired.

At the end of a week Mrs. Furman learned from a neighbor that the former owner of the cabin had died on the Island of Hawaii from smallpox while on a business trip. He wrote a letter home before his death and shortly afterwards his two young sons died of the dreaded disease.

According to the neighbors, the father kept returning to the cabins in his grief over having caused the deaths of his sons.

Mrs. Furman who made her story public recently, reported that after she had gone to the graves of her loved ones and prayer for peace, the footsteps ceased.

PREDICT BUSINESS BOOM

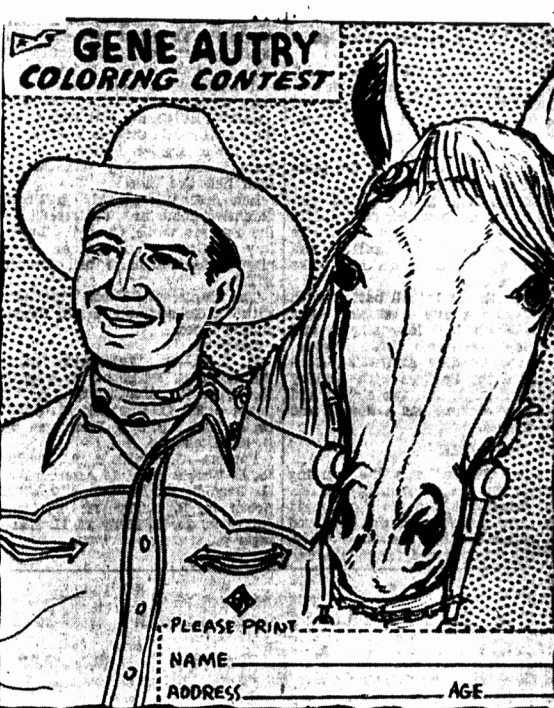

LEIPZIG, Germany (AP)—The Leipzig international fair, carrying on a 500-year-old tradition, opened this week amid the most excited bustle of European trade since the Second World War. East German officials spoke confidently of "1,000,000,000 worth of business." A thousand West German firms were represented among the 9,000 exhibitors.

The order of Cistercian nuns was founded in 1125 near Dijon, France, for prayer and contemplation.
