The Retaliation Bill.

THE TEXT OF THE MEASURE RECENTLY SIGNED BY THE PRESIDENT.

The following is the text of the Retaliation bill recently adopted by the United States Congress and signed by the President:

Be it enacted, That whenever the President of the United States shall be satisfied that American fishing vessels or American fishermen, visiting or being in the waters, or at any ports or places of the British dominion of North America, are, or then lately have been, denied or abridged in the enjoyment of any rights secured to them by treaty or law, or are or then lately have been unjustly vexed or harassed in the enjoyment of such rights, or subjected to unreasonable restrictions, regulations or requirements in respect of such rights; or when the President of the United States shall be satisfied that any such fishing vessels or fishermen, having a permit under the laws of the United States to touch and trade at any port or ports, place or places, in the British dominions of North America, are, or then lately have been, denied the privilege of entering such port or ports, place or places, in the same manner and under the same regulations as may exist therein applicable to trading vessels of the most favored nation, or shall be unjustly vexed or harassed in respect thereof, or shall be prevented from purchasing such supplies as may there be lawfully sold to trading vessels of the most favored nation; or when the President of the United States shall be satisfied that any other vessels of the United States, their masters or crews, so arriving at or being in such British waters or ports or places of the British dominions of North America, are, or then lately have been denied any of the privileges therein accorded to the vessels, their masters or crews, of the most favored nation, or unjustly vexed or harassed in respect of the same; then, and in either or all of such cases, it shall be lawful and it shall be the duty of the President of the United States, in his discretion, by proclamation to that effect, to deny vessels, their masters and crews of the British dominions of North America, any entrance into the waters, ports or places of or within the United States—with such exceptions in regard to vessels in distress, stress of weather, or needing supplies, as to the President shall seem proper—whether such vessels shall have come directly from said dominions on such destined voyage or by way of some port or place in such destined voyage; and also, if he thinks proper, to deny entry into any port or place of the United States of fresh fish or salt fish, or any other product of said dominions, or other goods coming from said dominions to the United States. The President may in his discretion apply such proclamation to any part or all of the foregoing named subjects, and may qualify, limit and renew such proclamation to any part or to all of the foregoing named subjects, and may qualify, limit and renew such proclamation from time to time as he may deem necessary to the full and just execution of the purposes of this Act.

Every violation of any such proclamation or any part thereof is hereby declared illegal, and all vessels and goods so coming or being within the waters and ports or places of the United States contrary to such proclamation shall be forfeited to the United States, and such forfeiture enforced and proceeded upon in the same manner and with the same effect as in the case of vessels or goods whose importation or coming to or being in the waters or ports of the United States contrary to law may be enforced or proceeded upon. Every person who shall violate any of the provisions of this Act or such proclamation of the President made in pursuance hereof shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or for imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

Our Wealthy Men.

Much has been said in newspapers of men who have made large fortunes in comparative few years in various business industries. Many of these articles are written by correspondents of prominent newspapers, and copied into others of lesser note. Correspondents generally are seldom men of business qualifications and wrongfully picture these men and their business as a thing of accident: this is not the case with those we have met. We find that where men have made large fortunes by their own business talent and industry they chose with sagacity and forethought such businesses as would lead to success when handled with business judgment. No man has been brought before the public as an example of success, both in wealth and magnitude of his business (outside of stock and railroad men) more prominently than Dr. G. G. Green, of Woodbury, N. J. He is at the head of many large business industries, and yet comparatively a young man. When the fact that August Flower, for dyspepsia and liver complaint, and Boschee's German Syrup, for coughs and lung troubles, has grown to wonderful sale in all parts of the world, it proves that it was not an accident or spontaneous strike at wealth. His medicines are recognized as valuable and established remedies and the business has grown gradually and permanently during the last eighteen years on account not alone of Dr. Green's abilities as a business man or his "good luck," but on the actual merits of the two preparations.—Copied from the N. Y. Weekly Sun, of Dec. 22, 1886.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 50,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it. Samples bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada.

ORGANIC weakness or loss of power in either sex, however induced, speedily and permanently cured. Enclose 10 cts in stamps for book of particulars. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. t & w

Hints.

If there has been any neglect in putting the farming tools in order for spring work, delay no longer.

The poorest kind of work is hurried work. Hurried work is of a very different quality from rapid work. Work may be done rapidly and well, because of everything being in readiness. But hurried work is that kind which is executed in a hurry because of a want, or neglect of getting ready at the proper time, and the feeling of haste results in a badly executed job.

The last half of winter is by far the most trying to all kinds of stock, and greater care should be exercised in feeding, and shelter and guarding against sudden changes.

Sheep pens should be airy, but care must be taken that young lambs do not become chilled.

Cows' stables should be warm. Don't neglect to provide an abundance of pure water for cattle, horses, sheep, poultry and the dog; everything that drinks should have all the water that is wanted.

These suggestions have been made over and over again in one form or another. The apology for repeatedly urging the same ideas upon the attention of those interested, or who ought to be, if an excuse is necessary, is the fact that the ideas are correct and the carrying them out is a matter of recurrence as regular as the seasons.

Some people need to be told what to do every day in the year. The rising generation come upon the stage of independent action every year, they want the suggestions of older heads, that they may not only act upon them, but improve upon the plans and methods.

The manure pile is a matter of the first importance. Good farming tools and improved farm machinery are essential to the best results. They are helps which reduce labor, while aiding effective work, but labor will be in vain if the soil is called upon to produce without being fed.

You may just as reasonably expect your team to work day after day without food, as to expect a return of profits from a soil in which you invest no capital in the form of manure of some kind.

A day's work may be worth more than twice as much if expended on rich or highly manured land, than if spent on that which is poor or run out.

It is manifest, therefore, that care and diligence should be used in increasing the manure pile.

How much land did you cultivate last year? Did it pay? Have you any idea of the cost per acre of any of your crops? Did you undertake to cultivate too many acres? Did you cut one ton of hay on three acres, or three tons on one? Were the other crops in the same ratio?

The chances are ten to one that not one farmer in fifty throughout the country can give a really satisfactory answer to these questions.

The trader who buys any of your products knows whether he makes or loses on every item of produce you bring him, and do you know whether or not you are selling at a profit or loss?

It costs you more to cultivate two acres than one. Make one acre produce all it will before you waste your labor on the second.

You must invest capital in business if you would reap a return.

Labor is capital.

Brain work is capital.

Intelligence is capital.

Manure is capital.

Seed is capital. The best seed, in the best soil, with the best manure, containing all, and the best elements of plant life and growth is the best investment that can be made with a view of obtaining the best crop from the land, and it matters not what that crop is to be.

You take and it costs, you give and it pays.

The law of compensation cannot be violated.

You cannot draw from the bank without making deposits, unless you exhaust your capital, or your credit.

Your farm is a bank which will reward you according to your merit.

Be not deceived, whatsoever you sow, that shall you also reap.

If you sow good seed in good soil, and cultivate with care, the abundant harvest will not be wanting.

Undertake to cultivate no more than you manage well, and increase your acres as you increase in ability, and your acres and ability will advance step by step.

Let there be no waste of anything, no matter how small the quantity, that can be of any possible value to the compost heap.

Let there be no waste! Why no one intends to waste anything. No, but there is a great deal of it, all the same.

There is scarcely a man arrived at or near middle life, on a farm, or elsewhere, who is to-day poor, or what is called poor, who has not wasted more in his life than would be necessary to make him comfortable and independent now.

The annual catalogues of the seedsmen appear about now.

These dealers, while they offer the standard varieties, usually offer several new kinds each year. These frequently are only new in name.

It is safe to stick to the sorts which are of proved value, but the gardener should keep abreast of the times, and it is well to give the novelties a trial on a small scale.

Improvements can only be arrived at by trial and experiments on the part of some one. Hot beds for raising plants to be set out in the open ground should be made ready some six weeks or more before the time when it will be safe for planting out.

It is a good time to think about seed for spring planting and sowing. If seed is to be purchased order early, so that your orders may be filled before the rush of business with seedsmen begins. Later you may have to wait your turn and be delayed thus losing valuable time and the advantage of an early market.
