P.E.I. Hospital Class of 1964 Graduates Tonight At College

With three years of hard-earning training course behind them, 16 talented island girls tonight reach the peak they sought, as members of the graduating class of the Prince Edward Island Hospital School of Nursing.

Presentation of the diplomas signifying they are now graduate nurses bring to an end the long months which often brought great periods of happiness and many times gave rise to near-frustration. The ceremony also means the girls can now take their rightful places as members of one of the world's most honored professions.

Another member of the class will receive her diploma indicating that she has qualified as a radiography technician. The graduating exercises are scheduled to take place in Prince of Wales College auditorium, and the address to the graduates will be delivered by Miss Irene Leckie, BSc, MSN, associate professor of nursing at the University of New Brunswick.

Valedictorian will be Miss Marilyn Best.

Following is a brief biography of each of the graduates:
