CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions or statements of our correspondents.

To the Editor of the Examiner.
Sir,—In your issue of the 19th inst., appears a communication signed "E. L. Lydiard, Esq.," in reply to my letter to the Patriot of the 15th inst., in which I corrected an error that appeared in the report of the speech made by A. McNeill, Esq., that the report of E. L. Lydiard, Esq., of the Customs Department showed that the export of oats from King's and Queen's Counties, P. E. I., for 1882, was 10,000 bushels. Mr. Lydiard makes a personal attack upon me, and recommends me to put on specks, or get some friend to read figures for me, etc., implying that I had misunderstood the figures as reported. I refer any person interested in the report of Mr. McNeill's speech as it appears in the Patriot of the 25th of January, the only paper in which I saw it reported, and I would leave him to judge whether my letter was not justified, as intended to place the Island in its true light as regards its export trade before the world at large. I feel I should deserve the thanks of Mr. Lydiard, of the Customs Department, Charlottetown, for having given him the opportunity to air himself before the public through the medium of the press.

I remain, yours,
BENJAMIN TOOMBS.
Moncton, Feb. 26, 1883.

The Clifton Channel, New London.

To the Editor of the Examiner.
DEAR SIR,—As I suppose the most of the farmers interested in the Clifton Channel, New London, read your paper, I will give in it my reasons why I think the break-water that is being built on the north side of the channel will be an injury instead of a benefit. I have understood, within the last few days, there is an abutment to be built to it, to extend into the channel. Many of you are well aware of the effect that the break-water on our side had when built from sandhill point. But, on your side, I consider it will have a different effect, as it will stop the current from running up and down the channel, and with the flood tide coming in will tend to lean the current towards Stanley channel and to the centre of the big shoal, which will cause an eddy tide upwards to the westward of the abutment and so much sand always whirling about in these eddies will be apt to sink and cause a sandbank. As the Government has granted money to improve the channel, you ought to see that it is put in the proper place. Why is Stanley the proper place for shipping now? Because we have plenty water to come to it. Why was Clifton the principal place for shipping 18 years ago? Because there was the most water in that channel. I, myself, went from Clifton Wharf, twenty years ago, in a brig with 23,000 bushels of oats on board, drawing 12 feet of water, and plenty to spare, and if you go right to work, and have your channel improved, you may likely have big vessels go back again to your wharf. Respecting the piece of brush work that is to be built from Campbleton Island, I will say nothing at present.

Yours truly,
JOHN MCKAY,
Pilot for New London Harbor.
Stanley, Feb. 26, 1883.

Irish Notes.

A Paris despatch says that Frank Byrne was arrested there on Tuesday morning and taken to the Prefecture of Police where he was informed the British Government had issued a warrant for his arrest. Byrne denied that he had any political relations with Carey. The examination was continued until Wednesday.

P. J. Sheridan, for whose arrest it was stated the authorities at Washington issued a warrant, has not yet been apprehended. At the U. S. Marshal's office it was stated that that official had not received any official intimation of the warrant having been issued.

Another of Lord Ardilan's bailiffs named Flynn had been attacked brutally and left for dead near Clonbur, County Mayo.

Three members of the Joyce family, who were witnesses in the Mamtrasna trial, while protected by five policemen, were attacked in a public house at Churchfield. The police were deprived of fire arms which were freely used on the Joyces, one of whom was badly wounded.

Mr. Trevelyan, in the House of Commons on the 27th, replying to a question, said the Government did not intend to release Harrington, now in jail for using intimidating language, and who had recently been elected member for Westmeath.

In the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne, Arthur O'Connor, Home Ruler, moved an amendment declaring that distress in Ireland, the inadequate machinery of land and sraers Acts, laws governing parliamentary and municipal franchise, and the condition of local government, demand the urgent attention of the Legislature.

Mr. Trevelyan said that although the Government had no large measure concerning the government of Ireland to introduce this year, they intended to bring forward several useful measures with regard to distress. The truth was the holdings in the west of Ireland are too small. The people could not live without getting into debt. The question was whether, by giving extraordinary relief, the Government should stay emigration, which the poor were not averse to, and to merely postpone the evil day.

Mr. P. J. Sheridan.
HIS PRESENCE IN NEW YORK AND HIS VIEWS ON THE DUBLIN REVELATIONS.

The Irish World asserts that Mr. P. J. Sheridan, formerly of the Land League Executive, is now one of the members of its staff, and publishes the following interview with him:—

Reporter—Do you know this informer Carey, who says he was introduced to you at the Angel Hotel in Dublin?

Mr. Sheridan—I never met the man in my life. His references to an interview with me in the Angel Hotel, Dublin, and his statement about my promising to forward him some arms from London are sheer fabrications, and convince me that his story has been concocted in Dublin Castle, and that Carey, in order to save his miserable neck, volunteered to swear to it in the witness box.

Reporter—As a matter of fact, have you been in disguise of a priest in Ireland, as alleged?

Mr. Sheridan—Yes. I found it necessary to visit Ireland for two reasons, which I will give you, and being aware of the fact that a general order was issued from the Castle to the police to arrest me if found in any part of Ireland—at that time the British government was arresting every Irishman who was thought to be of service to the Land League cause—I assumed the disguise of a priest, and went to Ireland, first, for the purpose of arranging for the recovery of some property of which I had been robbed during my imprisonment and exile; and second, for the purpose of putting down agrarian acts and upholding the "No rent Manifesto," by the process of social ostracism, that being, in my opinion, the most moral weapon within the people's reach.

Reporter—How came your name to be mentioned by Mr. Forster, in connection with Irish crime after the Kilmainham treaty?

Mr. Sheridan—Mr. Parnell fully explained that when replying to Mr. Forster in the House of Commons. In substance his reply was, as I can remember, that it was impossible for the people to famely endure the tyranny which the Government had been practising on them; and the men who could intelligently influence their actions were either imprisoned or in exile. Without my knowledge or consent Mr. Parnell mentioned me by name as one of those men who, in his opinion, could put a stop to acts of violence if allowed to return to Ireland, explaining that my intercourse with and knowledge of the people, particularly in the West of Ireland during the Land League agitation, had given me an influence over them.

Reporter—Why should Mr. Parnell have selected your name from among the other leaders not then in prison?

Mr. Sheridan—Well, I believe that Mr. Parnell thought I possessed some influence in the West of Ireland, to which I belong, and that he was anxious I should have an opportunity to exert it for the suppression of acts of violence that were being committed on land-grabbers and other obnoxious characters. Besides, I have no doubt but a kindly consideration toward myself may have influenced Mr. Parnell in some degree, knowing as he did the great financial loss and injury I had sustained by my imprisonment and enforced absence from Ireland.

Reporter—In your opinion, have any of the Land League funds been employed for the promoting of disorder in Ireland as alleged?

Mr. Sheridan—Such a presumption can only emanate from one or two sources—viz., either a total ignorance of the Land League policy and its leaders or an ill-concealed desire to disparage both.

Reporter—Do you approve of shooting landlords in Ireland?

Mr. Sheridan—Well, that is a very direct question. No, I do not approve of shooting a man simply because he happens to be a landlord, nor am I prepared to condemn the man who will fight to the death to defend his home and save his family from destruction. Gladstone himself has characterized an eviction as a sentence of death.

Reporter—Do you propose leaving New York to avoid being extradited, as has been threatened by the English government?

Mr. Sheridan—I had intended going West previous to my reading of the informer Carey's references to me at the Dublin trials; but I have now decided on remaining in New York. If any emissary of the British government wants to know where I am he will find me at my desk any day of the week.

The Toronto Mail says:—"We notice that the Premier has treated with contempt certain rumors, offensive at once to him, to the Governor-General, and to the Princess Louise. These rumors, in their offensive form have been industriously circulated by Mr. David Mills in the London Advertiser. This person was a Minister; was also a member of Parliament; and was, therefore, in the habit of receiving the courtesies of the vice-royal household. These have not taught him any grace of life. And he has been guilty of the grossest offence against social decencies in regard to the Premier and the Governor-General. We are, we believe, justified in stating that the relations between the Governor-General and the Premier and Her Royal Highness and Lady Macdonald are as cordial and friendly as could be desired, and that the false rumors which have prevailed have been the cause of pain both to the Marquis of Lorne and to the Princess Louise."

A London druggist says:—"During the many years I have been in the drug business, I have never had a medicine that gave such general satisfaction, or for which there was such a large sale, as there is for Mack's Magnetic Medicine, advertised in another column of your paper." Sold in Charlottetown by Apothecaries Hall Co. [22 2w used wily.
