Pollution Project Is Meeting Topic

The newly-appointed secretary general of the Canadian Council of Resources Ministers, Christian de Laet, held discussions with Industry and Natural Resources Minister Leo Rossiter, in Charlottetown, Wednesday.

Mr. Rossiter is chairman of the council. One of the projects discussed Wednesday was the forthcoming inter-governmental conference on water, air and soil pollution.

Mr. de Laet said the pollution conference, expected to be held next year in Montreal or Toronto, "will mark the first time that the senior governments have joined together in a co-ordinated effort to approach one of Canada's most pressing problems in the field of renewable natural resources.

"Main object of the conference will be to examine the administrative, policy and jurisdictional sides to pollution problems. Among the many questions and issues to be considered will be the existing division of responsibilities among the federal, provincial and municipal governments. Current pollution control policies and programs will be examined and compared."

In conclusion, Mr. de Laet said "it is hoped that from the conference will come specific proposals on how Canada can more effectively implement the pollution control technology already available."

The federal and provincial governments have been invited to participate in planning for the 1965 conference and have been requested to send pollution experts to a planning meeting in Montreal on Nov. 17.

ADB Grant Not Specially Earmarked

No decision in government has been made to use the $1,000,000 Atlantic Development Board grant specifically for highway construction, a cabinet minister said here.

Acting-Premier J. David Stewart said the government feels an extension of the Trans-Canada Highway to include Summerside and possibly Georgetown should come under a federal-provincial agreement on roads.

The federal government would pay 90 per cent of construction cost.

"This would leave the Atlantic Development Board money for other economic developments in the province."

He said that if the board grant is used, and the province does not contribute, the board could build a highway itself and have control over it.

"I don't think the provincial government wants to be in a position where part of our high way system is under federal

Letter Conveys Appreciation Of Royal Visit

Premier Walter R. Shaw has received a letter from Sir Michael Adeane, personal secretary to the Queen, who is aboard the Royal Yacht Britannia at sea.

Sir Michael conveyed from Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip their appreciation for the premier's efforts in making the Royal Visit to the province "a memorable and pleasant one."

According to the letter, the Premier said the Queen and Prince Philip "remember particularly the loyal welcome they received from young and old, especially at the children's rally and the functions associated with Centennial events. They also expressed sincere thanks for the hospitality shown them at the State Dinner and the Royal Ball."
