

Reception Held At Government House

Assemble Hogs For Shipment To Saskatchewan

Dr. Stanley Curtis of the Department of Agriculture in Saskatchewan has been on the Island for the past five days assembling a carload of 65 Island hogs which he will ship next week to his own province. Dr. Curtis made a trip to the Province on the same errand seven years ago and the fact that he has returned for another shipment speaks well of the quality of Island hogs. The swine that Mr. Curtis has assembled consist of an equal number of boars and sows. The sows are of exceptionally high quality—none of them scoring under 98. It is possible that a few of the boars will be selected for the University of Minnesota. Dr. Curtis has noted a decided improvement in Island hogs since his last visit here. "This," he said, "is shown particularly in the feet and legs of the animals."

S. ports. The federal government was asked to take steps to enter into an agreement with Saskatchewan "to permit construction forthwith" of a dam on the South Saskatchewan river in the national interest.

URGENT UNIFORM MARKINGS

The federal government was also asked to sponsor a meeting of provincial highway ministers and representative of other interested parties with a view to effecting uniformity in road markings, signs, signals and rules of the road. Steps to alleviate seasonal employment were urged, including adoption of recommendations of the national employment committee aimed at stabilizing employment. Experience, said the chamber, had not substantiated allegations that prohibited of resale price maintenance would result in lowering of the cost of living, and provision of specialized maintenance and service required by many consumer products had deteriorated. It recommended that the chamber, with co-operation of member boards and chambers, study the effects of the prohibition and, if considered advisable, present their findings to the proper authorities.

AMENDMENT OF THE INCOME TAX ACT

Amendment of the Income Tax Act was asked to provide that the three per cent floor for deductible medical expenses be applied to income after the deduction of personal exemptions, rather than on full salaries. Further, there should be, no limitations upon medical expenses allowed in any year. Increases of exemption of $4,000 for gifts was suggested. ASK SIMPLER REPORTS Federal and provincial govern-

The federal government was asked to review and strengthen machinery for examination by Parliament of government estimates and expenditures. Business was urged to make efforts towards greater efficiency and aggressive selling to counteract the problem of keener competition. In employer-employee relations, said the chamber, a checkoff brought about by legislation introduces unreasonable government intervention. The government was asked not to relax vigilance in combatting communism.

In policy declarations the chamber said it believes any unilateral solution of wheat surpluses by Canada or the U. S. would likely create serious difficulty. It urged that any steps taken by either country for reduction or disposal of wheat surplus, other than normal sales, should be a solution reached by the two countries in co-operation, giving due regard to the natural interests of both. The chamber supported the principle of imperial preference but commented that because of quantitative restrictions in the sterling area, the preference had been of only very limited direct benefit to Canadian exporters in recent years. It urged progressive removal of restrictions by the United Kingdom and other sterling area countries. It was also concerned with tendencies by certain countries to interpret widely escape clauses under the general agreement on trade and tariffs. Various declarations of chamber policy of long standing were adopted.
