

S'Side Home Guttled By Fire, Family Of 12 Left Homeless

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN — A Summerside family of 12 was left homeless last evening in a fire that broke out at 7:40 p.m. and completely gutted the interior of the residence of Frank (Agape) Arsenault, North Market Street.

The fire is believed to have started between the upstairs floors. It made rapid headway and was enveloping the upstairs in flames when firemen arrived shortly after the alarm was sounded.

The blaze was first noticed by Francis Arsenault, 16, who shouted to his father, who was watching TV downstairs with the youngest of the 10 children, aged 16 months in his arms.

Mrs. Arsenault had left the home just a few minutes earlier to visit a friend in Prince County Hospital but turned back when she learned where the fire was.

She said to a Guardian reporter, "All I was worried for was the kids but they're all safe." Mr. Arsenault's first thought was for the safety of his children, as well as he took the baby outside as his first move after Francis notified him of the fire.

Mr. Arsenault also led to safety about 15 children, his own and neighbors, who were also watching television and then returned to remove the TV set, an electric washing machine, a chest of drawers and some clothing. Everything else went up in flames including $200 in cash which was in a drawer upstairs.

The fire between the upstairs floor proved to be stubborn and firemen, under the direction of Chief Heath Warren fought for more than an hour to get at the root of the smouldering blaze.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallant and their children, ranging in age from 16 months to 17 years spent last night at the home of a next door neighbor Mrs. Annie Gallant. The charred house is owned by A.H. Hubley.

HOT WATER IS MYSTERY

MONMOUTH, Ill. (AP)—Hot water's no problem on the farm operated by Chalmers Lovdahl.

In August, a 30-foot well that supplies Lovdahl's house with running water turned warm. The water temperature kept rising. Last week, it reached 101 degrees.

Lovdahl called in University of Illinois researchers. They said it was the first time they'd come on the phenomenon in Illinois. A state water survey chemist theorized that vein of coal beneath the well had caught fire, radiating heat toward the surface.

But there's one obvious leak in the theory.

"There is a well just 120 feet away. It is 125 feet deep and its output hasn't varied from a normal 55 degrees."

GAS LEAK

OTTAWA (CP) — All Ottawa public school gas lines are to be inspected by the Ontario Fuel Board as the result of a scare that emptied 500 students from their building. Natural gas was detected coming from a faulty hose fitting in a school room and the children were kept outside for 10 minutes.

Production Of Arrow Jet Still Being Considered

By DAVE McINTOSH
 Canadian Press Staff Writer
 OTTAWA (CP)—Production of 100 Arrow jet interceptors, with air-to-air missiles and spare engines for them, would cost about $20,000,000, officials estimated Tuesday.

On top of this would be the remaining development costs of the Arrow, estimated at anywhere between $25,000,000 and $75,000,000, atomic warheads for the missiles, and $100,000,000 for the SAGE semi-automatic ground environment—is not essential to interceptor operations but is regarded as necessary for their top capability and efficiency. SAGE is essential for operation of the Bomarc ground-to-air guided missile, to be installed in Canada in late 1961.

Development of the Arrow will have cost $40,000,000 by next March, at which time the government is expected to decide whether to order the aircraft into production.

ANOTHER SALES TALK
 Defence Minister Pearkes said Tuesday, in effect, that he will have another stab next week at getting the United States to buy the Arrow, the idea being that greater production would reduce the per-unit cost.

Mr. Pearkes will confer with U.S. Defence Secretary McElroy at the NATO council meeting in Paris.

But he will have another job at the NATO meeting just as vital: The gathering of information from military leaders about possible future roles for the 12 squadron RCAF air division in Europe.

Officials here said the division needs new equipment, whether aircraft or missiles.

One authoritative estimate of the cost of re-equipping the division, whether with missiles or aircraft, is $1,000,000,000.

Thus, while the government is balking at the new high cost of the Arrow, it faces the prospect of having to buy new equipment for the air division or eventually bringing it home.

Railway Experiment May Be Boon To Island Spuds

STANDING BESIDE THE C.N.R. experimental "heated box car", railway officials from Moncton and Montreal, left to right, Harvey E. MacDonald, E.P. Kesseler, W. Bowler and R.G. Beacon, will supervise its loading at Miscouche for shipment to Montreal.

With heat and insulation provided, the C.N.R. hopes that a way has been found to convert the ordinary box car into an all purpose car for year round service in transportation of potatoes or any other perishable product.

The potatoes, supplied through the Summerside office of F.W. Ward and Co., are being loaded by the Summerside firm of MacFarlane Produce Co., under the direction of Lorne MacFarlane and Lorne Driscoll.

So important is this test shipment, that the C.N.R. have sent four of its officials here to supervise the loading operations scheduled for Thursday, and to accompany the shipment during transit to its destination.

These men are, Harvey, MacDonald, supervisor perishable products, Atlantic Region; E.P. Kesseler, system inspector, perishable traffic, Montreal; W. Bowler, senior mechanical assistant, research and development, Montreal and R.G. Beacon, system inspector, system air brake and steam heating, motive power and car equipment, Montreal.

ORDINARY LOOKING
 On the sides of an ordinary looking box car, the white lettered words "heated box car" distinguish this experimental car from others, and into it the railway officials have to load up to 1,200 bags of potatoes, which is double the number usually shipped in one car.

This car has been provided with insulation, and heating is supplied from two underslung charcoal burning heaters, each independent of the other. The charcoal gasse are exhausted to the outside, while the heated antifreeze solution flows through coils supplying an envelope of heat around the interior of the car.

40 DEGREES
 Tests with this car by the C.N.R. have indicated that with two heaters burning, the inside temperature of the car can be maintained at 40 degrees above zero when the outside temperature is 40 degrees below zero, and this suggests that in box cars so equipped, potatoes could be shipped from P.E.I. at any season to any point in Canada.

The other car, the refrigerator diphtheria, lockjaw, polio and Smallpox for babies from three months of age and for pre school children.
