

Lord Lovell's Mistake.

Lord Lovell he stood at his own front door, Seeking the hole for the key;

"Oh, where have you been, Lord Lovell?" she said, "Oh, where have you been?" said she,

"I am not drunk, Lady Shane," he said; "And so late it cannot be;

"Go tell your tale, Lord Lovell," she said, "To the maritime cavalier;

Origin of the Names in the Week.

In the Museum at Berlin, in the hall devoted to Northern antiquities, they have the representations of the idols from which the names of our week are derived.

From the idol of the Sun, comes Sunday. This idol is represented with his face like the Sun, holding a burning wheel, with both hands on his breast, signifying his course around the world.

The idol of the Moon, from which comes Monday, is habited in a short coat, like a man but holding the moon in his hands.

Tuesday, from which comes Tuesday, was one of the most ancient and popular gods of the Germans, and is represented in his garments of skins, according to his peculiar manner of clothing; the third day of the week was dedicated to his worship.

Woden, from which comes Wednesday, was a valiant prince among the Saxons. His image was prayed to for victory.

Thor, from whence comes Thursday, is seated in a bed, with twelve stars over his head, holding a sceptre in his hand.

Soatir, from which is Saturday, has the appearance of perfect wretchedness; he is thin-visaged, long-haired and with a long beard. He carries a water pail in his right hand, wherein are fruits and flowers.

Coke on Etiquette.

Speaking of Judge Coke to a congressman from his State, drew out the following: The Senator lives down on Sixth St., in strict retirement. Nobody is allowed to visit him without first sending up his card.

"Gentlemen, I regret to say that it is a rule of this house that the cards of visitors must always be sent up to me. I have to request that you will observe the custom."

"Certainly we will," was the abashed reply as the visitors backed out of the apartment. They rang the bell, gave the servant girl their cards and waited patiently for her return.

"Was it a little bit of a calf?" "No; I should suppose not." "How big was it?" "I really don't know."

"Why the Case was Dismissed." A young man had been arrested for kissing a pretty girl, and she was on the witness stand.

"Well, now, is it not true that you also kissed him during the affray?" Objected to; objection overruled. "Now answer my question," continued the attorney. "Did you not kiss the defendant also?"
