Performing Arts Centres Will Prove to Be Costly

OTTAWA (CP)—New performing arts centres are a good idea, says the Canada Council, but it warns they'll cost money to run and will need trained local performers. The council's comment was made in its seventh annual report, tabled in the Commons Tuesday by State Secretary L. Montague.

It mentioned many Canadian communities plan arts centres to match Canada's tradition. But these will be shells containing a vacuum unless the arts follow nature and all their talents. New touring entertainment groups would be needed. Those who are now in the field expand their activities. Circuits might have to be organized, or changes arranged and a central booking agency set up to replace the present sporadic system.

This would strain Canada's resources, in money and talent. It is important the public should realize that, in the field of the performing arts, our available talent is already being coming tight spread.

Doctor Is Convicted on Two of 10 Charges

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto surgeon Kenneth A. Brown has been convicted on two of 10 charges arising from the death last fall of Patricia Morgan, 37, of Toronto.

The 45-year-old doctor, who maintained he was innocent during the unique five-day trial, was fined $500 and sentenced to 18 months in jail for a violation of the Ontario Coroner's Act and $50 under the Ontario Vital Statistics Act. The remaining five charges under the Coroner's Act and two of four under the Vital Statistics Act were dismissed by Magistrate James Butler. The Crown dropped the remaining six charges.

The alternatives to the fines are 90 days and 10 months in jail respectively. Dr. Brown was given a month to pay the fines at the request of the defence. Defence Counsel Barry Pepper, who was commended by the magistrate for conducting "an excellent defence," said he is recommending to Dr. Brown the convictions be applied in the form of a stated case, with the magistrate explaining his decisions in writing and the defence putting its arguments before an appeal judge.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By R. Jay Becker
time announcing that he had the Reese returned a low spade and Schapiro won with the jack, combined with the Reese, forcing dummy to ruff. Declarer now led the ace of hearts, East following with the king, he would have caught the queen and made eleven tricks. But in an effort to guard against the possibility of East's holding the queen, declarer finessed, losing to the queen. The safety finesse to try to assure the contract would certainly have succeeded in this case if the finesse was fatal. Reese returned the ace of spades and South was forced to ruff with the only trump in dummy, the eight. On this trick, Schapiro discarded his singleton club. When declarer now played a low club in order to get to his king to draw East's remaining trump, East ruffed and South was down one. At the second table, the British declarer made four hearts against a different line of defence. East cashed two spades, but then shifted to a diamond. Declarer misguessed the heart location at this table also, but the only trick he lost was two spades and a heart. The British team gained 10 points on the hand.
