

Happenings of The Week

Mrs. R. R. Bell and Mrs. Fred Moore arrived home Tuesday evening after a three week cruise in the Caribbean. En route home they spent a week in New York, returning to the island by train.

Mrs. Stuart D. Irvine entertained members of her bridge club Wednesday afternoon at her home on Ambrose St.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Mould entertained friends at dinner at the Charlottetown Hotel on Easter Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Hartlen and Mr. and Mrs. E. K. MacNutt, who entertained friends at a square dancing party last evening, are also entertaining this evening.

Mrs. Robert Clark left yesterday morning on return to her home in Bridgetown, N.S., after a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Parker.

Dr. L. E. Prowse left Thursday morning for Toronto, where he will attend a medical convention. On return, he will be accompanied by Mrs. Prowse, who has spent the past three weeks in Welland, Ont.

Mrs. Louis Bagnall was hostess to the members of the Sigma Phi Alpha Chapter, on Tuesday evening at a delightful bridge and canasta party at which a number of new members were welcomed. The hostess was assisted by Miss Mary MacKenzie, Miss Helen Cox and Mrs. William Thomson.

The Misses Janet England, Anita Cudmore and Joan Stewart returned early this week from Massachusetts, where they visited with relatives and friends in Lynn and Wayland.

Mrs. H. C. Bourke and Mrs. Ronald Smith entertained at a buffet supper at Mrs. Bourke's home on Water St. Tuesday evening.

An enjoyable Easter tide function was held in the Sodality Hall of St. Joseph's Convent on Wednesday afternoon from 4.00 to 6.00 p. m.

Members of the Sodality and Alumnae, together with their friends, enjoyed a pleasant reunion and chat over the cups.

The tables were beautifully decorated with spring flowers and yellow tapers.

Reverend Mother Superior and the president, Miss Anne Walsh, received the guests. The following ladies presided at the tables: Mrs. G. Tomlin, Mrs. M. Arsenault, Mrs. Allan MacDonald, Miss L. Duffy, Mrs. F. Steele, Mrs. A. Coady, Miss G. Coady, Mrs. J. Coyle, Mrs. A. Curley, Mrs. A. Ward, Mrs. J. Callaghan, Miss L. Rossiter, Mrs. R. Morris and Mrs. L. McNally.

The tea committee were ably assisted by members of the Sodality and Alumnae who graciously served the guests and made everyone feel at home. Most enjoyable were the piano selections rendered by Miss Kathleen Hughes, Miss Florence Quinn and Miss Bethany MacDonald.

Miss Mary Corcoran and Miss Catherine Peters were in charge of a tastefully arranged candy booth which added greatly to the general setting.

Mrs. D. J. MacDonald, 16 Grafton St., was the fortunate winner of a large fruit cake lotteried at this booth.

Senator G. H. Barbour and Mrs. Barbour are leaving on Monday to return to Ottawa.

Miss Annabel Lea of Moncton, N.B., spent the Easter holidays with her aunt and uncle, Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Lea and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Clive Stewart returned on Monday from Sydney, N.S., where they attended the Slaught-Macrae wedding last Saturday.

His friends will be interested to learn that Mr. Sidney Campbell, who recently enlisted in the R.C.A.F., is presently stationed in London, Ont.

Mrs. A. B. LePage, Mrs. G. Stewart Mackay and Mrs. Walthen Gaudet are entertaining at tea this afternoon at Mrs. LePage's home in honour of Mrs. Norman Clenaghan and Miss Irene Lindsay.

Miss Carol Ann Hogan spent the Easter holidays visiting with relatives in Halifax.

Queen Resumes Royal Duties With Traditional Maundy Money Service

Fulfilling her first official engagement since the death of her grandmother, Dowager Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, accompanied by her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, is shown, right, leaving St. Paul's cathedral following distribution of Maundy money to 40 representatives of London's aged in an Easter ceremony of royal humility. This age-old annual ceremony of penance and charity dates back to the 12th century, when British monarchs, on the day before Good Friday, washed the feet of the poor after the example of Christ with His disciples. Each woman was given $4.00 in a green purse, and each man a white purse containing $3.00. This was for clothes. The Queen then walked among the poor a second time, giving each a red purse with $7 for food. Finally she distributed white purses containing the special silver Maundy coins which for the first time this year bore the imprint of her head. At left, William Irons, 83, happily shows coins he received to his daughter, Mrs. D. Hart.

For Tomorrow

SUNDAY'S horoscope promises an enjoyable day. Seek relaxation with cheerful companions and in pleasant surroundings. It is not a day in which to worry about the future or to undertake new projects. Let others take the initiative if they will, but make up your mind to take things easy and prepare for the active week ahead. Courtship and romance are favored and domestic matters should be unusually harmonious. You may find particular pleasure in entertaining relatives, especially children. Plan entertainment for them. It will be received with unusual appreciation.

For the Birthday

If Sunday is your birthday, the year ahead promises much in the way of honor and prestige. You will have to work hard for success, but the rewards, both in dignity and financial emolument, will be well worth the effort. During the period ahead you should find the certain hindrances and obstacles which cropped up during the early

Blankets

New blankets can be protected from soil by sewing a piece of thin muslin to the blanket, reaching about six inches down from the top. This will help lighten cleaning bills.

Basement Steps

If the steps leading to the basement are rather dark, paint the lower step with white paint and an accident can probably be avoided.

Black Crepe

Black crepe materials can be restored if held over the steam of a boiling kettle. The crepe will be like new.

DOROTHY DIX'S COLUMN

Troubling Trouble

Wife Unhappy Because She Thinks She Is Pampering Her Husband

DEAR MISS DIX: How can a woman get out of the bad habit of just living for her husband? Ken is the type who demands pampering. Whenever he comes home, he expects dinner on the table, and no matter how much time I have put into its preparation, he complains. He comes home quite late, and often I'm missing the dinner dishes at ten o'clock. I don't mind doing these things, but his constant complaining irks me. I don't have friends, and have no social life, because I must always be home in case my husband needs something. I know it isn't good for me to be so constantly at his beck and call, but how can I change the situation? He is 40, I am 46.

Muriel Nissen

ANSWER: What you are actually trying to convey is the fact that you have no interest in life apart from your husband! Since you mention no children, I assume you have none; therefore, I can't see what there is in an average-sized home (which I presume is what you have) to keep you constantly tied down. Planning your work, and meals, would give you at least the afternoon to make new friends, or renew old acquaintances. You have time to pursue a hobby, help the Red Cross, join a church activity, or do a dozen and one things that would take you away from your home now and again. You think you're doing Ken a favor by being completely at his service. You're wrong! Nothing could be worse for him.

CHANGE TALKING SUBJECTS

When he sits down to dinner I'll warrant all he hears from you is a minute-by-minute description of how hard you worked for him all day. He has enough work himself. A meal is more than the food put on the table. It should also include companionship, laughter, mutual exchange of ideas, and perhaps a bright bit of neighborhood chat. If you don't contribute in this way, you're slipping on the job. Try a change of your daily schedule.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl in my 20's, and love choral singing. Unfortunately, our church choir is no longer active, and I wonder if you would know of a choral group open to the public.

ANSWER: Your city is noted for the excellence of its musical groups and institutions, and you should have no difficulty in becoming affiliated with one of them. Get in touch with one of the large music schools and ask them to recommend a choral group.

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend and I have been going steady for six months. About five weeks ago he stopped drinking. Then his friends started kidding him about being "henpecked" and "tied down," so he decided to go ahead and have a drink. I've told him I'll never marry anyone who drinks and that I'll quit him the next time this happens. Do you think I'm being too harsh?

ANSWER: The so-called friends who are starting all this trouble should be tarred and feathered. Instead of giving the boy a pat on the back and offering every support they can, they'd rather kick him.

You aren't being too harsh; in fact, someone in this affair must have backbone. While your throat may seem the lid away from liquor, a hotstringup will do even more good. Praise him for the fine work he's done and, if you know any congenial people, get their co-operation for morale boosting.

Miss Nissen cannot reply personally to readers but will answer problems of general interest through this column.

STATE SUPPORTED NARCOTIC CLINICS

Now that government agencies and Alcoholics Anonymous are helping to reclaim alcoholics, it is interesting to note that drug addicts are now also being reclaimed to again become useful citizens of the community.

In Medical News Department of the Journal of the American Medical Association, we read that Chicago's third-state-supported narcotic clinic was recently opened at Northwestern University Medical Center under the direction of Dr. Benjamin Boches. Other clinics operating in cooperation with Illinois Department of Public Health are located at Provident Hospital and University of Illinois Medical Center.

Dr. G. Howard Gowen, deputy director in charge of the department's narcotic program reports that there have been 170 cases referred to them since the first clinic (Provident) opened December 1, 1931. There were 80 per cent in the 17-to-28 age bracket, 30 per cent of the total ranging from 17 to 20 years of age. There were five males to 1 female in the first eleven months. Most of these persons were single or separated from their families. Just what percentage of these young drug addicts were to blame for the separation, and what percentage of the families were to blame, is not stated in the report.

I have written before of examining the boys of an industrial school and finding that more than half came from broken homes. It is found that where the mother dies first, the home is usually broken up early as the father is

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Leo

Q. We had a guest recently who talked at length about the good time he had at another party. Don't you think this is rude?

A. Most certainly I do. Anyone who does this is giving the impression that he had a much better time than he is having now.

Q. When taking food offered by a waiter, is it necessary to say "Thank you"?

A. This isn't considered necessary, but there most certainly is nothing wrong about it. Q. When a young woman is introducing herself socially, should she say, "I am Miss Gibson," or "I am Edith Gibson"? A. She should say, "I am Edith Gibson."

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife

A week of mixed weather this has been - of shower and sun, the former but to stress how beautiful the latter could be. There were, we recall, those spells when a fog of April "encompassed us about" in silver, so that our boundaries were closely restricted, and we enclosed in a small world of our own. And regarding it, "yet a little while," we said, and like the damp fields about and the greening buds were content to wait.

But when the sun smiled, how enchanting our surroundings! Bright and lovely the farmland; a new blue overhead. Song sparrows trilled from the pulsing branches; robins from the meadow below. Bluejays wanted pretty wings in the orchard; woodpeckers tapped out blithe codes beneath an eave. And at Alderlea, to the delight of the children, pigeons expressed a desire to take up residence in a barn.

"They are there," Granddaughter brought the news. "Now, if they'll only stay!" she sighed. She was a guest at this place "in the road" yesterday; a fair sun-kist, golden-braided, demure maid. An eager and preferred playmate welcomed her out the way, and at length when twilight threatened, the two went a distance with her along the fields to leave her within sight of home.

All went merry during her visit except for that period when two engaging chaps from a neighboring farm came to play. Then her best of playmates deserted her to turn to masculine interests. She came indoors, a quiet, little girl, puzzling, we suspected, about this condition of affairs. Learning perhaps, a new lesson about the male of the species... that ever the woman must wait.

"He'll come back," we said, a little sad too for her sake. "Well, when he does," she returned with spirit, "I shan't play with him! That's only fair isn't it?" she queried.

"Yes," we agreed, "but..." how could we begin to explain to a little girl that our women's world is not ruled by fairness? Our role is to wait... and give... and in many cases forgive, over and over again.

We read to her and there were pieces of coloring to interest her, the bright strokes lighting the gray of the day. And the time passed until with a clatter the door opened and the lad came in, uncontented, dimpling, eyes bright with his pleasing. We could have read

Canadian Consumer News

The C. A. C. March bulletin has just come in and Mrs. Mary Humphries of Toronto, who is the National Textile Convener, has an interesting article in it. She is writing a series of articles headed "Fabrics for families" and this month is "Canada Made."

In design and construction it is likely that made in Canada fabrics and clothing will be as suitable for our use as those made in another country. The Primary Textiles Institute of Canada states that the Canadian textile industry has reached a degree of technical skill and financial stability which made its products the equal of imported goods and that it has developed high standards of workmanship, competence and integrity.

Apparently, many women believe "imported" fabrics, of necessity, must be vastly superior to Canadian-made materials. Because we have refused to buy them on their own merit, many stores, especially smaller retailers, in order to cater to this prejudice of ours, have been known to resort to the practice of labelling as "imported" large amounts of goods which are actually Canadian made. C. A. C., feels that when national buying prejudices interfere with intelligent buying, everybody is penalized and shoppers most of all.

FRUIT WALNUT LOAF

- Yield—1 loaf. 2 1/4 cups once-sifted enriched pastry flour or 2 cups once-sifted enriched all-purpose flour. 4 teaspoons baking powder. 1/4 teaspoon salt. 5 tablespoons chilled shortening. 1/2 cup fine granulated sugar. 1/4 cup coarsely cut walnuts. 1 egg. 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind. 1/4 teaspoon vanilla. 2 cans (5 ounces each) strained plum with farina (as prepared for babies).

Measure and sift together once, then sift into mixing bowl, the flour, baking powder and salt. Add the chilled shortening and cut it in finely. Mix in the sugar and walnuts.

Beat the egg until thick and light, stir in lemon rind, vanilla and strained plums.

Make a well in the flour mixture and gradually stir in egg mixture, mixing well to a smooth batter.

Turn batter into a loaf pan (about 5 by 10 inches, top inside measure) that has been greased and lined with greased paper.

Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 45 minutes.

Let loaf stand in its pan on a cake cooler for 15 minutes; loosen edges and turn out carefully; remove paper.

Turn loaf right-side up and cool thoroughly; store in a closely covered tin or wrapped in waxed paper.

Found Relief From SCIATIC PAIN

"I began to suffer with a dull, continuous ache from my hip down my leg," writes Mr. Geo. F. MacGregor, 1604 E. 8th Ave., Vancouver. "The steady pain gave me no rest day or night. One day when my leg was so painful I could hardly get about, a stranger stopped me. He had once suffered much the same thing until he tried Templeton's T-R-C. He recommended T-R-C to me, and I could thank him for in a short time T-R-C gave me longed-for relief from my sciatic pain. Don't suffer from Sciatic, Rheumatic or Arthritic pain. How Can I... By Anne Ashley

Q. How should black material be laundered? A. It is unwise to apply soap directly to black materials; this is liable to make them cloudy. Wash the goods in a warm lather and rinse in clear, salted water.

Q. How can I facilitate the washing of greasy dishes? A. Add a few drops of ammonia to the dish water. This will not only facilitate matters, but will produce a sanitary odor, more pleasant than greasy dishes often give forth.

The Answer

"Mummy, why do some people object to having children in their house?" asked little Elsie. "I don't know," her mother answered sharply, "and I can't be bothered with such things now. Go and see what baby's crying about, tell Billy to stop aiming that catapult, make Betty and Alec stop sliding down the banisters, and tell Georgie if he doesn't stop blowing that trumpet I'll take it away from him."
