

Country Life.

Not what we would, but what we must. Make up the sum of living. Heaven is both more and less than just in taking and in giving.

Dear country home! Can I forget The least of thy sweet trifles? The window vines, which clamber yet, Whose blooms the bee still rifles?

Happy the man who tills the field, Content with rustic labor; Earth does to him her fullness yield, 'Hap' what may to his neighbor.

Dear country life of child and man! For both the best, the strongest, That with the earliest race began, And has outlived the longest.

Perhaps our Babels, too, will fall; If so, no lamentations, For Mother Earth will shelter all, And feed the unborn nations;

A Small Boy and a Hose.

In a busy part of a New York street, one afternoon, a very small two-headed boy espied a coil of hose lying on the outer edge of the sidewalk. Grasping the nozzle, he drew it towards him, sitting down in the operation.

The next moment the boy had fallen down, and was writhing with the nozzle, and the stream was chasing the two little girls across the street. By this time a little crowd of men, women and children had gathered.

Grim Humor.

The persons who caused the explosion of dynamite recently in Scotland Yard, showed a touch of grim humor as well as defiance. Scotland Yard is the headquarters of the Metropolitan police, and is situated in one of the many historic places of London.
