Barbara Brent's BUYS AND WHYS A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL, April 17th—Another beautiful Woodbury bride, Betty Savage, was married recently. Betty's pearl-pink satin gown matched her luminously clear, exquisitely smooth complexion. Her beauty secret? The mild, creamy lather of WOODBURY FACIAL SOAP leaves skin radiantly smooth, younger-looking. While some soaps tend to dry sensitive skin, Woodbury actually softens it!

Don't Let A Lovely Spring Day Catch You With The "Blues". Chase them away with a glass of sparkling SAL HEPATICA before breakfast. And you'll agree—Sal Hepatica effervescent salts are pleasant to take—gentle as can be. When hubby or son isn't feeling "just right" either, suggest they try Sal Hepatica—it's been a faithful family laxative for over 60 years. Another beauty about Sal Hepatica is that you can use it safely merely as a refresher in the morning—or at night when your system feels the need of a more thorough remedy. So next time you're shopping—ask for a jar of Sal Hepatica and send the box top as label, with your name and address, to me—Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q.—and I'll send you a FREE, generous 25c size jar of MUM Cream Deodorant!

Are You Sensitive? No, this isn't a personality quiz, but just a friendly tip to those with easily irritated skins. It includes you then you'll especially welcome the caressing softness of FACE-ELLE tissue handkerchiefs. I have reliable information that it's the only alkaline (non-acid) tissue in Canada... and remember, it's acidity which adds to nose discomfort when you have a heavy head cold! So get the tissue that's always kind to your nose... that's always a comfort to use because of its gentle softness, extra strength and faster absorbency. It is these qualities which make the brand name so important when buying tissue handkerchiefs. Remember the brand name "Face-Elle" and you will be more than satisfied with what you get!

and James was obliged to divide his day between the sewing and stables. The grandchildren were his willing helpers and what a happy time they had! Jamie, after school, and the others as yet without a care in the world. Scaling to the lofts, tumbling with James to the heaps of hay or straw sent down before. Laughing at the joy of it, coming in with bits of chaff clinging, to beg cookies or bread and butter to stay them until supper.

We hear now clink of glasses and sounds which declare a bedtime lunch. The conversation is that of adults. For Jamie, guest now for a long week-end, is a big boy, fast growing up. We must come to join the two—James and Jamie. To hear again at light-out, James same merry query: "Whose going to be 'firstest up' the stairs tonight?" Until tomorrow—Diary—Good-night.....

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Continued from page 3 his own home. You alone are the loser; with no security in the future at all. Your doubts are lulled by, as you say, a handclasp or a kiss. Doesn't that seem an inadequate return for the payment of your whole heart and soul? You will emerge from the love affair with a broken heart, possibly a damaged reputation, a cynicism that will darken your whole future—while husband and wife resume the normal course of their lives as if nothing had happened. Is that fair to you? No! But it is the almost inevitable procedure. There are three solutions to the problem. Either you break with your sweetheart, which I am sure you consider impossible at the moment; you frankly tell his wife of the situation and see if she will agree to a divorce, and your subsequent marriage; or—continue as you are! Frankly, I believe you will probably choose number three, the line of least resistance, and the path that will bring you to certain disaster. Love is, indeed, a wonderful emotion, but there is something to be said for self-respect, too. As for your second suitor—don't give him any further encouragement until you have completely cleared up present difficulties. If you want concrete advice for what it's worth, I'll tell you to end your affair at once, let the other man's devotion help to bind up the wounds, and in less time than you think, you'll probably be ready to love him as he deserves. Put yourself in a position where you can look the world in the face and owe apologies to no one. You're a fine, intelligent person, worthy of something a great deal more than a futile love affair, however noble it may seem at the moment. DEAR MISS DIX: I've been going steady with my boy friend for five years. I've tried to change him, but have had no success. He drinks quite a bit and is very nasty when he does; when he isn't drinking he's fine. He wants to get married on a shoestring, spending now whatever he makes. He could save on his salary, but believes in a good time while he can have it. Do you think he'll ever change? He's in his middle thirties. MARY L. ANSWER: Mary, you're headed straight for the saddest matrimonial disaster you could manufacture. Better wake up. Your letter outlined some of the worst faults a husband could have—and not one redeeming quality. A man who is improvident in his middle thirties certainly will never make a responsible mate. Believe me, single blessedness is far more desirable than marriage to a man you can't trust or depend on.
