

We have been very much surprised to learn that some of the members of the Pol... we beg their pardon - Unholy Alliance, seriously assert that the speeches which have been recently printed in this paper were not actually delivered at the weekly meetings of this association; and one gentleman, in denouncing our report, used such violent language that modesty forbids us to print it, and grit his teeth with so much energy and passion that several beholders were led to apprehend that if the aforesaid teeth were often subjected to such ill usage, they would soon require dental operations. Now, knowing that Our Own Reporter is a person of the most scrupulous veracity, and exceedingly skillful in the use of his stenographic hieroglyphics, we are determined to regard with the utmost steadfastness of belief his account of the oratorical displays of the Unholy Alliance, until such time as one of the six Secretaries of that influential association can find relief enough from his extremely onerous duties to prepare a more authentic report for the press.—EDITOR EXAMINER.]

The recommendation of giving unwavering and substantial support to the Islander, having been made by an influential member, he spoke in support of it as follows:—

"Mr. President and Gentlemen.—You all know, and I am sure you appreciate the invaluable services rendered to our cause by that well-conducted periodical, the Islander. Indeed, these services are so conspicuous, that I am at a loss how to begin the record of their importance. The person who conducts the paper rightly judges, that, to succeed in an opposition, it is necessary not only to undervalue and malign the character of an existing Government in its collective capacity, but it is a great auxiliary in the success of such a scheme to scandalize and libel to the utmost, each constituent part; and not only the members of the Government themselves, but all who are under them, in whatever capacity they may move. Believe me, gentlemen, in such an undertaking no scruples of conscience should or ought to circumscribe the bounds of detraction—no limits, which truth and justice in other matters might prescribe, are at all necessary in this case. Nay, they must be unhesitatingly passed by, when it is expedient. The present Governor, as well as former Governors, and even their wives, must be maligned, if the public taste and the most remote approach to producing an effect, require it. Let me, however, instil into you that caution without which, as I have often had occasion to observe, the best schemes will fail. The public is not altogether so depraved but that sundry misgivings as to the course pursued, at times invade the overscrupulous minds of certain individuals—lukewarm in the cause—unworthy, indeed, to be members of this admirable Society. Some of these are weak enough to think it very questionable whether more harm than good may not be done by fastening scandal on by-gone Governors, and drawing into public notice the female names—in most countries exempt from the indictions—in any decent print. Gentlemen, do not believe it. There is no harm in this course. Few, indeed, believe what they read, but the general effect is damaging. Sir Henry Vere Huntley, Sir Alexander Bannerman, Sir Dominick Daly, all come in for their share of calumny and abuse, and why not their wives? Were they not joined together for better and for worse, and what is there unmanly in scourging the females together with the males? But, gentlemen, whilst this course meets, as I am sure it does, with your most hearty approval, please to bear in mind the fact, that many indignations is not altogether so dead and extinct in this our community as you might wish, or I fear imagine. Take care, whilst you promote to the utmost these proceedings, what you are about. People will call the Islander (our faithful organ) a scurrilous and a lying print, and give it other harsh names, totally undeserved. They will say that it violates not only truth, but all the conventional decencies of respectable society. While, therefore, you employ columns, and glaze over its monstrosities, take care, take care, that you do not go to accord your support and countenance, that no person shall be able, in any manner, to identify you with it. The odious system of Government in operation makes every public man responsible to the people, and it will not do to appear to have anything in common with the paper under consideration. Whenever you go, exclaim against its excesses—deprecate its personalities—invect against its falsehoods—make the public, and above all, those of decent deportment, believe you have no connection whatever with it.—talk as if you think it an unclean thing to touch; but do not fail, notwithstanding, to have it on your table as a thing you are indifferent about. If you are questioned regarding it, affect to be ashamed of it—profess it goes too far—in short, do what you will to damn it, only be sure that it gets subscriptions and donations enough to pay the printer and editor. Write in it when you have any damaging scandal to promulgate; and so shall our Society thrive, and the usurpers of our official rights and profits be finally discomfited."

"The 'hon. member' then resumed his seat amidst much applause, when another rose and spoke as follows:—

"Mr. President and Gentlemen.—The hon. member who has just addressed you has brought under your consideration a matter of the deepest importance. What, indeed, would our Society or our party be without the Islander? It is well known to you all that the other journal—I mean the Haszard's Gazette—besides the fact, that its management shows there is no talent in its editor, it is far too scrupulous for our purpose or the crisis; and it is too strongly suspected, that, seeing the course of events to be inevitable, it is not disinclined, so far as its antecedents will permit, to occupy the position of an armed neutrality. This, indeed, may be wisdom, but it is not patriotism, nor do I believe it to be the fruit of the slightest sincerity. But be that as it may, it is the Islander, the whole of which we have to depend. I wish, however, to ask the President if he can inform me what has become of the subscription, or I should more properly say, gratuitous contributions which were got up on behalf of this valuable paper. Is the list now extinct, or only put into concealment from the unwillingness of many of our best friends to have their names on record as the founders and supporters of the journal in question? ("I do not know," the President replies.) The President "does not know." Well, the answer is wise and prudent—for if he knows, it surely would not be wise to risk the exposure of the names which would so ill accord with the professions of those amongst them who make a daily parade of repudiating the tricks of their over-grown bantling. They, like many other not very moral persons, perhaps chuckle over the godless tricks of their deceity-defying children. The feeling is too common, but in this case it is well known. But, gentlemen, not to occupy too much of your valuable time, allow me to put before you a consideration which I am sure will have great weight in deciding the course you should take on this occasion. Gentlemen, you cannot be ignorant that amongst ourselves there cannot be found any of that sort of talent which is wanted to conduct or even materially to aid such an undertaking as this. We have not the art of writing or defending our opinions. We must trust to those whom we employ. Be you, therefore, scandalized by the connection—be you desirous to disown it—or be you what you may, you cannot exist without it. Emissaries, indeed, you may employ, but they will be no more successful in your cause than they were in that of the Maine Liquor Law. No reliance for aid is to be looked for elsewhere than in the columns of the Islander. All, then, that it may publish, which the world may think unjustifiable, nay, even the neatly-mouthed amongst ourselves may condemn, is, gentlemen, I assure you, quite unimportant on that ground, seeing that the public press must be prostituted, if our plans are ever to ripen into successful maturity. I am sure, therefore, we cannot exist without it. We may become like the opium-eaters, ashamed to take our relish in public, but we must still continue it as part of our daily means of existence."

[This gentleman having here concluded his speech amidst stamping of feet and clapping of hands, another member rose, who, the Reporter understood, but very recently joined the Alliance, and whose zeal in the cause was of the same quality as Bob Acre's courage—very shadowy and unsubstantial. His appearance, therefore, as one of the orators of the evening, excited no particular enthusiasm, but he was nevertheless attentively listened to, until he came to the concluding part of his address. The Reporter has been anxious to give a full and perfectly faithful report of his speech, which is as follows:—]

"Mr. President and Gentlemen.—As the hon. member who has just sat down has not proposed a resolution, nor propounded any definite plan for giving support to the object so worthy of our consideration, I have risen, Sir, with great reluctance, to put to the members of this Society one or two important questions. In the first place, in what manner shall we support the Islander? You will probably answer, by paying regularly our subscriptions to the paper, and our usual annual contributions to make up the amount of the editor's salary. That certainly is a satisfactory answer as far as it goes, but the next important question is—How much, think you, does this amount to from each individual subscriber and contributor? Now, I will only venture to speak for myself, although I know many individuals to whom the same observation will apply, and I think I am within bounds when I assert that my support to the Islander has been to the tune of five pounds per annum, and this having been continued steadily from 1851 up to the present time—today nothing of previous contributions and subscriptions—gives a sum of £25, by which I have supported the Islander during that short period. Now, Sir, when a man gives away his money to any particular cause, and sees no prospect of a return to himself or others for the expenditure, it is his duty to pause and reflect whether he should go on doing as he has done. (Sensation, and cries of "Oh! oh!" from several members.) I was well aware, Sir, that the sentiments I have risen to utter would excite some surprise, but to myself they have been a source of painful consideration for several years. I think most of you will do me the justice to admit that my heart has been always, and still is, in the cause of what is impudently termed the old Compact. (Cheers.) I have been at all their elections—conversant with all their schemes and plots, ready to assist in carrying them out by any means, (cheers!) fair and foul ("Oh!" "Oh!") and it has been my anxious desire to have a paper that would assist in this good work. Now, Sir, when we read the present editor of the Islander five years ago—to be sure he was a cast-off of the Snatcher party and a rejected member, but we were glad to get any man of talent from any quarter, since we had none in our own circle—I ask, Sir, what did we expect at that time, and what did he promise? Did he not pledge himself to write down—to annihilate—to cover with everlasting confusion and disgrace the party who had just then usurped the offices of our good old friends? (Hear.) We thought he was capable of performing this important service, and so we hired him; but instead of helping us out of our difficulties, and destroying our enemies, he has only plunged us deeper into the former, and increased the number of the latter. (Sensation, and cries of, "Sit down, Sir.") This candid admission may be unpalatable to some gentlemen here, but although it may not be the object of this Association always to propagate the truth, we ought to be allowed to use a little of that article amongst ourselves, in cases where truth will answer our purposes better than falsehood. Now, Sir, I put the plain common sense question to every man here—Has not Duncan Maclean been worse than a failure to us? (Sensation.)

[The President here rose to suggest that the subject which his friend was about to discuss was one that had better be left for the consideration of the Committee of the Alliance in private conference, but the gentleman who was in possession of the floor, turning round to survey his audience, directing his eye somewhat indignantly and uneasily towards the Reporter, reminded the worthy President that he could not perceive more than two or three individuals in the room exclusive of the Committee, which two or three, he was satisfied, were staunch friends and members of the Alliance, and he could therefore see no impropriety in offering the remarks which suggested themselves to him.]

"I repeat then, Sir, said he, the question—Has not Duncan Maclean been worse than a failure to us? We have not gained, by means of his pen, one single election since we employed him, but, on the contrary, in every succeeding contest we must feel that we have been rapidly losing ground. The country districts are nearly all gone from us—Princetown, under the operation of that mischievous Representation Bill, is inevitably lost; in Georgetown at the last election, we are painfully aware, we had a narrow escape, and I trust our very worthy President will not be offended with me when I say, that as the Snatchers showed their strength by a large majority of them giving nearly one hundred plumpers for McDonald, while the whole number of voters does not amount to one hundred and fifty, it is quite clear that McDonald's friends could have put in any one they pleased had he been proposed in proper time. Well, we all know to our mortification, that in Charlottetown, at the last election, we had a tremendous, and at one time of the day, a desperate effort, to secure the election of our present members. That infernal Franchise Bill has amazingly strengthened the hands of our enemies, as was clearly shown by the fact, that two very quiet men, considerably advanced in years, who had never taken a prominent part in politics, very nearly defeated those whom we had previously regarded as the most popular members in the country. Well, Mr. Palmer says that he will not again offer, for reasons, of course, best known to himself, and I am afraid, Sir, that Mr. Longworth can't. Under these circumstances, then, what are we to do? At recent elections, it has been all up-hill work with us, and at the next, I am inclined to believe, but most reluctantly, that our chances of success will be more discouraging. If we had a paper to assist us, it would be worthy of any amount of support; but, Sir, it is painful for me to tell you, that the Islander is not the thing for the service. You know that at one time we tried to force its circulation by paying the printer to send it into various parts of the country where it was not previously read, free of charge to the individual receivers, for six months in the year; but in most cases the paper was sent back to the office, although offered upon such easy terms; and the few who did consent to receive it, stopped it as soon as the six months expired. Now, Sir, I am not inclined to give my money for an article that is not marketable, and I am therefore compelled to oppose any proposition for supporting the Islander until I find that it is conducted by a more influential personage than the present editor. Look, Sir, to this Alliance! Had we not reason to expect that its branches would spring up and flourish in every section of the Colony, and that the press which we so liberally pay would be the means of bringing it into vigorous growth? But what is the fact? Sir, must we humble ourselves to admit, that not one solitary branch has yet been established or can be established (much sensation)—that all our efforts to spread the organization have been repulsed—(sensation)—that our prospectuses have been returned even by those upon whom we thought we could count at Tryon and New London, with a cool and insulting intimation that the thing would not go down in those favoured localities; and here, our head quarters, where it should be supposed our men of influence most do congregate, we cannot command anything like a respectable attendance at our Association."

[At this announcement the audience rose en masse in the wildest confusion, some exclaiming, "It is false!" others crying "Put him down," "put him out," and the incautious gentleman would probably have been treated with great rudeness, had it not been for a very opportune occurrence, which the Reporter had the good fortune to perceive, namely, the President taking out of his waistcoat pocket a letter which he said he had just received, containing a subscription of Twenty Shillings towards the funds of the Alliance, from a gentleman who had great sympathy in the cause, very much desired its success, though he at present felt reluctant to mix himself up in public affairs, and would therefore withhold his name until a more favourable opportunity. He had no doubt he would have the happiness, &c. &c., at no distant day, to take a prominent part in the proceedings of the Alliance. The reading of this letter evoked the most enthusiastic plaudits, in the midst of which the President adjourned the meeting.]

METROPOLITAN TROUPE.—The "Metropolitans" continue to draw crowded houses. They will give their fourth concert on this evening. The members of the Troupe are from some of the most distinguished companies in the U. States, and, judging from their performances, they appear to be the very cream of them. They have performed principally in the New England States with unbounded success. The Press, without exception, have passed the highest encomiums upon them. The hundreds who have already visited the Hall the last few nights fully testify to the popularity of this company. Without exception the whole Company are first rate performers—their selections are in exceeding good taste, and what is more, they are not characterized by that low, vulgar slang, which has marked some companies that have visited this city, and to a great degree lessened the public confidence. But from what we have seen of the Metropolitans, we are certain they will increase in public confidence and favor the oftener they perform.—Halifax Sun.

A great many visitors were at it, some helping themselves without leave from Mr. Gallant, who there can be no doubt is the owner.—Com.

DR. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE, PREPARED BY FLEMING BROS. OF PITTSBURGH.

During a practice of more than twenty years, Dr. M'Lane had attended innumerable patients afflicted with every form of worm disease, and was induced to apply all the energies of his mind to the discovery of a vermifuge or worm destroyer, certain in its effects; the result of his labors is the American Worm Specific, now before the public, prepared by Fleming Bros. of Pittsburgh, which is perfectly safe, and may be given alike to children of the most tender age, or to the aged adult; it purges mildly and subdues fever, and destroys worms with invariable success. It is easy of administration, and as it does not contain mercury in any form whatever, no restrictions are necessary with regard to drinking cold water, nor is it capable of doing the least injury to the tender infant. An incredible number of worms have been expelled by this great vermifuge.

Purchasers will be careful to ask for DR. M'LANE'S CELEBRATED VERMIFUGE, manufactured by FLEMING BROS. OF PITTSBURGH, Pa. All other Vermifuges in comparison are worthless. Dr. M'Lane's genuine Vermifuge, also his celebrated Liver Pills, can now be had at all respectable drug stores. None genuine without the signature of FLEMING BROS.

[A most astonishing cure of General Debility.—Mr. Henry Ambrose, of Toronto, was for thirteen years an alarming sufferer from general debility, at night he had the most horrible dreams when asleep, and when awake, he was low spirited, with thoughts of self-destruction, dislike of society, and involuntary blushing, this was the catalogue of his complaints, his friends were constantly alarmed, and in his calmer moments he wished for death to relieve him of his sufferings. As might be expected the best advice from time to time was obtained, but it was utterly unavailing; at last he was determined to commence the use of Holloway's Pills, which he did; nine weeks perseverance with this celebrated medicine saw him such a man as he had never been before in his life, the bloom of health upon his cheek, and every symptom of his host of disorders completely eradicated.]

Extensive Sale at Auction!

BY WILLIAM DODD.
TO BE SOLD by Public Auction, on the Premises, in SUMMERSIDE VILLAGE, Bedouque, on WEDNESDAY, the 10th day of December next, the whole of the Subscriber's

Real Estate

in this Island, consisting of some 50 VILLAGE LOTS in said Village, in which are included about 900 feet along the shore of the Harbor of Bedouque, and which is laid out in WATER LOTS, and the front secured by a breast-work at considerable expense, and on which is the best location in the Village for a Wharf. On part of these Lots stands two DWELLING HOUSES, one STORE and Warehouse, and one Carriage Factory, which will be sold with the Lots on which they stand.
Immediately adjoining the Village is a FARM of about 90 acres, 50 of which is in a good state of cultivation, and the balance well covered with a splendid growth of Birch and Maple. There are also a large BARN, a small FARM-HOUSE, Out-houses, a Well, and a large Spring of superior water on the premises. This farm being situated on the north side of Bedouque Bay, and gradually descending south to said Village, renders its location pleasant; and as it commands a full view of the Straits, with New Brunswick in the distance, makes it a very desirable site for residences—consequently it will be sold in 5 to 10 acre Lots, or in the whole, as may best suit purchasers, a large portion of which, however, will be required to supply the growth of the Village. This property, in point of beauty for private residences, and convenience for all sorts of fishing, shipping, &c., is second to none in the Island. Much might be said of the many business advantages, &c., of Summerside, and of its proximity to Shediac—the terminus of the Railroad.
ALSO—at the same time and place—will be sold 300 acres of LAND on Lot 8; 100 acres on Lot 3; 100 acres on Lot 15; and also, an INTEREST in other Lands at Fifteen Point. ALSO—the freehold of two FARMS on Lot 25, under leases, and paying annually £9 10s. currency, rent.
The whole of this property will positively be sold in lots and portions to suit purchasers, and on reasonable terms. Good titles will be given to all the said property. For further particulars apply to Messrs. BEER & SON, Charlottetown, or to P. BAKER, Esquire, Bedouque, with whom plans of said Village Property can be seen.
