

A New and Striking Argument for Teetotalism.

The anecdote is told of Dr. Benjamin Ward Richardson, that by a simple experiment he convinced an intelligent young man of the importance of total abstinence when argument or appeal might have been in vain.

Without attempting a direct reply, Dr. Richardson said, "will you be good enough to feel my pulse as I am standing here?"

He did so, and the doctor said, "Count it carefully, and tell me what it says."

"Your pulse," was the reply "beats seventy-four to the minute."

The doctor sat down in a chair, and asked him to count it again.

He did so, and exclaimed, "Why it is only sixty-four; what an extraordinary thing!"

The doctor then said, "When you lie down at night, that is the way that Nature gives your heart rest. In sleep you know nothing about it but that beating organ is resting to that extent; and if you reckon it up, you will see at once it is a great deal of rest, because when lying down the heart is doing ten strokes less every minute than before.

Now multiply the number by sixty, and it is six hundred, and multiply that number again by the eight hours you may give to sleep, and within a fraction, it is five thousand strokes less than when you are awake.

And as the heart throws out some six ounces of blood at every stroke of pulsation, it makes a difference of thirty thousand ounces, or nearly nineteen hundred pounds, of lifting during the night, or nearly eleven millions of ounces, or almost seven hundred thousand pounds, of lifting in a single year; and this by so delicate an organ or instrument as the human heart.

When I lie down at night without alcohol, that is the rest that my heart gets. But when you take your wine or whisky, or grog of any kind, you do not get the rest, for the effect of alcohol or spirit is to increase the number of strokes; and instead of getting this rest you put on something like fifteen thousand extra strokes, or some ninety thousand ounces of extra lifting, in a single night; and the result is that you arise up weak and exhausted, and unfit for the next day's work till you have taken another drink which, in the end, increases the exhaustion, and rapidly wears away the life itself.

The young man acknowledged that all this was perfectly true, though it had never before struck him in that light. He carefully reckoned up the figures, and what it meant to be lifting up so many extra thousand ounces whenever he took a drink, he became a total abstainer, with every benefit as he admits, to his purse, his health, and his happiness.

Is their not here a most striking conclusive argument for teetotalism? Let every young man ponder it.—British Workman

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites is not only very palatable, but the remedial power of these valuable specifics is greatly increased, and as a remedy for consumption, scrofula, emaciation, or where there is loss of flesh and nerve power, it is remarkable in its results.
