Canada's Coal Output Said At Lowest Level Since 1906

MONTREAL (CP)—Coal output from Canadian mines has hit its lowest level since 1906, C. L. O'Brian, chairman of the Dominion coal board, said in a report released here.

He said the total output from Canadian mines in 1961 was estimated at 10,320,000 compared with the 1960 total of 10,970,000 tons.

The decrease in supply, he said, was due to a falling off in consumption. The greatest single factor had been the loss of the railway and bunker markets to diesel and fuel oil.

Mr. O'Brian added bunker markets probably would be stabilized at 500,000 tons a year for use in ships—a drop from 12,000,000 tons in 1951 and 700,000 tons in 1961.

The tremendous loss of markets in these categories now is almost over," he said. "Coal is gaining ground in the iron and steel industry, is almost holding its position in general industry, and is looking forward to substantial gains in the thermal electric field.

COAL HAS FUTURE

"There is now evident a factual basis for this prediction on the future of coal in thermal power. In the Maritime provinces reported plans for new generating equipment in the next three years call for installation of an additional 162,000 horsepower of thermal power.

"In Ontario the thermal plants of Ontario Hydro have been operating at a higher level than for several years. . . in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, lignite coal from Estevan fields is holding its own against natural gas. In Alberta, the enlarged Wabamun plant of the Calgary Power Company is changing over from gas to coal and a potential consumption of 2,000,000 tons per year is anticipated.

"Employment in Canadian mines has reflected the general picture . . . the Dominion government initiated a comprehensive series of projects to provide alternative employment for the displaced miners.

"This . . . is a long-term proposition and will require a growing labor force for some years as well as providing a base for other employment in the service industries.

"Altogether, the picture for coal, Canadian and imported, while still gloomy, contains the promise of substantial and early improvement."

Study Groups Are Requested On Jobless

QUEBEC (CP)—Six influential business and labor organizations today asked Premier LeSage to set up a study group to make year-round surveys of the unemployment situation.

The proposal was put to the premier privately by representatives of the Provincial Chamber of Commerce, the Confederation of National Trade Unions, the Quebec Labor Federation, the Catholic Farmers Union, the Professional Association of Industrialists and the Council of Co-operation, governing body of the co-operative movement in Quebec.

A member of the delegation outlined the suggestions made to the premier and members of the cabinet.

At fixed times of the year, the group would determine the number of unemployed, their age, sex, education, family situation, the length of time they had been unemployed, the industries affected and how a jobless person lives once his unemployment insurance runs out.

Opening lead — three of spades.

When declarer is playing a contract that appears hopeless, about all he can do is attempt to deceive the defense. He is frequently in a position to know he has little or no chance of making a hand, but the defenders, unaware of their combined strength, sometimes fumble the play because they don't know exactly where to attack.

This hand was played in a team match, and at both tables the contract was three notrump. At the first table, West led a spade and South saw at once that the opponents could probably take four heart tricks and a club to defeat the hand.

In an attempt to forestall the attack upon his weak suit, he therefore won the spade in dummy and led the ten of hearts. He hoped to create the impression that he had heart strength. West took the heart with the queen and led another spade.

Declarer won it with the ace and led the king of clubs. West took the ace, but now realizing what South was up to, led the king and another heart to defeat the contract a trick.

At the second table, against similar bidding, West also led a spade. The declarer at this table took a different view about the strategy best suited to the hand.

He decided to try to persuade West that he had the A-K of spades alone. Accordingly, he won the opening lead with the ace, though he could have won the trick in dummy and thus assured three spade tricks instead of two.

Then he led the king of clubs which West took with the ace. West, convinced that another spade lead would force the king, returned a spade. As a result, South still got his three spade tricks, but more important, he made the contract.

We rather like the second method of play better than the first, but in psychological problems of this sort it's hard to prove which form of strategy is better. The big point is that some form of deception has to be practiced in such cases.
