

Quebec Writers Urge Better Understanding

By RALPH CAMERON
A strong plea for a better understanding between the English and French-speaking peoples of Canada in an effort to create a greater country was made by Claude Gendron, travel writer of La Presse, Montreal, in his address to the P.E.I. Tourist Association. During that time they traveled extensively to all parts of the island.

The Mayor in his welcome to the editors regretted the apparent schism developing between the two main cultures and expressed the hope such efforts as the Charlottetown water front would result in a better understanding.

Mr. Gendron told his listeners he was first of all a Canadian and "I believe we of French birth have something to contribute to the Canadian way of life. Something it would be regrettable to lose."

He had little respect for the so-called "separatists" whom he described as "misguided students led by a man who is not even a Canadian". In making the plea for better understanding on both sides he noted that each has a complete set of Shakespeare's works "which I read regularly with the help of a big dictionary. It may take an hour to read a page but I try to study it."

One of the speakers, Georges Bherer, of Le Soleil, Quebec City, brought a letter to Mayor Gaudet from Mayor Hamel of his home city. It said in part: "I have asked Mr. Bherer to convey the greetings and good wishes of Quebec. There is so much in common between Charlottetown and our city that I take great pleasure in availing myself of this opportunity to express our feeling of friendship on the occasion of this visit of the representative of the press of your country which should do much to promote goodwill and understanding among the different provinces of Canada."

DISAGREES SMILINGLY
Mrs. Helen Rochester, Montreal Star, disagreed smilingly with Mayor Gaudet when he expressed his personal objection to the proposed causeway as taking away our status as Canada's only island province. Mrs. Rochester, a native of Newfoundland, said she hoped the causeway would be built because "His Worship might admit my home as an island province." Mayor Gaudet replied that since Newfoundland also held much territory of Labrador it could not rank as an island province.

Present at the luncheon held at the Charlottetown Hotel were J.D. Stewart, minister of tourism development; George Fraser, director of the Travel Bureau; H. E. Hyndman, City Councillor; John Butler, City Comptroller; George Candler, Harry McKinnon, Walter Cox, deputy Mayor, Mrs. Anne Bond, Scott MacParson, Ralph Cameron, Frank Lelander, Charles Linklater, president of the P.E.I. Tourist Association.

The visiting writers left by Marlinne Centre Airways on return yesterday afternoon.

JOHN CARTER, Adac, N.B. the Shorthorn field day Tuesday. Mr. Carter placed the several classes of Shorthorn calves shown yesterday and also a class of mature cows which 4-H Club members and ladies competed for judging honors.

LASSIE QUEEN CHOSEN

Excellent livestock judging by 4-H Club members was a feature of the Shorthorn field day held yesterday on the farm of Daniel Jewell, East Wiltshire. No less than 16 of the young club members had all of the placings correct on a class of mature Dual Purpose Shorthorn cows selected from Mr. Jewell's herd, and they could not be placed until their reasons were given to their selectors.

The class was placed officially by John Carter, A.I.C., N.B., assisted by Ralph Adams, O'Leary.

Mr. Carter also placed several competitive classes of young animals brought to the farm for the Maritime Shorthorn Breeders Association. Yesterday's judging was the last of the season, and they could not be placed until their reasons were given to their selectors.

There's a ready market in the Maritimes for both milk and beef, and you people who are the Dual Purpose breed have both commodities," said Mr. MacRae.

"There is a practically unlimited demand in the Atlantic area for beef and we should be growing more of it," said the minister, who also stressed the value of their production.

Dr. Kelly said the artificial insemination program "value the advice of you people who are the breeders when it comes to selecting good sires for the unit."

Mr. Carter asked if there is a need any longer for a Maritime Shorthorn Breeders' Association, now that each province has an active association of its own.

LASSIE QUEEN
Miss Stella Boswell, Marfiness, was selected as Lassie Queen for the P.E.I. Shorthorn Breeders during the next year, by a panel of judges that included Leonard MacLean, Arlington, Lot 18; David Peacock, Charlottetown; Mrs. Waldron MacPhee, Elmwood and Mrs. Alden Gamble, Summerside and Prince County.

Miss Stella Boswell, Marfiness, was chosen as the Lassie Princess. The Queen and her Princess were crowned by Jean Fortune, Charlottetown, and the Princess received enough money from the association to purchase their uniforms. The girls will be asked to appear at Short-horn shows throughout the province, including the provincial exhibition in August, and the association helps to the extent of supplying the uniform expenses.

JUDGING
The first 10 4-H judging placings were announced as follows:
1. Donald Holmes, Kingston; 2. Robert Wood, Mt. Herbert; 3. Paul Gosselin, Charlottetown; 4. Gillespie, Milton; 5. Mervin Holmes, Kingston; 6. Byron MacPhee, Elmwood; 7. Enoch Gillespie, Milton; 8. Preston Jewell, East Wiltshire; 9. Lowell Holmes, Kingston; 10. Jean MacLean, Marfiness.

Navy, RCMP Ships Are Due At Regatta

SOURS — An added attraction in Sours for the Fibrelet Exhibition and Regatta being held this Friday and Saturday will be two navy ships, HMCS Fundy and the HMCS Resolute which are due to dock here early Friday.

Each of these ships has a complement of 40 men and five officers.

The RCMP patrol boat Adversus is due the same day and will carry a crew of four who will aid the local detachment during the festivities.

The officers which will be used for the displays during the regatta has been cleaned and studied by the fine department and the festival flags put in place.

The order was granted by Mr. Justice George J. Tweedy. Application was made by city barrister Elmer Blanchard on behalf of the Queen Hotel.

The order affects the operations of and Northern Construction Co. and J.W. Stewart Ltd., engaged in construction of a department of transport wharf.

The pile-driving which was on a 24-hour basis, was said to create noise and vibration causing discomfort to local guests.

The order also affects the order of this nature was granted was believed to be about 1953 when it involved an action by the Canadian National Railway to close Hillisboro Bridge to all traffic.

Snow Festival Relocates In QCHS, To Open July 13

By NANCY WHITE
The Snow Festival has relocated at the Queen Charlotte High School. It was announced yesterday.

Artistic Director of the festival, Lionel Dixon, gave as the official reason for the change the fact that the facilities at Prince of Wales College are "not adequate" from a technical point of view.

The case of the three-play festival is currently rehearsing several days a week, afternoon and evening, for the gala opening which opens July 13 with the premiere performance of "Candida".

Mr. Dixon said that the festival has recently received grant from the provincial government. He commented that it shows the government is taking tangible interest in the cultural life of the province's citizens, adding that the Snow Festival is very grateful for this assistance.

The city is going to "sign the way" for the festival theatre.

Mr. Dixon said this will serve particularly to guide visitors to the festival.

The casts of the three George Bernard Shaw plays to be presented are "The Shrew", "The Man and the Boy", and "You Never Can Tell". They were delighted to move into the Queen Charlotte auditorium for rehearsals. Most of their first rehearsals had actually been staged in the corridors of the department of education, in the old West Kent School building.

NOT HIGHBROW
Mr. Dixon stressed the fact that the three plays, which will run on weekdays throughout July and August, will be fun to watch, and are not highbrow. He added that the festival, contrary to a popular belief, is not connected with Premier Walter S. Howarth. The similarity in name is strictly coincidental, he said.

Advance bookings have been very promising, he said. A number of people are forming theatre parties, attending the performance in groups, he added.

There are special rates for school groups.

The festival is currently unloading the process of being legally incorporated. A board of governors has been chosen to run the business end of the operation.

BOARD NAMED
Chairman of the board is Lloyd MacLeod, Charlottetown. The most recently appointed governor is Rev. Adrian Arsenault, others on the board include C. Ross MacKenzie, Summerside, vice-chairman; Sterling Walker, treasurer, and Ian Wolfenden, secretary.

Opening night for the festival, July 13, will see the first performance of "Candida", which Mr. Dixon terms his "piece de resistance" — guaranteeing it doesn't have everyone in the audience weeping at the end, not a thing to be feared.

The performance will be a premiere in true big city tradition, with patrons attending in evening dress. The Lieutenant-Governor, all the mayors on the island, cabinet members, and senators are among those slated to patronize this evening of theatre. Following the performance there will be a reception, possibly at Montgomery Hall.

Mr. Dixon said the festival was most appreciative of the cooperation of the city.

New O'Leary Constable Is Appointed

O'LEARY — Hugh MacGregor, O'Leary, has been sworn in as police constable in the village of O'Leary yesterday by Judge W.E. Dwyer of the Prince County Court. Mr. MacGregor was named to the post at a recent meeting of the village committee.

He succeeds Gen Rodgerston, who recently resigned.

Mr. MacGregor is 52 years old, a veteran of the Second World War and had served with the Prince Edward Island Highlanders for three years. He was employed for 18 years with the O'Leary Farmers Co-operative.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo MacGregor, he is married to the former Genevieve Adams of Kensington. The couple have six children: Lewis MacGregor, Albert of Moncton, and Gary, Carol, Lillian and Brenda, living at home in O'Leary.

Prospective Students Urged To Enroll Early For SD High

Rev. Francis Cameron, principal of St. Dunstan's High School, last night urged that as many students as possible who are entering high school for the year 1963-64 make application at his office for school admission.

The high school principal said, "The reason for the early application is so we will know well in advance the size of the classes we will have for the coming year."

Father Cameron pointed out that it was not essential that only those students apply for admission today, "but they should contact me by letter as soon as possible."

At the same time Father Cameron stated there would be no changes in high school fees this year. They remain at $75 for tuition, $10 for library fees, and $10 for Students' Council fees, a total of $95 for the year.

He also pointed out that financial assistance is available to students of Irish descent through the Connolly Club, and to students of French descent through the St. Andrew's Society, and to boys and girls of French descent through the St. Thomas Aquinas Society.

Grants available through the Connolly Club range from $50 for non-resident students to $125 for resident students attending a high school or university.

Under the St. Andrew's Society, high school students apply for a $100 grant, university students for $125.

The St. Thomas Aquinas Society offers loans up to $100.

It is necessary that students complete grade 10 before making application for these bursaries and loans, Father Cameron said.

Suspended Sentences Given Three Prince County Youths

SUMMERSIDE — A 16-year-old Summerside youth, Joseph Louis Chaisson, was given a suspended sentence for a charge of illegal possession of a transistor radio.

Chaisson, who lives at 131 Water Street East with his parents, said he had left school while in grade seven but was given a chance to renew his education by Magistrate Chester S. MacDonnell yesterday.

He was given a one-year suspended sentence following the charge of illegal possession of a transistor radio.

Chaisson, who lives at 131 Water Street East with his parents, said he had left school while in grade seven but was given a chance to renew his education by Magistrate Chester S. MacDonnell yesterday.

He was not properly clothed, but he did want the chance to go out to school and was charged with illegal possession of a transistor radio reported to have been stolen from a home near Tignish.

The youth was released under the following conditions: He must be at home every night no later than 11 p.m. unless accompanied by a parent or with a written permit from the court.

He must stay away from liquor. He must not be in possession of a gun. He must stay away with his fall and leave only with the permission of the court. In addition a $500 recognizance bond must be given to the court.

The other persons involved, Robert Peter Gallant, Summerside, and Ronald Desroches, Charlottetown, pleaded guilty to the same possession charge.

Gallant was given a one-year suspended sentence and told if he did not stay out of trouble and away from liquor he would send him straight in jail.

Desroches, with a previous conviction for the same offence, was deferred to Oct. 10. He was told to stay out of trouble, away from liquor and in possession of a gun with the police at all times. He was ordered to enter into a recognizance of $1,000 and two bursaries of $500 each.

Gedric Fredrick Baderon of Miramichi, N.B., was given a preliminary hearing on a charge of assault and rape. He was referred to the police when he was 9 years old when the case will be heard.

Sheldon Ralph Laird elected to be tried by a judge on a charge of unlawful possession of a number of articles in excess of a value of $25. He is recommended in custody to July 9.

DEDICATION OF ST. PAUL'S CARRIED OUT

Most Rev. Malcolm MacEachern is seen blessing St. Paul's Church in Summerside during the consecration ceremony which lasted about three hours.

After Sunday afternoon witnessed by a large congregation. The consecration ceremony which lasted about three hours, commenced with an exterior tour of the church during which His Excellency is seen.

Swim Festival Relocates In QCHS, To Open July 13

APRON TYPE STAGE
In explaining the stage setup for the festival, Mr. Dixon said that an "apron" type of stage extending into the audience area will be erected. It will mean the audience will be seated around the stage, he said. One basic set will be used for all three plays.

The box office for the 1963 Charlottetown Snow Festival opens Monday at 11 a.m. at the Card Shop on Stratford Street.

Swim Classes Again Slated

KENSINGTON — The Red Cross swimming classes for the Kensington area are scheduled to begin Thursday at 10.

The classes are sponsored by the Kensington Lions Club, and have been held every summer since 1956 with increasing interest every year. Last year over 100 children were registered.

Bursary will again be supplied by the Lions, going from the town hall to Margaret Shore where the classes are to be held.

Certificates will be presented following the completion of a course of treats will be given to the young ones.

S'ide Carnival Group Reports

SUMMERSIDE — The lobster carnival committee met at Civic Stadium last evening to discuss and finalize the various aspects of this year's celebration. President Ben Champion was in the chair and reports were heard from Lowell Hancock, chairman of the parade committee; and Dick Vesie, a member of the same committee.

Charles Hogan said that work is being completed around the grounds, preparing them for the coming exhibition.

Under the St. Andrew's Society, high school students apply for a $100 grant, university students for $125.

The St. Thomas Aquinas Society offers loans up to $100.

It is necessary that students complete grade 10 before making application for these bursaries and loans, Father Cameron said.
