WANTED: FEMALE MONKEY TO RESTORE WINDSOR PEACE

Chico is undoubtedly a one-man monkey as numerous wounded Windsorites will testify. The three-year-old pet has become so attached to his master, George Hardy of Windsor, Ont., that the monkey rises the chesfield and chairs to pieces if Hardy leaves the apartment. Once the monkey even set fire to the apartment, then bit one of the firemen. Consequently, his owner has become "almost a hermit." Chico recently went on the rampage when his desperate owner inserted an ad in the local paper. "Wanted - Female monkey to make male monkey happy. Price no object. Perhaps in protest, Chico bit an unsuspecting police officer on special duty at the newspaper office, followed through with a telling left hook. Imprisoned by the Humane Society, the smart animal picked the lock, released several other caged animals before escaping through the window. Unable to find his real owner, Chico then made his home with Alex. Matis and family. After biting six of the seven Matis brothers and wrecking the house, Chico wended his way back to his original owner. Meanwhile, the bewildered Hardy, seen above, is looking in real earnest for a suitable companion to cope with his menacing monkey.
