Kidnapping Charge Laid

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Poker-faced and silent, Angelo John Lamarca was formally accused Wednesday of kidnapping and bringing death to tiny Peter Weinberger.

A 23 - member Nassau county grand jury indicted Lamarca after a session of only two hours.

His lawyer, David Markowitz, asked for a delay of arraignment to study the indictment. The prosecution didn't object. County Judge Cyril J. Brown then set Sept. 5 to hear the defence plea.

Markowitz has indicated the plea will be "temporary insanity." He says Lamarca's deed was brought on by "his desperation over debts."

Lamarca is accused of snatching the month-old infant from a crib in the yard of the Weinbergers' Westbury, Long Island, home July 4, then abandoning it the next day in brush near a busy parkway when he became frightened while trying to collect $2,000.

How long the baby may have lain there alive is not known. The remains were found 51 days later amid vines and fallen leaves.

Tender Awarded For Icebreaker

OTTAWA (CP)—The tender for construction of a 223 - foot icebreaker for use in the Maritimes and the north has been awarded to Davie Shipbuilding and Repairing Company of Louzan, Que., Transport Minister Marler announced Wednesday.

The 900-ton vessel, whose proposed construction had been announced previously, is to cost about $3,000,000. It will serve also as a supply and buoy-handling ship.

A transport department statement said it will be used in the Newfoundland area, the Gulf and River St. Lawrence and in northern waters. It is due for delivery in November, 1957.

The ship will have diesel-electric propulsion and will be equipped with a helicopter flight deck. It will have an operating radius of about 10,000 miles and a speed of 13½ knots. It will have accommodations for 51 persons.

QUIZ

You are the dealer, both sides vulnerable, and have opened with One Heart. Partner has responded with One Notrump. What do you now bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠A82 ♥AJ953 ♦KQ5 ♣KJ
2. ♠4 ♥AKJ9653 ♦KQ8 ♣K6
3. ♠KJ7 ♥AKJ32 ♦AKJ ♣84
4. ♠K7 ♥AK6432 ♦8 ♣AK85

1. Two notrump. This indicates to partner a notrump type of hand with a range of 17 to 19 points. The responder has represented 6 to 9 points by his one notrump bid. It would therefore be improper to invite partner to bid a game (which requires 26 points) with less than 17 points, since no lesser figure can bring the partnership holding to the desired 26.

It would be equally incorrect to bid only two notrump holding 20 or more points, since the responder's minimum of 6 points already brings the partnership total to at least 26 points.

The two notrump bid requests partner to pass with a minimum response or bid three notrump with a maximum response.

2. Four hearts. Once partner has been heard from, a game contract must be undertaken. It is not sufficient to bid three hearts, which, though strongly invitational, is not forcing to game. When a game is in sight, the opener is under obligation to leave no loophole for the responder to pass under game. The violation of this principle leads all too often to the sorrowful: "I didn't think you would pass."

In a type of hand as strong distributionally as this one is, it is frequently better to switch from the point count or honor count basis of evaluation to the losing trick count. It is the height of pessimism to expect to lose four tricks after partner's response. Game must be bid without shilly-shallying.

3. Three notrump. For the reasons previously given, a three heart bid is frowned upon. 26 points have been accounted for and a game contract is imperative. The natural concern about the weakness in clubs should not inhibit a game bid. The responder figures to have either club strength or length.

An alternate bid of three diamonds (forcing) is acceptable, the only objection being that partner may carry on to five diamonds.

4. Three clubs. A game force rebid is essential. In spite of the strong preference for hearts over clubs, partner should be informed of the possibility of playing clubs. It may be that the only good game contract is clubs. Moreover, if partner happens to have five clubs and an ace, a slam is not out of the question.

If partner responds with either three notrump or four clubs, a four heart bid will identify the preference for hearts.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

BEDTIME STORIES

The Patient Ones

By Thornton W. Burgess

Patience, you will likely find, . . .
Is for most a test of mind.

—Old Mother Nature.

Young Reddy Fox had thought he could catch any Mouse that would give him half a chance. Now a mouse had given him better than half a chance and still it hadn't been caught. It was a Mouse he never had seen before. At first he didn't notice that this Mouse was very different from the Mice he was used to hunting, the Mice called Meadow Mouse. To the young Fox this was just a Mouse. He didn't know there was such a person as Nimbleheels the Jumping Mouse. All the Mice he had ever seen before depended on running and hiding to escape. This one didn't run at all. No, Sir, he didn't run at all. He jumped. He made the longest jumps the young Fox had ever seen anybody make. He jumped straight ahead and from side to side. There was no knowing which way he would jump next.

At long last Young Reddy had a chance to have a good look at the little jumper. He was sitting up Happy Jack Squirrel fashion. It was then that the young Fox saw how long were the hind legs of the little jumper and how short were the front legs. Straight out behind him was a long, slim, smooth tail. It didn't seem possible that such a small fellow could have such a long tail.

"I wonder what he does with it. I should think it would be in his way when he jumps," thought Young Reddy.

Now the little Mouse was Nimbleheels the Jumping Mouse. And instead of being in his way, the long tail was what made it possible for him to make those long jumps. It kept him balanced in the air. It kept him from turning somersaults. Without it he would never have known how or where he was going to land when he made a long jump. It was his long hind legs that sent him into the air when he jumped, and it was his long tail that kept him sailing straight through the air.

It didn't take Young Reddy long to learn that he couldn't catch that Mouse by chasing him. If he were to catch him at all, it would have to be by stealing near enough to jump on him before he became frightened or suspicious. So the Young Fox watched carefully to see just where Nimbleheels dropped down into the grass. Then Young Reddy kept perfectly still with his eyes fixed on that spot. He was sure that sooner or later the Mouse would have moved and then he would know exactly where the Mouse was. He waited and waited and waited. The grass did not move. He was sure that that Mouse was somewhere in the grass close to the spot where he had landed. But the grass didn't move, and he couldn't be sure exactly where Nimbleheels was.

Now Nimbleheels was doing the same thing that the Young Fox was doing. He was keeping perfectly still. "That fellow doesn't know just where I am. If I keep still long enough, he'll go off," thought Nimbleheels. So began a game of patience.

Young Reddy waited and waited and waited. Nimbleheels waited and waited and waited. Which one would be patient longest? It was Nimbleheels. Yes, sir, it was Nimbleheels. He didn't move so much as a hair until after Young Reddy, with a sigh of disappointment, gave up and went away.

To Be Tried For Husband's Murder

TORONTO(CP)— Lenore Bicknell, 24, a pretty copper - haired model, Wednesday was committed to trial for murder in the death of her husband, Bruce, 22, 19 months ago. A coroner's jury previously had ruled his shooting death in their home accidental.

The young expectant mother, wearing a maternity smock, was pale and composed as Magistrate Fred C. Gullen ended her preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Artie Bicknell, mother of the slain man and in whose home the couple lived, testified the couple often quarreled violently and once Lenore tosed a rifle at her husband, breaking its stock.

A coroner's jury last year absolved the young widow when she said a rifle accidentally discharged while her husband was showing her how to handle it.

Last month the model walked into a police station and signed a statement, repeated by police Wednesday, saying she had intentionally shot and killed her husband. Three hours later she repudiated it.

Remanded for psychiatric treatment, she was found mentally fit to stand trial.
