SDU Club's Honorary Title Goes To Member From Prince

David MacDonald has accepted the honorary presidency of the Saint Dunstan's University Progressive Conservative Club, it was announced last night. Mr. MacDonald, a freshman Member of Parliament for Prince, enjoys a great popularity with the Progressive Conservative Student Federation of which the SDU club is a member.

In a letter to the university club Mr. MacDonald said: "I certainly will be most honored to accept the appointment... and if I can provide any particular assistance from time to time, I hope you shall feel free to call upon me."

In announcing Mr. MacDonald's acceptance of the honorary presidency, the club executive issued the following statement: "It is fitting that our youngest Island Member of Parliament should be honored by Island youth. Mr. MacDonald has displayed to the whole of Canada those ideals that are truly representative of the new generation of Canadians."

The honorary presidency is bestowed annually by the SDU Conservatives to honor a Canadian whom it feels is deserving of recognition. Last year's honorary president was the Hon. E. Davis Fulton, Member of Parliament for Kamloops, and former justice minister of Canada.

DISCUSSION GROUPS FORMED

High School Red Cross Holds Annual Conference

Seventy Red Cross Youth members, along with teachers-sponsors from the province's high schools throughout the island attended the annual high school Red Cross Conference held at the Basilica Recreation Centre in Charlottetown Saturday.

Senior Red Cross by Iphigenis Arsensault, provincial commissioner, the conference heard from representatives of several high school Red Cross councils of the successful projects undertaken so far this year. Central Queens at Hunter River and Kinston held the "spot-light" with the Fair held by the former on October 28th, and the "Get Acquainted Week" held recently by the latter.

Michael Daley of Miscouche gave a run-down of the activities in which he participated at a high school Red Cross Training Centre which he and Mary Power attended in Hightstown, New Jersey, during the past summer.

Colored slides taken at the Atlantic Provinces high school Red Cross leadership training centre which took place at Montgomery Hall in Charlottetown in July were shown by Mrs. W.W. Reid. Dr. K.A. Parker, chairman of the Red Cross Youth Advisory Committee for P.E.I., set the tone for the day when he gave a talk to the group on the attitudes and sense of values required by young people to fit them for present and future roles as citizens and leaders.

Discussion groups were formed to complete the morning's program with the results revealing that the delegates had an "amazing grasp of the subjects discussed which included... why it is important to be involved in a youth program of this type... along with how to have fun while planning and carrying out a worthwhile project; the different types of services which can be given by young people in a community and how to carry them out; how high school students can help promote interest and secure more donors for blood clinics when they are held in the various areas.

After lunch the conference heard reports given by Nancy George of Charlottetown on the Centennial International Development Program Seminar which she recently attended as a Red Cross Youth delegate in Samac, Ontario, and from Gerard Doucette of Tignish who was one of Canada's two delegates to an International Red Cross Youth Training Centre in Poland during the past summer. Gerard also showed slides which he had taken at this centre and in the different European countries he visited.

A briefing session on Rendezvous '67 - the Canadian Red Cross Society's centennial project - to be held in the form of an international seminar at Carleton College in Ottawa next summer, was given by Mrs. W.W. Reid. This Seminar will be attended by representatives of Red Cross Youth from over 50 countries of the world, along with adult personnel, and some 300 Canadian delegates and is a mammoth undertaking geared to promote international understanding. During the "Buzz Session" which followed this briefing, suggestions were brought forth by the young people on how they can involve and interest the members of their high school Red Cross in "Rendezvous '67" and international understanding.

Funds to finance the cost of administration for Red Cross are derived partly from the P.E.I. United Appeal and partly from the Canadian Red Cross Society which shares its funds on the basis of needs across Canada.

Red Square Parade Points Up Cooling Chinese Relations

By FRED COLEMAN
MOSCOW (AP) - The Soviet Union put on a restrained celebration of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution Monday with no new rockets in the traditional military parade and none of the usually harsh attacks on U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

But there was a walkout by Chinese Communist diplomats from a Red Square rally, underscoring worsening relations with Peking. In Peking itself, the anniversary of the Communist takeover in Russia got cool treatment while North Viet Nam and North Korea issued warm praises of it.

U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler skipped the Red Square rally to avoid having to walk out himself when American policy came under fire, but he attended a Kremlin reception for 1,000 persons Monday night when neither China nor the United States was assailed.

The last quarter of 1965 found 38,349 immigrants arriving, but the October-December figure this year is expected to be higher, a spokesman said.

The third quarter figure this year was 38,538. British arrivals in the first nine months numbered 48,305, far ahead of last year's 31,628. Italian arrivals jumped to 25,501 from 21,293 and the number of Americans rose to 12,599 from 10,585.
