IT ISN'T EASY
 There's no use fooling about this job. It offers fine opportunities for rapid advancement and a satisfying and successful career. But making money to be earned. They won't come automatically.
 They are people who can be realized only if you are young, enthusiastic, keenly interested in sports and have a definite aptitude for writing about them.
 It will be a waste of time to inquire about this job unless you are confident you have what it takes to begin as a junior sports reporter and mature quickly into a sports editor and columnist—minus any of the positive fluff for this sort of work, plus a minimum of Grade II standing.
 But if you feel you are enough to seek the kind of career that can be achieved through this job, answer an interview by telephoning Wallace Ward, managing editor, Guardian-Evening Patriot, Phone 4-8200.

OBITUARY

MRS. ALICE MACDOUGALL LING
 One of Wallaston's oldest and most respected citizens passed away recently at the Free Nursing Home, aged 92. Mrs. Ling, formerly of Newton, lived the greater part of her life in Beaton where her friendly and kindly nature won her a large circle of friends.
 She was truly a gentlewoman of the old school, gracious and generous. Her high ideals and loyal dedication to the Christian way of life were a goodly influence on all who knew her.
 Mrs. Ling was an active member and staunch supporter of Park Street Church where her late husband was choir singer. Funeral services were conducted at Belgrave Church by Rev. Donald Nicholson. Her favorite hymns were sung in the presence of Mrs. Ling and her brother Simon. Mrs. Ling was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald MacDougall, Newton, P.E.I. She was preceded in death by her husband Edward Ling. Also her sons, Arthur and Annie and brother Simon. Pallbearers were K.M. Martin, Stewart Jones, Angus MacQuarrie, Mrs. Smith, Martin and Joseph Griffin. Flower bearers were Dr. Reg Smith, Preston Sanderson, Joan Ross, Gordon MacDougall. She was laid to rest in the family plot, Belfast, beside her husband.
