If there is a history of weak lungs in your family, take Scott's Emulsion.

It nourishes and invigorates.

It enables you to resist the disease. Even if your lungs are already affected, and if besides the cough you have fever and emaciation, there is still a strong probability of a cure.

The oil in the Emulsion feeds; the hypophosphites give power to the nerves; and the glycerine soothes and heals.

The Transvaal War

British Nobles at the Cape.

It is a historic fact that the first winter of the Crimean war was about the gayest the London season has ever known. People congregated here as the centre of news from the front, and beguiled time, perhaps lessened anxiety, by the festivities, So this autumn and winter promises a repetition of the Crimean period in London. The city is becoming crowded by society, which naturally, is deeply concerned in the issues of the war. There scarcely is a great family in England, from the royal family downward, which has not some near relative involved. The Tenth Hussars include among their officers a son of the Duke of Buccleugh, Lord George Scott; his son-in-law, Captain Thomas Bland; a half-brother of the Duke of Portland, Lord William Bentinck, is going, as well as the Duchess' brother. Mr. Dallas Yorke and Lord Derby of Ribblesdale are among those who have sons in the regiment, while Lord Revelstoke has a brother in the First Battalion of Scots Guards, which is commanded by Colonel Arthur Paget A son of Lord Salisbury is with Col. Baden-Powell at Mafeking.

Britain's Dismissal.

By the end of November Sir Redvers Buller will have under command nearly 70,000 regular troops, besides the thousands of volunteers. The regular army is the largest British army that has been put into the fields since the Crimea. Another evidence that Britain is in earnest is found in the number and quality of the officers she is sending out. They comprise, with a few exceptions, the best on the army list. Men who are fresh from successes against the hill tribe in India and the dervishes in the Soudan are to be side by side in the operations against the Boers. Sir Redvers Buller himself is one of those grim, fearless fighters who knows all that war means, and never lets an opportunity to strike pass by. In disposition he is compared with Lord Kitchener. Whether or not he is as consumate a general as Lord Kitchener remains to be proved, but he possesses the full confidence of all who know him. He has perhaps more deeds of personal prowess to his credit than any other British general. A remarkable thing, too, is the number of members of titled families among the officers. Britian is not sparing of her favored sons. If we turn from the personnel of the force to questions of equipment and transportation, we find still further evidence of Britain's determination to make this war an evidence of her power. No other nation in the world could despatch within six days 50,000 troops fully equiped for war on an ocean journey of considerably over 6,000 miles. Yet this is what Britain will do, and that without great apparent effort. The Continental powers have acknowleged Britain's naval supremacy, but they have been more than sceptical with regard to her ability for carrying on extensive operations on land. The despatch of 50,000 troops within six days will be an object lesson that cannot fail to inspire that kind of respect which will make them still more careful in future about provoking unnecessary wars. And the fact that the British War Office, rather antiquated as it was supposed to be, can work as smoothly and with such celerity, will come as a significant surprise.—Mail and Empire.

War Office Work.

The British War Office so far comes in for nothing but praise for the details of mobilization. The reserves have responded quickly for duty, and the regiments have been brought up to the full field muster without delay. Arrangements for the disribution of allotments of pay among soldiers' families have been made, messing allowances have been settled, and a hundred small details ordered to the satisfaction of the men. A brigade of Guards will start next Saturday, and an entire army corps will be rapidly transferred to South Africa without confusion. The good work done by the War Office in despatching a larger British army than was employed in the Crimea is largely due to general Buller, a brusque and businesslike infantry soldier, who knows every detail of the trade of war and military organization. His principal rival for the chief command, Sir Evelyn Wood, is a dashing cavalry officer, but is incapacitated by deafness for work on the field. While South Africa has been the grave of many reputations, military and political, Buller's friends expect him to return like another conquering Kitchener.

Prayer in Time of War.

The following is the prayer used by the Church of England in times of war and tumults: O Almighty God, King of all kings, and Governor of all things, Whose power no creature is able to resist, to Whom it belongeth justily to punish sinners, and to be merciful to them that truly repent, save and deliver us, we humbly beseech Thee, from the hands of our enemies; abate their pride, assuage their malice and confound their devices; that we, being armed with Thy defence, may be preserved evermore from all perils, to glorify Thee, Who art the only giver of all victory: through the merits of Thy only Son, Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Eczema on the Scalp

Some of the cures effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment are more like miracles than anything else. The case recorded here was one of the worst ever brought to the attention of Toronto's best physicians, and when doctors gave up all hope of recovery Dr. Chase's Ointment was successful in producing a perfect cure.

Mr. James Scott, 136 Wright Ave., Toronto, states: "My boy Tom, aged ten, was for nearly three years afflicted with a bad form of Eczema of the scalp, which was very unsightly and resisted all kinds of remedies and doctor's treatment. His head was in a terrible state. We had to keep him from school, and at times his head would bleed, and the child would scream with agony. For two and a half years we battled with it in vain, but at last found a cure in Dr. Chase's Ointment. About five boxes were used. The original sores dried up, leaving the skin in its normal condition. To say it is a pleasure to testify to the wonderful merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment is putting it very mildly."

AMBITIOUS CITY AGAIN.

Mr. Harry Bawden, of Hamilton, On t Cured o f Lumbago b/ Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Hamilton, Oct. 16.—Mr. Harry Bawden of this city corroborates the report printed recently relating to his cure of Lumbago by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For six years," he says, "I suffered with Lumbago and Kidney Disease. I tried everything under the sun, but absolutely nothing I ever took gave me the slightest relief. A friend advised me about one year ago to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I finally decided to do so, and purchased one box and found relief. I used in all five boxes and am completely cured.

The case has created quite a stir and there are found, too many warm, endorsers of Dodd's Kidney Pills in this city. Little faith is put in the many imitations on the market, the verdict being that the original is the best.
