MR. AND MRS. B. E. A. WILLOUGHBY AND PARTY

Wed At The Basilica Will Reside In Germany

St. Dunstan's Basilica, Charlottetown, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, September 15th, 1956 at 9:00 a.m. when Vera Lillian, daughter of Mrs. Michael Hynes and the late Michael Hynes, Charlottetown, and Brian Earl Austine Willoughby, son of Mr. Frank Willoughby of Halifax, and the late Mrs. Willoughby, were united in the Holy Bonds of Matrimony. Rev. Walter Reid performed the double ring ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

During the Mass and signing of the Register, appropriate hymns were beautifully rendered by Miss Elaine Macdonald, accompanied by Mrs. Joseph Duggan at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Fulton, wore a floor length gown of white nylon net over satin with a scalloped overskirt of Chantilly lace. Her fitted jacket was trimmed with seed pearls, and her fingertip length veil of tulle floated softly from a pearl trimmed Coronet tiara.

The groom was attended by his brother, Hudson. The guests were ushered by Mr. Frank Gallant and Mr. Alfred Coady.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the Queen Hotel where a delicious breakfast was served to relatives and friends. The bridal table was attractively decorated and centered with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. The cake was cut in the traditional manner by the bridal couple. The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. Walter Reid and responded to by the groom.

Following the reception the bride and groom left on a motor trip through the Maritimes. For travelling the bride wore a yellow tweed fitted suit with gold and brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

ELLEN'S DIARY

We Sow And Reap Again

"And I never complained one bit" Mack said to his grandfather getting down tonight from the little truck which had brought home the two from what these farmwives term "a late session" at the field work.

"No" we overheard James say, a smile of commendation in his voice "you didn't! Complainers are no good anyway" he offered man to man, "they only clutter up the earth."

"I didn't complain about having to stay so late there. As a matter of fact" the lad continued "I was sorry when the gear stopped. Wasn't there a fine heap of hales! But there may be a long winter ahead-you never can tell. We just may need every last one of them."

We heard James chuckle before the pair separated there in the yard, the other to his steps beneath the birch-leaved path which leads to the house across the lane. The lights of the tractor bringing home the younger farmer was at the moment cutting a bright swath in the dark of the lane.

Taking advantage of today's dry wind and sunshine and hurried by signs of impending showers, the farmers today worked against time clearing off more than an gathering of stooks from the fields, threshing and at the same time baling the leaving of straw to have grain tucked away and everything snug for the night in the event of rain. There is silver of drops on the window now but though the skies are dim and starless, a wind of October could lift the damp quickly and by morning return them again to their threshing. "It's the last field now, Ellen" James said. "Remember! There where we sowed together. It's going to give us a nice return."

"That's on account of the good wish we gave it" we smiled, remembering the delight of that June evening and the gentle loveliness of the seedtime-the hay-seeds slipping through one's fingers slikenly like so many sands of the shore, the level measures of grain, and James with the one horse in the ancient seeder, so faithful and content at the sowing.

"There's a good return everywhere this harvest" he commented. "Much better than last year's, and the seed is so clean and well-saved. The stock should do well on it."

At Alderlea this is a static time as regards the livestock-calves, no piglets arriving of late. "You must be patient" a buxom matron of those in retirement on the paddock twinkled between the staves of the picket-fence there this evening. "Hand us in a few of those mangels they brought from the field this morning, put a nice helping of meal in our trough indoors and you'll be well pleased with the story James will take to you some morning, Yes, Mac."

Remember Rome wasn't built in one day," she smiled brightly. A short day this was-a breezy sunshine-spread October day.

Until tomorrow ——— Diary Goodnight.

MARY HAWORTH

Trip Abroad Causes Girl To Lose Admirers

Dear Mary Haworth: Mine is the usual story of a girl with no love. I read in your column daily of a girl like myself who can't seem to get a man and keep him interested. What to do?

I am 24, moderately attractive, and have had the very best education. I have spent 14 years in schools abroad, and was never at a loss with European men. I have now been home for six months, and have had eight blind dates. Each was polite, but never called again.

My friends tell me that I have developed too many "foreign" characteristics. They say I am too attentive, and don't let a man assert his masculinity—as in opening doors, arising when I enter, etc. In Europe I was taught to cushion a man's way, to make him feel that he is loved; but here it just doesn't seem to work. The men don't appreciate concern for them.

Any advice you can give me will be taken to heart and practiced. I only hope you can help. Gratefully, G.C. MORE TO LIFE

Dear G.C.: You say you read daily, in this department, of girls who can't seem to get a man and keep him interested; but as a matter of fact, you don't. The overall procession of human difficulties and frustrations, as mirrored here in the course of a year, takes in a great deal more territory than anxious wallflower hunger for success with men.

Anyway, if it were true that we'd long been treating this subject daily, without benefit to you who have the problem, I wonder that you'd want us to repeat ourselves!

However, to get down to cases, your problem can't be bracketed with anyone else's. Each individual, and his (or her) constellation of personal circumstances, differs more or less from every other. So your situation, and your present unsatisfactory exchange with men, should be regarded as unique. It is unlikely that genuine solutions can be found by trying to adopt a formula, or rule-of-thumb, for bewitching beaux.

Actually, the remedy consists in

HOUSEHOLD HINT

Remember when you buy clothes that a well-made garment may keep its good appearance and shape after long wear and many cleanings, but a garment poorly made may lose its shape in one cleaning. Examine a garment's workmanship carefully before you buy.

"Pancake Festival Week"

BRAZILIAN BANANA PANCAKE
It's been said "there's an awful lot of coffee in Brazil" and here it shows up in a mocha sauce over light, fluffy pancakes with spears of banana peeking from the edges. Your favourite pancake mix makes them so quick and easy to prepare. Imagine the rare combination of pancakes, bananas, chocolate and coffee. Truly a delightful dessert to be served with a demitasse. Here's a flapjack really gone Latin!

Makes 6 servings
Pancakes
2 cups pancake mix
1 egg
2 1/2 cups milk
2 tablespoons melted shortening

Mocha Sauce:
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons corn starch
1 tablespoon cocoa
1 1/2 cups coffee (strong)
2 tablespoons butter

Filling:
5 bananas
Add milk, egg and shortening to pancake mix, stirring lightly. (Somewhat lumpy batter makes light fluffy pancakes.) Pour 1/4 cup batter for each pancake onto hot, lightly greased griddle. Bake to a golden brown, turning only once. Fold pancakes in half.

Place three banana spears (made by cutting bananas into fourths lengthwise, then cutting each in half) in each folded pancake so that tips of bananas stick out. Pour mocha sauce over top.

Mocha Sauce: Combine sugar, corn starch and cocoa in saucepan. Add coffee, bring to a boil. Simmer about 10 minutes. Stir in butter. Serve hot.

coming really awake to your new surroundings and new associates and responding intelligently and with clear awareness of that person, in the particular encounter of the moment.

This means venturing new friendships with your eyes open, in the spirit of facing uncharted adventure, instead of trying to act an already "learned" part in relation to every man—as if he were a stock character in a play, and you another stock character, with your lines and behavior already assigned: Cut and dried.

It calls for outgrowing (reasonably) the mold of stylized "feminine" behavior practised in Europe—which seems to concede that the male sex is, per se, more precious, adorable and indispensable than the female sex. In this country, the sexes, youth at least seem to concede the ladies an even break, in their mutual dealings—as if each sex value its own and the other sex equally. Which is as it should be, surely.

WELL-BRED MAN
You write from a city where social tradition dominates, and where men in your walk of life tend to be conservative. They want their women—the woman who is identified with them—to fit into the picture "as to the manner born." And as the average well-brought-up American man is conditioned to the exercise of mutual consideration, rather than hot house pampering by girl friends, it behooves you to recover your balance as a person, and stop burning incense, indiscriminately to the male ego.

For guidance in getting your bearings, read "Love and Marriage" (Harpers) by Dr. Alexander Magoun, a book that illuminates paths to personal fulfillment, M.H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview, write to her in care of this newspaper.

THE EXPERTS SAY

Nutritional Illiteracy Blamed For Teenage Diet

TORONTO (CP) — Many Canadian students use food as "a vehicle for ketchup," says Dr. E. W. McHenry, professor of nutrition at the University of Toronto.

Commenting on a survey by the Toronto Nutrition Committee which disclosed faulty diets among grade 8 pupils of city schools, Dr. McHenry said that lack of nutrition education, not lack of money, is to blame.

The survey of 4,424 teenagers showed that half were not getting the required 1 1/2 pints of milk daily, one third were not getting citrus fruits containing Vitamin C and 43 per cent were not getting a daily serving of green or yellow vegetables or tomatoes.

Dr. McHenry, nutrition consultant to the Ontario health department, said that the results were similar to those of surveys carried out in schools throughout the country. Basic eating habits have not changed in the 15 years he has been studying them.

"Children are getting enough to eat, but not of the right foods," Dr. McHenry said in an interview.

He said a large number of children treated for scurvy, due to lack of Vitamin C, in Toronto last year.

The survey also showed that 71 per cent of the children were not getting Vitamin D, essential along with calcium until bone formation is complete at 18.

Said Dr. McHenry: "Every mother can buy Vitamin D tablets at a drug store at a cost of 1 1/2 cents a day for each child."

The problem of trying to introduce better eating habits is being met by nutrition lessons in schools. An expert nutritionist is touring public schools in Toronto and grade 8 teachers have recently attended a nutrition course.

Dr. McHenry would like to make it compulsory for girls to take home economics at school.

KENSINGTON U.C.W.M.S.

The regular meeting of the Kensington United Church Auxiliary of the W.M.S. met on Thursday evening, October 4, with the president, Mrs. Alexander MacKay, presiding.

The president led the Bible Study, "A Dwelling Place of God" with Mrs. L. M. Murray reading portions of Scripture from Ephesians. The mission study on Korea was led by Mrs. Robert Carruthers, Mrs. Roscoe Walker and Miss Jessie Murphy.

The magnificent spirit of the Koreans in the face of tragedy and disaster makes Korea one of the most challenging places in the world for us today. The programme committee for November will be Mrs. Joseph Davison, Mrs. Thomas Wigmore and Mrs. F. L. Orr.

It is expected that a Thank offering service will be held on the evening of November 11 with Dr. Catherine Whittier as guest speaker. Mrs. Russel MacKay and Mrs. F. J. Kennedy were appointed to form plans for the service. It was decided that each member would pay 25 cents towards procuring the Book Shelf. A box of clothes for Overseas Relief will be packed on October 16.

There were twenty-one members and two visitors present. Mrs. George Duggan reported that 67 home calls, 9 hospital calls had been made, 27 treats, 22 cards, and 15 bouquets had been sent during the month.

A special part of the meeting was the presentation of a Life Membership Certificate by Mrs. W. G. Simpson to Mrs. Ella Smith. The meeting closed by singing Hymn 19, and repeating the Lord's Prayer in union.
