Two Celebrations Held At Prince Street School

In a double celebration yesterday afternoon the pupils and staff of Prince Street School marked the 10th anniversary of the school as an elementary institution, and the 100th anniversary of the first confederation conference. Miss Mabel Matheson, principal, presided.

In a short ceremony on the school grounds, Dr. R. G. Lea, chairman of the school board, and Mrs. G. Gordon Hughes, president of the Home and School Association, planted two birch trees to commemorate the decade of elementary status, and, later in the program centennial medallions were distributed to pupils.

Centennial writing awards were presented to Joyce Burnett and Marlene Bower by Dr. K. A. Parker, superintendent of city schools, in the program held in the all-purpose room of the school. Patsy Storey accepted, on behalf of all the pupils, the centennial medallion.

Karen Crosby read an essay on "Trees", and Bill Partridge recited a poem.

RETAIN TRADITIONS

Miss Matheson reminded the pupils that the school had a long and impressive record in its 93-year history and urged them to strive to retain the traditions and high scholastic standards established by graduates.

The school was founded January 9, 1883, as the Wesleyan Methodist Academy. The present building was opened in January, 1962.

A drilling machine is boring holes at close intervals along the stretch and dynamite is being used to force the soft mud laterally out of the roadbed.

Mr. Matheson said that some improvement in the wavy condition of the pavement has already taken place. Sandstone will be dumped on the sections and the quarter-mile stretch repaved.

"The job may take two or three weeks more," he said, "and we don't anticipate that traffic will be disrupted. We can pave one side of the highway at a time."

Transportation Analyzed In Discussion Of Economy

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

A panel discussion on rail, highway and ferry transportation highlighted last night's Board of Trade dinner meeting at the Tartan Restaurant here.

The panel included Frank Davison, chairman of the board's transportation committee; Don MacKenzie, O'Leary; Harold Redd, Summerside and Graham Rogers, provincial transportation director. Board president Earl Cannon acted as chairman of the meeting, the final one until this fall.

The panelists discussed all phases of transportation and Mr. Davison told the meeting that an all-weather road from Albany to Miscouche is the aim for 1964 and from Miscouche to Tignish in 1965.

All panelists agreed that this all weather highway is a must and Mr. Rogers said that the basis of economy for the province is a system of all weather roads. "An all-weather highway is becoming more and more essential if we are to exist," he said.

FROBLEM IS STRAIT

It was pointed out that one of the major problems was transportation across the strait and the proposed causeway. Mr. Davison said that it has been suggested that rails be removed from the causeway plans. This would pose another problem and the only solution would be the piggyback system where two trailers would be taken by rail as far as Cape Tormentine and then unloaded and hauled by tractors to P.E.I.

He added however that with the additional heavy truck traffic "I feel certain that the all-weather highway to Charlottetown is inadequate for this type of transportation".

Mr. MacKenzie said the immediate problem in his area is the rail service. At the present time, he said, the West Prince area is getting superior freight service from the CNR but he wondered how long this would last. The transportation board set a trial period of one year from last April for one train a day to the area but he was skeptical of what will happen following this trial period.

WEST POINT FERRY

He felt the West Point ferry would be a boon to the Island, especially Prince County and expressed the opinion that the piggy back service would be "a great thing".

Mr. Rodd on the other hand, couldn't envision a piggy back service for the Island. And as an example took the approximately 8,000 bags shipped from the Island last year. This would mean approximately 16,000 trailer loads along with everything else coming to and leaving the Island, he said. He felt there had been little change in transportation in the last 100 years.

Mr. Rogers told the meeting he believed that P.E.I. is on the verge of its greatest period of expansion and said that it wasn't going to be very long before another ferry would be added to the Borden-Cape Tormentine run. "I understand", he said, "that tenders are going to be called very soon".

There were also reports heard on the following: Tourist bureau; industrial park and lobster carnival.

Earl Cannon gave a report on the recent Maritime Annual Board of Trade meeting and said the feature topic at the meeting was "transportation."

HARBOR DREDGING

John Wright, president of APEC, told the meeting of a proposed manufacturer's incentive show slated for Moncton October 6 and 7. At this show he said, Maritime businesses would set up booths displaying products they buy, not what they sell.

A question was raised concerning the dredging of Summerside harbor. The board had been told earlier that this federal project would be started in May but it was noted that nothing had been done yet. It was suggested that Solicitor-General J. Watson MacNaught be either contacted by phone or wire to remind him of this project.

Another matter brought up last night concerned motorists and town crosswalks. George Meikle said he had spoken to Town Police Chief S.D.A. Wannamaker concerning this matter and he had been told that it was illegal for a motorist to proceed across a crosswalk if pedestrians were on it. Town police plan to enforce this law, he said.
