

SCHOOL TUNIC RESISTS CHANGE

School tunics haven't changed much over the years despite the unpredictable fluctuations of women's fashions, as this young girl shows. The square neck, self belt, and three wide pleats are still in evidence. Only concession to a new look is in fabric, more often a crease-resistant, machine-washable material than the old all-wool heavy serge. Uniformity in classroom clothing alleviates schoolmate's jealousy about wardrobes, and is easy on the budget. Navy is still most popular color. (CP Photo).

MARY HAWORTH

Should Wronged Wife Quit Or Stick To Erring Spouse?

Dear Mary Haworth: I try never to miss your column and am almost always in accord with your very sound advice. However, I feel that I must disagree with your answer (June 29) to D.R., the wife who hates divorce but thinks it inevitable since her husband no longer loves her. In effect, you say that one who lives in this case, the wife—guides in love, and therefore has love. You also say that their love of an additional link of love between this man and

...suffering than knowing her husband is out courting other women whenever he likes. It interferes terribly with her being a good mother. Also it is degrading and can injure her mental health. Moreover, she can't swallow such humiliation without becoming the object of her husband's contempt and dislike, in time.

NO REAL MARRIAGE
The world is full of neurotic middle-aged women who have hung in vain, for the children's sake, or in the vague hope that the rascal would change eventually; or in fear of having to live alone and be self-supporting.

I have talked to many divorcees and, believe me, this is a man's world. Most divorcees have a struggle financially, as courts don't go overboard in allotting alimony, even for children's care. Yet despite all this, they agree freedom is worth it, when it is the only road to peace of mind. And the sooner the better, for making a new life.

Surely no woman, however angelic, can transform an abusive, drinking, adulterous man into a good devoted husband merely by showing love. I would have told her to make an effort to work at improving her housekeeping which she admits is bad; and to spend less time running off to her folks. But not to stay indefinitely in that situation, in one-sided loving.

For a wife there is no greater

ELLEN'S DIARY

Moon Takes Different Hue In This Satellite Age

World over we suspect the most talked of news today was that the Lunik 2 of the Soviet Union had been successful in making contact with another planet—the moon.

"When she lands, it won't upset the moon, at any rate" Mack offered with a smile when we talked of the flight in progress, in our Sunday quiet.

"No," James agreed. "But I'm afraid" he twinkled "if folks come to learn too much about the moon, it's going to take some of the glamour out of romance! It was nice to court in the moonlight. Now, when you get to the age that will take you off."

"Oh, shucks!" Mack grinned shyly. "Let's talk sense." "She just may be a moon-maiden," we smiled.

"She will! They all are born of some other planet—for a while" James chuckled.

Today's news said "a cloud of dust was observed rising after the Lunik's impact."

Moon dust it would be, we fancy. No earthly substance but tiny sparkling particles such as those the Lady Moon uses to span beautiful the tidal rivers, and dimple the brooklets that slip away in the shadows beneath rustic bridges. And once upon a time we are forgetting of late, bridged the millpond which for generations was cradled in the depths of our valley below.

So contact has been made with another planet. Scientists concerned will be pleased, indeed, overjoyed with the information they have been able to glean about the far place and the air-mies between.

"It means" a visitor at the door today inquiring as to the whereabouts of our farmers stopped to say soberly "no country, no people on earth are without the range of a man-made missile now."

True. And yet it may be, somewhere a little lad (or lass) is wending his way unconcerned to school along country lanes or city streets who one day and in good time inspired by "the touch of the Master's hand" will, as a brilliant scientist, develop something even more marvelous than these years have seen, to be a boon to mankind even to save this old earth and its peoples from that mass destruction folks everywhere, we doubt not, fear.

Along delightful and peaceful country ways Island farmers went today to the cares of their harvesting. In added jackets and overall, gashed against the unseasonal coolness obtaining.

Mack, not too happy about the turn of the weather brought in, in his cupped palm the damp "Eliker snowflakes or hailstones" fallen at the door from the dark cloud and coolness—and a bit of dampness—that was today.

And "another day gone" we say, and sigh remembering how sparkling now is September's store.

Until tomorrow—Diary—Good-night.

BRISTOL

The accidental death of Mr. John Sinnott, a Bristol young man, in Toronto last week, was a terrible shock to this vicinity. John has only left here a few few days before and was to visit in Ontario for one of his young friends from here before going on to the place they planned to work. His remains arrived here on Sunday afternoon and the funeral from the home of his parents on Monday morning to the Church of St. Laurence was very largely attended. Sincere sympathy is extended to his parents, brothers and sisters at this time.

Miss Norma Sinnott of the Toronto Dominion Bank in Alberta left last week on return to her duties in the gold-mining west after spending her vacation with her parents here. Norma served in Charlottetown with the Bank before being transferred to Alberta more than a year ago. She flew back to the west last week.

It is rumored here that the village of Morell will ask the government for a liquor vendors store to be opened in Morell village. This fast growing village must keep up with the times, and those who like beer or spirits at times for special occasions don't fancy sending to the city, and again such a store might kill out the shine business. This scribble votes for a vendors store in the village.

Mr. P.R. Sinnott of the Dominion Department of Transport, weather bureau has arrived here to vacation for a month with his parents, before going to the frozen northland for his next posting. P.R. is no stranger to isolated stations having spent several years in Mould Bay with a handful of fellow workers, six hundred miles from the north pole, with the mercury around eighty below most of the year. Mr. Sinnott says it is a place with no one to bother you, and no place to spend your money, so you save it until you come out with a long whisker.

HOW YOUR LIVER BILE BREAKS DOWN FAT

Laboratory tests have now proved that liver bile emulsifies fat... actually breaks it down. It is an established medical fact that when liver bile is added to fatty solids, the fat is broken down and forms a smooth, easy-flowing mix.

In your body, precious liver bile helps break down fat the same way. Many foods reach the digestive tract as undigested fatty solids. Your golden liver bile helps break-down this fat... unblocks it... for easier and more complete digestion.

Carter's Little Liver Pills exclusive formula of natural, vegetable ingredients relieves irregularity gently and effectively. At the same time, it actually improves the flow of liver bile needed to break down fat in your body.

So when you feel sluggish, headachy, nervous and need a laxative, get Carter's Little Liver Pills. Remember, Carter's not only relieves irregularity, but actually improves the flow of liver bile needed to break down fat.
